

Artloom Tapestries

A DISCRIMINATING woman recently said, "The curtains and portieres are of more importance than the rugs or carpets used in a room, because the former stand up clearly before you—impress themselves upon you—whereas the floor-coverings do not."

And she was right. Just take a look around yourself and see if your hangings do not make or mar the atmosphere of good taste and refinement in any room. How imperative then is careful judgment in choosing. The Artloom Tapestries are a guarantee of correct design and artistic effect. Just make it a point to see the Artloom Tapestries the very next time you go shopping—curtains, table and couch covers. Their artistic beauty and wearing qualities are out of all proportion to their modest prices.

Stock of Tapestry Curtains

A. A. Smith & Brother have an advertisement on page 5 that should be read by every thinking man who cares whether he gets quality goods at very moderate prices, or whether he gets palmed off on him poor, shoddy goods at exorbitant prices. There is some heart-to-heart talk in it that will be of benefit to you. Read it.

The schoolhouse in the Lawson district in Barre Town has suffered more or less from vandalism and the school directors have stood it as long as they can. They now offer a reward for information as to who committed the depredations last Saturday or Sunday, but they are not confining themselves to this alone. A sharp watch it being kept, and if anything of a similar nature occurs again, it will go hard with the offenders.

The queer collection of characters for such a theatrical production as "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" calls for the selection of capable actors and actresses or the play will fall flat. The company which presented "Mrs. Wiggs" at the Barre opera house last night was a collection of good actors and actresses; hence the degree of success that the play attained. The eccentricities of widely different personalities were well depicted, especially in the case of the piece's leading role, taken by Helen Weathersby. There was a small audience. Perhaps the people are waiting for Selwyn in "Pierre of the Plains," tomorrow evening.

Miss Elsie Ferguson, leading woman for Edgar Selwyn in "Pierre of the Plains," which Henry B. Harris will offer at the opera house next Wednesday night, has been for the past four years under the direction of Mr. Charles Dillingham and Mr. Charles Fryman. It was because of Miss Ferguson's exceptionally fine performance as leading woman for Mr. Wilton Lackaye in "The Bondman," last season, that she was engaged by Mr. Harris for her present role. Miss Ferguson is probably one of the youngest leading women on the stage, being but twenty-one years old. She was born in New York, and made her debut in 1903.
