NO SUCCESSOR FOR MRS. EDDY

When She Dies There Will Be No Single Head

OF CHRISTIAN SCI. CHURCH

Business Will Undoubtedly Be Conducted by a Board of Directors, Said Alfred Farlow in an Interview.

Boston, Oct. 22.—Prompted by the report that a successor had been chosen to take the place of Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy as head of the Christian Science church after the death of the present leader, Alfred Farlow, the official spokesman for the denomination, has issued the following statement:

"Mrs. Eddy, founder of the faith, and today in supreme control of the Christian Science church, will have no successor. Neither Mrs. Augusta Steierson, the leader of the New York church, nor Lady Dunmore, who has been prominently mentioned, will ever fill the position occupied today by Mrs. Eddy. With the death of the aged leader, the Christian Science church will have no single personal leader. The business of the church will undoubtedly be conducted by a board of directors, which the memory of the founder and discoverer will remain the only name ever connected with the faith."

N. H. CATHOLIC ORGAN ATTACKS MRS. EDDY.

The Guidon Clashes Her and "Affinity" Seekers Both as Iconoclasts.

Manchester, N. H., Oct. 22.—Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, founder of the Christian Science church, and her teachings, are arraigned editorially in the final number of the Guidon, the official organ of the Catholic diocese of New Hampshire, before passing into the hands of the Sisters of Mercy for future publication.

First alluding to the recent declaration of artist Earle of New York that he had found his affinity, and who discarded his wife, the Guidon says:

"In Utah, the same state, a married clergyman also found his affinity, likewise predestined for him from the dawn of creation. Same cause—the uncivilized mind of an artist. He was determined to preach his doctrine from his pulpit, at which point he was not kindly treated. But why not?"

"If Mrs. Eddy has a right to abolish seven sacraments instituted by Jesus Christ, why should not the artist and the minister have the right to abolish one? All the founders of the sects discarded such of the sacraments and such of Christ's teaching as were inconveniently in the way of their private belief and practice. What Christ had to say about his ideas was not taken into consideration. It is hardly fair to throw bricks at an artist and a minister for doing that which each monuments to be erected to the other."

The case involves the application of the Elkins act to export shipments. The motion for a writ of certiorari was granted.

Devoted to Base Ball.

Manager Hanlon of the Cincinnati club is said to a reporter:

"It is a beautiful thing, the devotion of some people to base ball."

"A business man told me last night how he had occasion recently to say to his office boy:

"'Look, here, Harold, you have been away three days this summer on account of the death of your grandmother. Now you ask to get off a fourth time on the same excuse. What do you mean by it?'"

"The boy answered, respectfully: 'I am sorry to have to tell you, sir, that grandmother was a bigamist.'"—Washington Star.

SUICIDE AT CLAREMONT

Claremont, N. H., Oct. 22.—Charles W. Barrett, about 35 years old, a prominent citizen, committed suicide yesterday by drowning. The body was discovered by C. E. Howard at the rear of the Freeman and O'Neil barn, above the dam on the Elm street side of the river.

THE SCRAP BOOK

The Educated Flea.

It was at a banquet. A rule had been agreed upon to the effect that every person called upon for a toast must respond with speech, song or story. As a last number on the improvised programme, a retiring sort of chap was called upon to do his part.

"I can't make a speech," he stammered, "but I heard that fleas could be trained to do tricks, and some time ago I tried to train one. Would you care to see him?"

A place was cleared off in the center of the snowy tablecloth, and in the middle the owner set the small pillbox he had taken from his vest pocket. Removing the lid of the box the trainer called out:

"Jump out, Henry!" Henry jumped out.

"Play dead, Henry!" Henry played dead to perfection.

"Lie down and roll over, Henry!" Henry did so.

"Jump backward, Henry!" Henry obeyed.

"Jump forward, Henry!" Henry jumped forward with such enthusiasm that he landed upon one of the ladies.

Quite a search was necessary before Henry could be recovered from the lady's clothing, but finally the black mite was retaken and set in his accustomed place.

"Jump through there, Henry!" Henry didn't move.

"Henry, I say, jump through there!" Still nothing doing.

"Henry, jump through there, I tell you!" Still the most abandoned disobedience.

The flea trainer bent low above his pet and looked at him a moment intently. Then straightening up, with a look of relief on his face he said to the woman from whom the flea had been taken:

"I beg your pardon, madam, but that's not my Henry."—Lippincott's.

GEN. BOOTH'S ILLNESS.

Stranged Son Will Go to Bedside Is Summoned.

Chicago, Oct. 22.—Two physicians are in attendance on Gen. William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army, who is ill here at the home of Commissioner Killey. Dr. Oscar Cliff says that the general has a severe cold, but friends of the evangelist fear for him on account of his advanced age. Many of them call at the commissioner's house to learn at first hand what the general's condition was, but few were admitted. Besides Dr. Cliff, Dr. Frank Billings has been called into the case and had a consultation Sunday night with his brother physician.

Jenny's Problem.

A little girl stood at her mother's knee and from the expression of her face was evidently evolving some knotty problem.

"What is it, Jenny?" asked the mother.

"'Mamma," said the child seriously, "if I grow up and marry, shall I have a husband like papa?"

"Yes, dear, I hope so."

There was a long pause. Then the youngster asked:

"And if I don't marry, shall I grow up to be like Aunt Susan?"

"I hope so."

Then the little girl put her hands to her head and said in a tone of despair, "Well, I am in a fix!"

Wanted to Be Obliging.

A lady visitor, wishing to be polite to the little son of her host at table, said:

"What a pretty dimple you have, Benny!"

"You think that's a pretty dimple?" said the boy. "Mamma, can I show the lady the one on my stomach?"—Ladies' Home Journal.

He Couldn't Oblige Her.

An American actor, who is old enough not to consider himself a matinee idol by any means, was somewhat pleased in a western hotel when a pretty girl stopped him in the corridor and presented him with a rose without saying a word. He received a note the following day reminding him of the incident and asking him to send the giver of the flower two seats at the theater in which he was playing "as a memento of the occasion."

"My dear young lady," he wrote in reply, "I should be glad to send you the seats you ask for; but on consultation with the manager of the theater, I have been informed that the seats are all fastened down and that he is opposed to having them sent away as souvenirs."—Ladies' Home Journal.

COAST LABOR DEFICIT.

Navy Department Wants More Help at Navy Yards.

Washington, Oct. 22.—In answer to complaints by officers of the American Federation of Labor, Secretary of the Navy Metcalf explained yesterday that the navy department did not contemplate the wholesale transportation of mechanics to the Pacific coast to meet the emergency created by the scarcity of skilled labor there. The secretary said that there was a shortage of labor on the coast, and the department was having great difficulty to keep up the full working force at the navy yards of that section. But only the usual methods of advertising would be employed, he said, to obtain help. Transportation to the coast will not be furnished.

A BUSINESS LESSON.

How Peter Cooper Taught One Man the Value of Money.

Peter Cooper was one of the most successful, careful and prudent business men of his time. He was strongly opposed to the methods of many merchants who launched out into extravagant enterprises on borrowed money, for which they paid exorbitant rates of interest. The following anecdote illustrates this point very forcibly:

Once, while talking about a project with an acquaintance, the latter said he would have to borrow the money for six months, paying interest at the rate of 3 per cent per month.

"Why do you borrow for so short a time?" Mr. Cooper asked.

"Because the brokers will not negotiate bills for longer."

"Well, if you wish," said Mr. Cooper, "I will discount your note at that rate for three years."

"Are you in earnest?" asked the would-be borrower.

"Certainly I am. I will discount your note for $10,000 for three years at that rate. Will you do it?"

"Of course I will," said the merchant.

"Very well," said Mr. Cooper. "Just sign this note for $10,000, payable in three years, and give your check for $800, and the transaction will be complete."

"But where is the money for me?" asked the astonished merchant.

"You don't get any money," was the reply. "Your interest for thirty-six months at 3 per cent per month amounts to 108 per cent, or $10,800. Therefore your check for $800 just makes us even."

The force of this practical illustration of the folly of paying such an exorbitant price for the use of money was such that the merchant determined never to borrow at such ruinous rates, and he frequently used to say that nothing could have so fully convinced him as this rather humorous proposal by Mr. Cooper.

Union In Failure.

Men are united more by their vices than their virtues, observed Balzac. It is also true that they are more closely bonded by their failures than their successes. How a man will love you if you have fallen down like himself when perhaps you should both have won out were there any real stuff in you.—Michael Monahan.

FIGHTING AGAINST SLEEP.

Experience of a Traveler Crossing the Gobi Desert.

Many difficulties must the traveler contend with when crossing the desert of Gobi, and one of these is the almost overwhelming desire to sleep. Hans Doring writes in the North China News: "Hitherto I have thought that traveling by carts over stony roads and staying in Chinese inns at night was the hardest thing a foreign traveler in China was called upon to endure, but since I have traveled with an caravan of camels I have changed my opinion. The monotony of the desert by day and the bed of camels' saddles by night, the evil smell of camels and the slowness of their drivers and the acid, choking smoke of the little fire on which one's food is cooked—these things are so trying to the foreigner as the sleeplessness which attacks one in the high region. Traveling through the cold night with no other company than dull Chinese, who seem to sleep while walking alongside the camels or while sitting on their backs, and being weighted down by heavy sleepings, is the worst thing I have endured."

"You sit on your horse and in spite of every effort, fall asleep. Presently you wake up and find yourself on the ground with your horse standing beside you, and you wonder whether you are alive or dead. Then you try to keep yourself awake by talking and talking a bit to the camel drivers, but you soon find that they are just as sleepy as yourself. A few words are exchanged, and then you are too tired to open your mouth to talk or even to think of anything but sleep, sleep, sleep. Oh, for just a few minutes there at the roadside in the soft sand, but no, you must go on, and fight against the desire. It is too dangerous to sleep by the roadside on the ground. The caravan cannot wait and your servant would not watch over you; he would soon fall asleep like yourself. The wolves would then have an easy time."

"Yet in spite of all this reasoning you feel as if you were drawn to the ground by the power of a thousand strong magnets and soon yield to sleep again. Suddenly your watchful horse, whose reins you have kept slung around your neck—this is a wise thing to do—pulls up, starts, and jerks you wide awake. You jump up, not knowing where you are for some seconds, but you see your horse trembling and you realize that danger is near."

"For a few minutes you are fully awake and feel glad and refreshed. You jump on your horse and catch up with the caravan which has gone a few li (a li is 654 yards) ahead."

"After another ten li or so sleep creeps on again like a huge black constrictor embracing you in its irresistible grasp. The same fight has then to be fought over again. Then at last the caravan arrives at the halting place for the night."
