The fifth week. Vermont has two United States senators again to-day.

We read that William Randolph Hearst has decided not to be president this year, but will be mayor of New York City. Behold!

The St. Albans Messenger is inclined to believe that Congressman D. J. Foster will soon qualify for the equestrian act in the arena if he succeeds in riding so many political horses.

Swanton ought to be so pleased that its school accommodations are not sufficient that it should go right ahead and make them larger. Not a great many towns in Vermont are afflicted with a surplus of children.

It may shed some light on the act of Congressman Hefflin, who shot a negro in a Washington street-car last Friday night, that he was the author of a "Jim Crow" car measure in Congress, whose purpose is to force negroes to ride in separate conveyances from white people. Perhaps Mr. Hefflin was endeavoring to enforce his own measure by personal application.

When it comes to the question of modesty, Governor Johnson of Minnesota is running as close second to his famous contemporary, Governor Hughes of New York. Each protests that if his party feels that its best interests would be conserved by selecting him as standard-bearer he (Johnson or Hughes) would accept the honor. They are receptive candidates for the nomination of their respective parties in contrast to scrambling candidates.

SUCCESS TO ALL OF THEM!

To-day sees a number of changes in the Vermont newspaper field. Henry W. Hall, who came from Troy, N. Y., to be managing editor of the Rutland Herald, is succeeded by Howard L. Hindley, whose place as managing editor of the Montpelier Journal is taken by Charles A. Webb. Mr. Hall, as we un-

"WHO'S WHO" CHANCES IN VERMONT.

Vermont and New Hampshire are about nip and tuck in size, population and representation in this year's "Who's Who," where Vermont has 32 natives and eighty residents, to New Hampshire's 290 natives and 122 residents.

It will be noted in the "Who's Who" representation that while the two states are nearly equal in the total number of names, New Hampshire leads by quite a margin in the number of those who are still residents of that state. Whereas, only one-fifth of Vermont's names, considered worthy of a place in the book, are those of present residents of Vermont. Yet there surely ought to be as much chance for Vermonters to gain renown in their own state as for New Hampshire people in theirs.

In the March Appleton's magazine, Editor Charles H. Taylor of the Boston Globe treats most interestingly from the standpoint of the newspaper man, and probably from that of the layman in the business, the responsibility of the editor to the public. His conclusion is as follows: "Journalists have a much heavier and more direct responsibility than any other business men. The idle, self-seeking, the untruthful, the vicious, beguile them at every hand, to use the powerful engine of the press to carry themselves a little way along their chosen road. The editor must watch ceaselessly for these unwelcome passengers, and eject them on sight. He appreciates the responsibility of his trust. He reaches his ideal as nearly as he can, and does far more for the morals of the community than he is usually given credit for. I believe firmly that the journalists of the country are just as loyal and patriotic citizens, just as true men, just as eager to build up their communities, to uplift and broaden and better the people, just as anxious to carry sunshine rather than sorrow and grief into the families which their journal visits, as are the same number of men in any other profession or any other line of business in the United States."

CURRENT COMMENT.

Strike Loss in Bellows Falls.

The disastrous consequences of the papermakers' strike in Bellows Falls are told in a striking manner in our correspondence from that village today. The striking workmen lost in wages $48,600. The strike benefits due them amounted to $4,887.50, but they received from the national organization only $1,500, an average of $7.50 per man for nine weeks while the workmen were idle. One effect of the strike has been the inauguration of the three-four system. A third of the big International paper company's plant has been shut down and the company's pay roll since Jan. 1 is estimated to be $13,000 less than in the corresponding period in 1907. The result of the strike seems to be a loss to the village of approximately $75,000, a large curtailment in its leading industry, and the gaining of a reputation for labor complications which may affect the establishment of new industries. Many of the strikers did not receive benefits from the union, as they were not in good standing. The Barre granite cutters, who are now on a strike, and who have dropped $200,000 in wages, are also having this kind of an experience, and many of them are not receiving the small helpful gratuity from the union.

MEETING WITH SUCCESS.

Movement to Bring Agricultural Interests Together.

Editor Times:—About a month ago a circular letter was sent you calling your attention to the new movement for bringing the agricultural interests of New England into closer touch with each other and more helpful connection with the agricultural interests of New England. At that time the movement was practically a tentative one. Now, however, its success is assured and the establishment of the federation under the name of the New England Federation of Agricultural Students is an accomplished fact.

On the evening of the fifth of the month delegates from the agricultural colleges of the New England states met at the Belleville hotel, Boston, and there accepted the constitution by which the organization is to be governed. At the meeting of the Rural Progress society which the delegates attended the next day the federation was made a member of this society; and each delegation took back to its agricultural club an interesting and instructive report of the meeting.

Probably steps will soon be taken to affiliate the New England Federation of Agricultural Students with the National Federation of Agricultural Students organized for similar purposes in the West a few years ago.

The Pittsford selectmen report that during the year ending February 14, 1908, eleven farmers in that town lost 106 sheep and three cattle, the animals being killed by dogs. This damage was appraised at $435, while the amount received from registered dogs in town was only $231.

F. H. Foss, who has been postmaster in Vergennes for the past ten years, will turn over the business of the office to Thomas Mack, the new postmaster, April 1.

RANDLOPH

Frank Badger of Danville Buys Farm Near Village.

Frank Badger of Danville has bargained for the farm of Luther Tracy which is situated about three miles from town on the road leading to East Brattleboro. The writings are to be made today and Mr. Badger will move there this spring. Mr. Tracy recently met with a serious accident, the result of a fall on the ice, which will disable him for some time. The injury was in the knee and the ligaments holding the knee cap were loosened, resulting in a painful, and it is feared, a slow process of waiting before recovery.

Miss Grace Hayes is home from the N. V. M. for the spring vacation.

Mrs. Alma Taft of Huntington Center was the guest of Mrs. Eugenie Ellison over Friday night.

Mrs. Clara Gibbs and her daughter-in-law from White River Junction were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Terry on Friday.

Another pleasant party and dance in Grange hall was reported on Friday night, when 28 couples were in attendance, all of whom enjoyed the evening.

Clayton Trask has rented a tenement on Hale street in the house owned by Ira Williams estate and will move there soon from the Wiers house on South Pleasant street.

The first supper party of the season was held in Odd Fellows' hall on Friday night with a good attendance. The net receipts to the Rebekahs who gave the party were small.

A medium sized band greeted the Canadian Jubilee singers at music hall on Friday night and the concert given by them was universally liked, the music and voices being exceptionally fine.

Mrs. P. J. Blanchard and her daughter, Miss Edith, arrived home on Friday night after a stay of five months and a half in Denver, Col., with Clyde Blanchard and his family, who reside in that city.

Alvin Angell who lives in the Kelley house is in very poor health, having been confined to the house for several weeks. He will move as soon as able to the house now occupied by F. A. Bruce on Hale street.

A. T. Nell, who has purchased the livery stable of W. F. Hodgkins, has rented Mrs. Upham's house and will shortly move his family here. Mrs. Culham, who has been in her brother's family for the winter will board with Mr. Nell's family and remain in rooms reserved by her for that purpose in her house.

Animal Oddities.

Collies are said to be treacherous. The falcon has been known to live over 162 years.

When crows wheel and clamor in great groups, it is a sure sign of a storm.

The digestive powers of the hyena are extraordinary. One of these animals has been known to swallow six large bones without crushing them.
