Poor little West Fairlee.

First blood in Maine; a hunter shot himself.

A week more before we shall have the legislature in session.

Like Banquo's ghost, that cross-state railroad is stalking abroad in Vermont again.

The Douglas shoe will pinch Brockton, Mass., mightily if part of the factory goes to Nashua, N. H.

Young Teddy Roosevelt's first salary of five dollars per week won't let him bet very heavily on his alma mater.

Success to Jerome, who is going to investigate the reliability of that "Cleveland letter"! The sooner we know the truth, the better.

The same things which the Vermont press has been saying about Governor-elect Prouty's appointment of Aaron H. Groat of Newport as secretary of civil and military affairs apply to his recent appointment of John N. Harvey of Montpelier as executive clerk. Groat and Harvey will make a strong pair of young officials.

"CRAZY" ON RAILROADS.

Railroad legislation will receive some attention at the coming session of the legislature. Some of the work of the last session should be undone. That session seemed crazy to do something with the railroads to satisfy public sentiment, and seemed to care little what it was. Under the pretense of regulating the roads, they were only hampered, and the public in no way benefited.—Jericho Press.

Let us see, the five railroad acts of the legislative session of 1906 were, briefly summarized, as follows:

- (1) To make "redeemable" tickets actually redeemable. (2) Gradual abolishment of grade crossings. (3) Passage of a rate bill, modeled after the federal law and giving full

And they certainly ARE novel! Not an old design or a common pattern in the lot.

In place of the delicate shades of the past season strong colors are coming in, and vigorous combinations of bold patterns.

Bias effects and small figures, or panel designs in solid colors, or plaids in hair line stripes, or dozens of other ingenious combinations too varied and bewildering for particular description.

Take a look.

jurisdiction to the state railroad commission.

(4) Enactment of a railroad commission law, like that modeled by ex-Senator Jonathan Ross.

(5) Revising the public statutes of Vermont to conform.

It may be pertinently asked in what particular did the legislature of 1906 seem "crazy" to do something with the railroads, seemingly caring little what the "something" was. Perhaps the neighbor will tell us.

LET THE DEER SEASON BE UNCHANGED.

Recently there have been many suggestions presented looking to a change in the present deer hunting law of Vermont, and the state is now in the throes of the biennial hysteria over the subject. There seems to be a tendency to surrender a policy which has been in vogue for many years and which has permitted the deer to multiply in considerable numbers. Many persons now seek to lengthen the open season for killing the animals, asserting that the deer have come to be so numerous as to constitute a real menace to the farming industry of the state, since the deer are said to be notorious raiders of the crops.

As a matter of fact, we hear very infrequently of the depredations of the deer on growing produce, so infrequently as to cause wonder at the boldness of the animals, and more wonder that some people should advocate a wholesale killing of the animal. It would be out of proportion to that damage to extend the deer season and thus tend toward extermination of the deer. The present period of open season is long enough to permit the slaughter of upwards of a thousand deer each fall. The forests are secured in every possible nook and corner and the hunters do not leave many portions of the state unvisited. Any further time allowed for the hunting would soon have the state robbed of all traces of the animals, and then the years spent in populating the forests with the pretty creatures will have been spent in vain. You may depend on it that the demand for more license in killing the deer does not come so much from those people who claim to have suffered loss from their depredations as from the hunters themselves who wish for more of their sport.

Columbus, O., Sept. 30.—Eph Clinders, selling at $6 in pools of $110 yesterday dealt the backers of Jerry B., a stunning surprise when he won the King stake, an event for 2:05 paces, and the feature of the first program of the second week's grand circuit racing here.

DID GOOD WORK.

The Rain Helped Things Out Wonderfully at Enosburg.

Enosburg, Sept. 30.—The rain of Monday night and yesterday morning was especially timely here. Fires had been raging for a week on the farm of Henry Sylvester. There was fire in the ground to a depth of three feet but it had been kept under control until Monday afternoon when the wind began to rise and the blaze broke out anew, spreading rapidly to the sugar orchard of Mr. Sylvester, which, with some nearby timber was burned. It was feared that Mr. Sylvester's buildings would burn and, in fact, the whole mountain side was threatened. This would have meant the loss of several thousand dollars to farmers in valuable timber, sugar orchards, and sugar bushes which are along the side of the mountain. The rain, which fell in torrents early yesterday morning, quenched the fire and raised springs and streams somewhat.

27 CENTS STOLEN.

Not a Very Large Haul From Brattleboro Freight House.

Brattleboro, Sept. 30.—The local freight office of the Central Vermont railway was broken into early yesterday morning and 27 cents taken. The right ticket agent discovered it at 2:45 a. m., and notified Chief of Police Evans who arrested two men shortly after. They gave their names as G. W. Streeter and Fred Morris and when searched Streeter had a lady's new ribbon coat wrapped around his waist, a brake key in his pocket and $2.47 in cash. Morris had about $25 and two quarts of whiskey.

In court Morris was fined for being drunk and Judge Gibson held Stiekeny in $500 bail on the charge of burglary. He was sent to Newfane jail to await trial. It is believed that they forced an entrance to the freight office through one of the windows with the brake key.
