STONE MEAL AS A FERTILIZER.

Some time ago The Times printed an article treating on this subject, which carried the impression that a new discovery had been made. Since that was printed the "Massachusetts Labor Bulletin," issued by the Bureau of Statistics of Labor of that state, has made some investigation and finds that the discovery dates as far back as 1893, and that the first experiments in the use of stone-meal were made even before that. In 1894 a small book, entitled "Bread from Stones—A New and Rational System of Land Fertilization and Physical Regeneration," was translated from the German and published by a firm of chemists in this country. The author discussing the question of "Why Fertilizing With Stone Meal Pays?" says:

"The practical point to settle is how far fertilizing with stone-meal pays, what yield it will afford, and whether it will be profitable for the farmer to use it. I shall therefore treat this subject as exhaustively as possible and give an exact account of the results obtained. It must be here promised that the fineness of the stamping or grinding and the most complete intermixture of the constituent parts are of the greatest importance for securing the greatest benefit from stone-meal fertilizing. A manufactured article of this kind has recently been submitted to me which showed in a sieve of moderate fineness three-fourths of the weight in coarse residuum. But as the solubility of the stone-meal, and thus its efficiency, increases in proportion with its fineness, the greatest grinding it. The finer the stone dust the more energetically can the dissolving moisture of the soil and the oxygen and nitrogen of the air act upon it. A grain of stone dust of moderate fineness may be reduced in a mortar of agate into perhaps twenty little particles, and then every particle may be rendered accessible to the water and the air, and can, therefore, be used as plant food. Hence it follows that one single load of the finest stone-meal will do as much as twenty loads of a coarser product, so that by reducing to the finest dust the cost for freight and carriage and the use of horse and cart would amount to only one-twentieth. Therefore we can afford to pay a higher price for the finest stone-meal that has been passed through a sieve than for an article that may not be so much a fine powder but rather a kind of coarse sand.

"The average contents of ash in cereals is about three per cent. Hence, from three pounds of pure vegetable ashes we could raise a hundred pounds of crops. Now, as stone-meal properly made contains an abundance of plant food in a similar form, it may be calculated to produce four cwt. of cereals, or than an annual use of six cwt. to the acre will produce twenty-four cwt. of grain. On this basis, every farmer can calculate whether it will pay. But in reality the harvest will be far greater, because even without the stone-meal most fields still possess some supply of mineral nutriment for plants which will become effective in addition thereto."

Various testimonials published in the Labor Bulletin show that stone-meal is good as a tobacco fertilizer, tea fertilizer, for cotton, and it is claimed prevent "boll-weevil," rye, sugar-beets, in fact it gives gratifying results when used as a fertilizer for all agricultural purposes. It has been used continuously on gardens, fields and farm in Germany since 1890.

Why cannot some of our large quarry owners, who also have farms, give the stone-meal fertilizer a trial and prove its efficiency? Barre has a plenty of the raw product.

VERMONT FISH EXHIBIT.

Interesting Aquarium for the State Fair at White River Junction.

Stowe, Sept. 30.—H. G. Thomas, state fish and game commissioner, returned Saturday from White River Junction, where he had been to install the exhibit of his department at the state fair.

This exhibit will include 500 brook trout, six rainbow trout, four steelhead trout, twenty lake trout, five Vomberr trout from Germany, weighing about seven pounds apiece, forty-seven wall-eyed pike, one big mouth bass, and thirty-six little mouth bass. He expects to receive today some landlocked salmon, some lake and brook trout from Lake Willoughby and Lake Mitchell to add to the exhibit. His space is entirely filled. Three deer are also shown. Mr. Thomas speaks enthusiastically of the fair. Friday night he saw 150 head of cattle unloaded, and other exhibits are coming in on the same scale.

SUNK WEAPONS OUT AT SEA.

New York Police Dispose of Confiscated Guns and Knives.

New York, Sept. 30.—Their tragic record written in hundreds of murders, suicides and riots, race wars and other "cases" that were set down on the police "bulletins" in the last two years, more than 5,000 revolvers, jaggers, slungshots, stilettoes, bowie knives and other weapons were taken out to sea in the police boat patrol by Commissioner Bingham and sunk far apart in deep water.

Acting under authority of a law passed at his own request, General Bingham took this action with seized property which he might have sold for about $15. In order to remove that quantity of death dealing implements from his sphere of influence.

Auntie's Prayer.

I pray that, risen from the dead, I may in glory stand; A crown, perhaps, upon my head, But a needle in my hand.

I've never learned to sing or play, So let no harp be mine; From birth unto my dying day, Plain sewing's been my line.

Therefore, accustomed to the end To plying useful stitches; I'll be content if asked to mend The little angel's breeches.

The Only Reason.

"And dear old Mrs. —, your aunt? She must be rather feeble now. Tell me, how is she?"

"Buried her yesterday," said the major. "Buried her? Dear me, dear me! Is the good old lady dead?" "Yes; that's why we buried her," said the major.—Argonaut.

The Fell Destroyer.

Mistress—Bridget, have you cemented the handle on the water jug which you dropped yesterday?

Bridget—I started to, mum, but most unfortunately I dropped the cement bottle.—Punch.

An Indiscreet Angel.

A little girl was being put to bed one summer night, and after she had said her prayers her mother kissed her good night and said: "Now, go to sleep, dear. Don't be afraid, for God's angels are watching over you."

In a short time, while the mother and father were at tea, a small voice from upstairs was heard.

"Mamma!" "Yes, little one; what is it?" "God's angels are buzzing around, and one's bitten me!"—Harper's Weekly.
