Mr. and Mrs. Edward Menard, who reside on the West Hill, are away on a visit to their former home in Plattsburg, N. Y.

Mrs. Zerah Seaver, who has been visiting friends in Williamstown for several weeks, returned to her home here the first of the week.

Martin Oberlee, who last winter bought the Phil Clough farm on the East Hill, has rented his farm to John Drugg and has moved his family to Philadelphia.

Fifield Bohannon and Austin L. Skinner, who have been in Worcester and Lowell, Mass., respectively, for a ten days' visit to friends, returned Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Merton Sargent of Manchester, N. H., came recently and will remain during the winter with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Sargent.

Miss Essie Young recently entertained her cousin, Mrs. Alice W. Corley of Grand Forks, North Dakota. Mrs. Corley is the daughter of the late Horace Woodward, who was at one time a resident of this town.

John Hogan, who for several years has made his home in the family of Mr. Burnham, who lives on the Vergennes road, has gone to Stratford, where he contemplates taking up his residence with Mrs. Horace Gusha.

R. H. Lyon and family, formerly of this town but for several years residents of Montpelier, have returned from a trip to Seattle, Washington, and Mrs. Lyon and her daughter are guests of the former's sister, Mrs. A. B. Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hadlock, who owns the Calvin Goodwin farm on the West Hill, have just returned from a summer's stay at the White Mountains and will remain at the farm during the winter. Their daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Wells, will spend the winter with them.

At the annual meeting of the Tyrian club Thursday evening, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, E. A. Corwin; vice-president, H. N. Mattison; secretary, W. C. Holmes; treasurer, Stanley C. Wilson; executive board, O. D. Tracy, Wm. Robbins and W. W. Underhill. After the business meeting the members of the club and their invited guests, numbering in all about forty, repaired to the dining room at the Orange County hotel, where a sumptuous repast prepared by "Miss Host" Barnes awaited them, and after the inner man had been satisfied, President Corwin introduced H. K. Darling as toastmaster, who with his ever-ready wit and his pleasing manner kept those about the tables in an uproar of laughter as he called upon the speakers to respond to the following toasts: "The Club," "H. N. Mattison," Murray Bourne, unassigned; "Bench and Bar," Elmer E. Wallace; "Traveling Men," Tom B. Garvey; "The Ladies," Frank A. Hayden; "The Upper Village," W. H. Sprague; "Our Visitors," Ben Tucker; "The Modern Medical Men," Dr. A. T. Marshall, and the following speakers were allowed the floor: W. W. Underhill, from which to speak: Fred C. Waldo, Walter S. Goss, Fred A. Ordway, J. Ollie Perkins and Stanley C. Wilson. The after-dinner speeches concluded, the banquet broke up, everyone who attended feeling that it had been an evening of the most pleasant and that it should be undeniably would be an annual institution. The Tyrian club organized three years ago and has about thirty resident members, with quite a substantial non-resident membership also, and is in a healthy and flourishing condition.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

"The Heart of Maryland"
Among all first class genuinely dramatic attractions which the management of the opera house has secured for the present season none will be more gloriously successful than David Belasco's phenomenally successful American play of which will be presented on next Wednesday evening. The cast will be represented by a company of capable players.

Scene from "The Heart of Maryland." "Can I do nothing to make you human!"

ers, and this added to the picturesque realism of its new scenic settings will not fail to charm the large audience which will surely be present to witness its performance.

"The Heart of Maryland" has held undisputed sway in popular favor for the past ten years at the leading American theatres. It possesses so much strong interest, vitality in its realism and marked individuality in the nature of its character that there is always, wherever it has been presented, an almost irresistible desire on the part of patrons of the drama to witness its performance again and again. The fascination of its love episodes and the dauntless courage of the heroine, as well as the excitement of its war scenes eliminate in the belief of the old chure down with the triumph of Maryland Calvert make it worthy of the most liberal patronage of theatre-goers.

ITALIANS IN NEW ENGLAND.

They Are Increasing in Number at a Remarkably Fast Rate.

An instructive sidelight on the increase of the Italian population in eastern cities not of the first class is afforded by the recent enumeration of this type of residents in New Haven. That Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Chicago contain large proportions of Italian inhabitants is well known. But the staid New England town whose chief fame comes from the fact that it is the seat of Yale university, stands in an entirely different category from the greater centers of population. Its population in 1890 was 17,000, when the national census of 1905 was taken, and its mayor estimated them at only 130,000 when the present year began.

Yet the count which has been made shows that not fewer than 27,000 Italian men, women and children, are now living in New Haven, an increase of 150 per cent in five years ago. Two of the largest churches in the city are Italian places of worship. During the month of September the bureau of statistics registered the birth of 104 children of Italian parentage. Infants born to American parents numbered 10,000 in 1905, a considerable French Canadian element in its population, attracted largely by the opportunities for labor in its mills and factories, while Boston years ago ceased to be a city in which the native-born Americans largely exceeded inhabitants of the grand west coast, where no such reservoir of emigration as Italy; and the same processes which have been going on elsewhere on the eastern seaboard are at work in sending thousands of Italians to New England, where they apparently prosper, in spite of the severity of the winter climate, so that that of the lower part of their own land.

There are, moreover, no signs of a halt in this movement. It seems highly probable that it will affect the destinies and the racial type of a large portion of the United States not less profoundly than the earlier emigrations from Ireland and from Germany. In each instance much vehement opposition was expressed to the coming of these strangers. But in each the forces of assimilation have gone on steadily and irresistibly.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

BURGLAR WITH A HEART

A RELIGIOUS CONVERT.
Victim to Whom He Showed Consideration Offers to Give Him a Job.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—Anthony Kelly, a burglar, fell under the influence of the religious awakening conducted by the Rev. R. D. Torrey and immediately went to police headquarters and confessed to eight burglaries. He said the work was tiresome.

Levi Eiel, who was robbed by Kelly while the burglar rolled cigarettes and asked what Eiel wanted to keep for "old times' sake," told the police that Kelly's heart was right, and if he was paroled to him he would give him a job.

"I didn't take that watch and fob you said were presents from a dead chap," said Kelly, "and that did me a heap of good. I wouldn't have touched your children for the world. I remember that you warned me not to hurt the kids and told me not to wake them up. I am guilty, but God knows I needed the money and I had to get it somehow. I drew the revolver to 'four flush.' I couldn't shoot any one."

Eiel is urging the other victims to give the burglar with a heart another show.

VOW WAS NOT CARRIED OUT.

Fred Murderer's Barefooted Walk Barred.

New York, Nov. 11.—Only a threat if he did not desist he would be returned to the toms, where for many months he has remained in the shadow of death, prevented Raffaele Cascone from carrying out his vow to walk barefooted and bareheaded from the prison to a church on East 116th street, there to give thanks for his deliverance.

Cascone was convicted June 3, 1903, of murdering Luigi Sinisclatti and was sentenced to death. He spent 32 months in the death house at Sing Sing and was then granted a new trial by the court of appeals.

He was brought back to New York and since that time has been confined in the toms.

Saturday he was acquitted on his second trial.
