There was a silver lining to to-day's clouds.

William Randolph Hearst has earned his LL.D.—Dispenser of Letters.

Governor Haskell of Oklahoma wants money—there's the Standard Oil, for instance.

Kermit Roosevelt goes to college while Theodore, jr., goes to work; which constitutes the inevitable sequence.

Two-cent letters to England, Scotland and Ireland will have a tendency to swell the postal business, if not the receipts.

How true these lines at present!
 "The thirsty earth soaks up the rain,
 And drinks and gapes for drink again."
 Meanwhile, to come down to practical things, the reservoirs are filling up.

Through her educational system, kindergarten to university, Burlington gains as much as through any other one agency. By means of it she is able to attract for residents such men as Roger W. Hurlburt, who has been one of the prominent citizens of Lamotte county for a quarter of a century, and who has decided to change his residence from Hyde Park to Burlington.

James H. Vahey, who was nominated for governor by the Massachusetts Democrats yesterday, will be remembered chiefly because of his tenacity in defending Charles L. Tucker, the young man who was eventually executed for the murder of Mabel Page. The connection of the two events illustrates the opportunity which a lawyer has for getting into the public eye. Vahey was a more or less obscure lawyer in the Bay state up to the time that he was called to defend Tucker; after the trial he was one of the best known attorneys in the state and, it might be added, in New

In place of the delicate shades of the past season strong colors are coming in, and vigorous combinations of bold patterns.

Bias effects and small figures, or panel designs in solid colors, or plaids in hair line stripes, or dozens of other ingenious combinations too varied and bewildering for particular description.

England as well. It only needed the publicity of a great murder trial to bring him out. That is not to say that he was not a capable attorney beforehand, but he hadn't got his footing. That same publicity will be of benefit to him now in his canvass for the governorship, although it would be presumptuous to assert that he is playing upon that notoriety for election to the highest office in the Bay state. Vahey has innate qualifications, else his candidacy would not have so completely dominated such a warring assembly as a Democratic convention in Massachusetts.

WELL DONE.

The Universalists of Vermont (and the Province of Quebec) have taken steps toward the consummation of an idealistic purpose, the caring for the aged and infirm clergymen, their widows and their children when in the opinion of the executive board of the denomination assistance is imperative. The Universalists are, therefore, among the first to set a movement on foot which is bound to find a wide latitude throughout the country. The same brotherly feeling has already found expression in the homes and beneficiary funds established by other crafts, professions and the fraternal organizations. We now have actors' funds for the support of the aged and infirm, actors' homes, etc. Why should we not have clergymen's funds, if not clergymen's homes? The note of brotherhood should be strong in the churches, if anywhere; and it should be there that the brotherhood spirit ought to find prompt expression. The lines of demarcation between the denominations are so firmly distinct that we cannot expect a general clergymen's fund movement, so the individual denominations will need to take it upon themselves to care for the clergy of their own creed until the millennial spirit of unrestricted religious tolerance shall rule the churches and obliterate all denominational lines. Until such time we must expect a more or less limited policy in dispensing the largesses of such accumulations, that is, each denomination for its own ministers. The Universalists are to be congratulated on taking up a very pressing matter of policy; the other denominations which have not already taken steps in the same direction can do no better than to fall into line and thus spread the scope of a noble purpose.

CURRENT COMMENT.

The Cross-State Railroad.

The Burlington Free Press hears that the presence of Mr. Harriman in Vermont has revived the talk of a cross-state railroad. The facts about the problem of a railroad from Montpelier to Rutland are that there are plenty of plausible routes, from the short and mountainous pitch from Woodstock to the long, though comparatively easy route from Montpelier via Middlesex, Moretown, Waitsfield, Rochester, Stockbridge and Mendon. The latter route has also been united with the White River Valley railroad from Bethel to Stockbridge as a possible outlet by way of the Central Vermont and Bethel. The whole thing hinges on the problem of finance. Lack of population, difficult and costly construction and a lack of natural resources to form an expectation of growth are what makes capital reluctant about building a cross-state railroad. And Mr. Harriman is not, perhaps, any more likely than anyone else to invest money in a railroad that a likely, like the St. Johnsbury and Lake Champlain and White River Valley roads, to show a regular and reliable deficit.—Rutland Herald.

DEFENDS GODDARD.

A Former Athletic Manager Writes of Situation.

Editor of the Barre Daily Times: Being interested in the Goddard Athletic Association, also holding the office of manager for one of the school teams last year, I feel it my duty to show the true sportsmanship at Goddard.

Last year there were only a few four year men in school, and I was one of them. In my whole four years at Goddard, I never knew of one person who received any compensation for his athletic ability. My last year in school I was one of the executive board of the athletic association, therefore I would naturally be one of the first to hear of any person or persons who wanted money for his athletic ability or help of any kind. Only those who could not pay the general expenses were helped, and they received no more help than anyone who had had seen or heard of a foot ball, basketball, or base ball game. The only help such ones as that received was a scholarship or a chance to work for part of his board.

In the case of the captain of last year's base ball team, I can say that he was capable of paying his full expenses, but wanting to go to college he wished to save what he could by working for his board.

The first of last year we that were interested in the coming base ball team began to look around to see what material we had on hand, and to our disappointment found we were not very strong in the box. One of the students from Massachusetts, who had played ball with Worcester academy the preceding spring, and had come to Goddard to prepare for college as his parents did not wish him to play foot ball, as they thought that Goddard did not enter into this sport very heavy.

After this student heard that we were weak in the box, he wrote to crack pitcher whom he had backed up behind the bat at Worcester academy the preceding spring, and tried to get him to come to Goddard. But the fellow would not come unless he could get a scholarship and a chance to work for his board. I went to Mr. Hollister and asked him what he could do for us, and the only reply I got was that he would give him a scholarship or a chance to work for his board, providing he couldn't afford to pay the general expense, but that was all. I saw him two or three times after, telling him how bad we were in need of a pitcher, but I could not get any inducements in the least.

After we had finished the base ball season, I was glad that we did not have this man come to Goddard, that is, I mean if we had got to give him any inducements. But not only this. For we won the championship of Vermont with not a paid man on the team. When we ended the season, it was said that Goddard had the best prep school pitchers in the state. Osen was a four year man who had got his start at Goddard. He entered U. V. M. this fall.

As to the manager of the base ball team at M. S. receiving inducements to enter Goddard, I don't see why anyone should think of such a thing, for he would no better ball player than anyone on the G. S. team, including the subs. last year.

I remember last spring at a M. S. and G. S. game at Intercity, Mr. Fairchild and I were talking about the two schools in general, and Mr. Fairchild made the statement that he would like to attend Goddard next year. This is all I ever heard Mr. Fairchild say about entering Goddard, and met him several times and talked with him in regard to the games. I also visited him twice at Montpelier, and he never mentioned about attending Goddard but that once.

I have heard several people make the remark that we had men on our team which we paid, but it was only by those who were down on the school or couldn't back up their statement.

MONTEPELIER.

Ninth Vermont Regimental Association to Meet October 20.

A. A. Niles of Morrisville, secretary of the Ninth Vermont Regimental Reunion association, yesterday sent out notices of the annual reunion and camp fire to be held in this city Tuesday evening, October 20. Company 1 of that regiment was recruited in Montpelier and vicinity.

Manager J. H. Gowdey of the local central telephone office received notice yesterday that the telephone booths for the use of the state officers and members of the legislature will again this year be placed in the corridor in the western wing of the State House.

The committee from the alumni of the Washington county grammar school met Superintendent F. J. Brownson, Principal Hodgdon, and other members of the faculty Tuesday evening to discuss the matter of the alumni keeping in closer touch with the affairs of the school. Following a full discussion of the matter, George L. Blanchard, W. N. Theriault, Albert Reed, Miss Evelyn Lease and Miss Sallie Oviatt were appointed an advisory committee to work with the faculty for the best interests of the school and to make preliminary preparations for the centennial celebration of this school, to be held in June, 1911. Superintendent Brownson and all the present members of the faculty were heartily in favor of such an advisory board.

Some of the men who sell milk in this city are circulating a paper among the milkmen asking them to raise the price of milk from six to seven cents a quart. This action is taken because of the shortage of pasturage and the high price of feed.

TREE PLANTING.

On Abandoned Farms in New England Told About.

Corporations and private citizens throughout New England are beginning to realize the opportunities which this region offers for profitable forest planting. This year about 2,500 acres have been planted in the six New England states by private citizens. In addition, a number of water companies have adopted a forest policy. The largest plantation of the character, which comprises over 1,900 acres, belongs to the Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Board of Clinton, Massachusetts.

One of the most important phases of reforestation in New England is that of planting abandoned farms and other waste land, which at present is bringing no income. In Massachusetts this waste land amounts to ten per cent. of the total area of the state, while the latest reports in Rhode Island shows 228 abandoned farms. It is this type of land which is now being planted. Wealthy men here see a good investment, and a number of them have planted tracts of at least 50 acres each this year, with the intention of increasing the size of the plantations annually. One owner in Massachusetts who started a white pine plantation of 63 acres this year, expects to plant 50 acres annually for the next ten years, while others intend to plant tracts of various sizes ranging upwards to 200 acres apiece next spring.

White pine is, of course, the species most generally planted, but other species which make excellent growth and are being used more and more are Norway spruce, for timber and pulpwood; chestnut, for telegraph poles, posts, ties, and lumber; red oak, for piles and ties; black locust for fence posts, and sugar maple for a variety of products.

It is not only on these tracts of waste land that planting is beginning to play such an important part. The practical farmer in this region now realizes that the cheapest and best way to get the special wood products which he needs on his farm, is by planting the trees. He realizes, too, the protective value of plantations which serve as shelterbelts and windbreaks. Altogether, this region offers excellent opportunities for tree planting.

RATHSKELLER SUPPERS.

This week we inaugurated a series of special suppers. These suppers have been high class in every respect, well prepared by a skilled chef and served with dispatch.

Their popularity, so far, warrants their continuance. Do not forget, these suppers are not exclusive—but for any lady or gentleman, separately, in couples, or with families. Remember also that the prices charged here are not high, but very moderate, consistent with the quality of the food, service and place.

A private dining room for parties of not more than 12 may be reserved on application.

For Friday and Saturday Between Hours of 5 and 12 P. M.

Lobsters, any style, a la Newburg a specialty. Oysters, any style, cocktail a specialty. Clams and Fish any style, at regular advertised prices.

For Sunday a specialty will be made of steaks—plank, porterhouse, tenderloin, sirloin—cooked any style at regular advertised prices.

For Monday, Oct. 5, Between Hours of 5 and 12 P. M.

Genuine Welsh Rarebit, 25c. Chicken Patties (2) 50c. Lobster Patties (2) 50c. Steamed Clams, 25c.

Keep in mind, regular dinners weekdays served between hours of 12 and 2 P. M. for 35 cents.

Rathskeller open from 6 A. M. 'til 12 P. M. every day

NOTE WELL—These special suppers do not interfere in any way with a patron's ordering anything on the bill of fare at quoted prices, if he or she so desires. It is our intention that the same nights their minds that certain dishes will be served as a specialty each week.

Get the habit—dine at the Rathskeller. Basement Buzzell block.
