DEER HUNTING. Suggestions Offered by Writer in a Sporting Paper.

A writer in the September number of "Hunter, Trapper and Trader" furnishes the following advice to deer hunters, which may prove of value in the coming season in Vermont:

"Better get your deer in a snug, safe, sane, sportsmanlike way. See the game, know just what quarter of its body you are aiming at, and hit it. If you don't hit it, walk to the spot and find out why."

"It pays well to follow up your shots. The number of deer which the hunter just over this hill or behind that tree, just out of sight, must be appalling. My own experience last season taught me a good lesson. I had sent two of my party up a winding logging road to 'drive' while I took a short cut to the pass, a narrow ridge a mile distant. I had scarcely satisfied to recover breath when a big doe came bounding up the slope, coming into view as she topped the ridge. We sighted each other simultaneously, and the doe swung behind a big red oak which screened all but her head, where she peeped at me from her supposed shelter. I fired at her throat. A great commotion in the bushes followed as the doe bounded out of the trail to circle round me, making such leaps as only a deer can. I fired four shots from my 32-40 Winchester, the second shot taking effect in the hips, clean through. I say the second shot, from an after study of the ground covered. But the deer went out of sight, never blinched, nor did the flag waver. I supposed I was following a sound deer as I took up the trail. Coming to the scene of the second shot, I had to creep aside to keep from getting all bloody, the bushes were so spattered. Finding the deer dead I pulled her down the hill by the foreleg and dressed her. I carefully examined the throat for my standing shot, but found no mark. I returned to camp with the doe, as the boys had bogged the buck on the logging road."

"Next morning I set out with traps to place around the blood and entrails for wolf and bobcat set, going up the logging road used the previous day. Imagine my astonishment to find a big doe lying half-way down the slope with the throat cut. So, it seems, I had been shooting at two deer when all the time I supposed it to be only one. Count your shots, boys. It pays."

"We have a case here of one man who killed three deer, supposing them to be one and the same deer. Also a man with a small rifle who got three moose out of season. I am heartily supposing he had failed at the first two shots. The game warden attended to him, not because of the number, but because it was out of season."

Livery Announcement! The livery stable on Main St., Barre, formerly conducted by various parties, has been sold to Messrs. Jones & McMillan and hereafter will be improved and carried on in a modern manner.

ABOUT THE STATE

Col. Joseph Battell has closed the Broad Leaf Inn at Rippon for this season. He has moved to his rooms at Middlebury.

Ex-Congressman and Mrs. H. H. Powers celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage at their home in Morrisville Tuesday, and in the evening a reception was given at their home to their many friends.

The Hardwick lecture course is completed as follows: October 22, Russell H. Conwell lectures on "Artemus Ward"; November 11, John DeWitt Miller lectures on "The Love to Money"; December 1, concert by the College Singing Girls; December 15, the Rev. Dr. Charles L. Goodell of New York lectures on "Heroes in Homespun"; December 30, a concert by the Whitney brothers; January 12, the Rev. Dr. Samuel P. Cadman lectures on "The Puritans in Two Worlds"; February 18, a concert by the Schubert Male Quartette of Boston.

Vermont Singing Master Dead. Harvey W. Ellis, one of the oldest residents of Springfield, Mass., died at his home there October 4 at the age of 87 years. Mr. Ellis was born in Barnard April 3, 1821, and when a young man moved to Woodstock, where he established a school as a center he established singing schools in Windsor and Orange counties. He possessed a tenor voice of unusually fine quality.

At the outbreak of the Civil war Mr. Ellis went to Springfield and was engaged in the army as a polisher. At the close of the war he gave up this place and went with a manufacturing company, with which he stayed for nearly thirty years, until a few years ago when he retired. Mr. Ellis on going to Springfield gave up his musical work entirely, though instruments were often held out to him to sing.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary a few years ago. Mrs. Ellis at that time being 87 years old. She died a year ago last June. Mr. Ellis was a nature lover and since his retirement he had often taken trips of five to fifteen miles to get lessons from the fields and woods.

State Homeopathic Society Meeting. The fifty-eighth semi-annual meeting of the Vermont Homeopathic Medical Society will be held in the parlors of the Van Ness hotel, Friday afternoon, when the following program will be given, all the participants being physicians:

"Practical Suggestions Relative to the General Practitioner's Work," G. G. Hall of Woodbury; discussion, H. B. Denman of Pawlet. "Facts and Queries About Tuberculosis," T. R. Walsh of St. Albans. "Treatment of Vomiting of Pregnancy," D. C. Noble of Middlebury; discussion, E. E. Whittaker of Newport. "Samuel Hahnemann and Homeopathy," F. E. Steele of Montpelier; discussion, W. B. Mayo of Northfield. "Habitual Constipation," W. A. Hutcheon of Washington; discussion, E. B. Whitaker of Barre. "Abortion," E. B. Clift of Fair Haven; discussion, Sam Sparhawk of Burlington.

In the evening there will be a banquet, with an address on "The Scientific Basis of Homeopathy," by Dr. Royal S. Copeland of New York. The officers of the association are: President, E. L. Wyman of Manchester Center; vice-president, James Haylett of Moretown; secretary, George I. Forber of Burlington; treasurer, F. E. Steele of Montpelier.

Reputation as a Large Asset. In the annals of American business life there has been developed to a remarkable degree the question of the personal reputation and standing of the members of a concern. When it is considered that 95 per cent. of the total business of this country is done on a credit basis, the layman does not appreciate how this basis of giving credit is arrived at. For the convenience of merchants there are two large mercantile agencies in the United States whose business it is merely to report on the condition and statement of every concern of size doing business in the United States. These mercantile agencies with organizations entailing the investment of hundreds of thousands of dollars are the means of preventing a great many credit losing giving irresponsible concerns, but in all probability the most important method of giving a concern credit is on the personal reputation of the owner of the business—his family life, his standard of honor and integrity are what the average business man looks for now-a-days, and even the consumer is beginning to make his purchases more on this basis than ever before.

A concern that typifies this principle of integrity and honesty to a point unsurpassed by any other in their line is Dr. J. F. True & Co. of Auburn, Me. The founder of the business, Dr. J. F. True, passed away in 1900, after 50 years of the most continuous reputation building ever known in the annals of American pharmaceutical work. He left behind him a name-unsullied by a single blemish; he left behind him a remedy that is a standard of its kind in America. The present head of the concern, Dr. E. True, has not only maintained this splendid reputation but in addition his progressiveness, which naturally the older generation to a certain extent lacked, has built up a business beyond the wildest dream of the founder.

In the state of Maine True's Elixir is synonymous with good health. It probably can be found in the medicine chest of almost every Maine home. It is gratifying to the Journal to pay a tribute to this concern on the anniversary of their 58th year of entering the business world. We express the wish that we had a hundred more concerns in the state of Maine having an unblemished standard of honor and integrity as Dr. J. F. True & Co., producers of True's Elixir.—Leicester, Me., Journal.

GLEANINGS

Economically Thinks by Scouring Her Scalp That She Cures Dandruff. Cleanly woman has an erroneous idea that by scouring the scalp, which removes the dandruff scales, she is curing the dandruff. She may wash her scalp every day, and yet have dandruff her life long, accompanied by falling hair, too. The only way in the world to cure dandruff is to kill the dandruff germ, and there is no hair preparation that will do that but Newbro's Herpicide. Herpicide by killing the dandruff germ, leaves the hair free to grow as healthy Nature intended. Destroy the cause you remove the effect. Kill the dandruff germ with Herpicide. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

INVENTION WANTED

Things Which The Ingenious Mind Has Failed to Contain. It is agreed on all hands that invention offers one of the surest roads to fame and fortune, and one of the shortest, too. Now, there is no lack of inventive genius; there never were so many clever people in the world as there are today, but somehow their energies are not always applied in the right direction, and so they fail. It is just the old story of eyes and no eyes; you cannot see what is wanted.

There is a plumber laboriously pouring melted lead over a pipe joint and smoothing it down with a leather pad. Can you not think of a way to join those pipes cold, and to do it quickly and thoroughly? If you can there is a fortune waiting for you. And here is a man in a suit and a carpet hat endeavoring to bring in thousands, just a simple and effective means of fastening panes in window frames. Surely it is a slur on the inventive genius of the age that we should still have to resort to putty in this enlightened twentieth century. Then there is the parlor carpet. Have you ever thought what an unsightly invasion the carpet is? However diligent a housewife may be, she cannot keep it clean. The dust goes through the fibre, and the whole world of microbes are safely entrenched in its soft pile. Now just think out a cheap and sanitary covering for floors, soft and warm to the feet, and you will have need for an old-age pension.

Have you ever seen a tram driver leaning over with a long crowbar to shift the points at a junction or a man at the corner with a lever for the same purpose? Very clumsy and primitive, don't you think? Devise at plan where by the driver, by simply pressing a footplate on the car platform, might move the points whichever way he desired, and every tramway company in the country will take up your invention. Tramways suggest roads. The wealth of a Rothschild is waiting for the inventor of a satisfactory paving material. At present the rule seems to hold that what is good for the wheels is bad for the hoofs, and vice versa. That is to say, where the road is smooth and the wheels run easily there is no grip for the hoofs; nor where it is rough the vehicle is hard to drag. Then there is the motor to consider. Propelled by the back wheels, it is bound to skid if the surface be at all greasy. What is wanted is a smooth, hard, absorbent surface, with at the same time a perfect grip. If this is to hard for you, try to invent a spike that could be quickly fixed on a horse's shoes—by the driver—to give grip in time of frost.

There are scores of little things urgently wanted, which could certainly be used and for the invention of which no technical knowledge is required. One of them is a really good tin-opener, something that would cut the tin open with one round sweep, without risk of gashing the fingers or ruining the temper.

Then there is a crying need for an envelope that would contain a sending small articles through the post. There is nothing of the kind in existence, and an envelope that could not be opened without detection would be hailed with wild enthusiasm by lovers and all those whom circumstances have placed at the mercy of inquisitive landladies. The bottle that cannot be refilled is still wanted. There are several on the market, it is true, but the right one is yet to come. And how about a boot and glove fastener? Think how much time you spend in lacing your boots, and how annoying it is when the lace breaks, and you know that you have lost your morning's train in consequence of the delay caused. A neat, quick, and simple little device is wanted—something that would cost little to produce and would be easily replaced when worn out. Invent, and you are wealthy for life.—Tit-Bits.

Who Will Claim Them?

Letters remaining, uncalled for at the Barre post office for the week ending October 8, 1908, were as follows:— Men. Henry Anderson, C. Birnie, 2. Martina Bianchi, Giuseppe Bugnoli, I. E. Brown, 2. Frank Cote, 2. T. Croe, James M. Cameron, Giuseppe DeMaio, G. E. Tinney, A. K. Inglis, Adolphe Jacques, M. J. Kernis, H. Little Co., Hedrick Massi, Pearl Pittsley, Mr. Plummer, W. B. Shuman, E. A. Very Evative. Impatient American (after an hour's pause)—Say, guv'ny, what in thunder are we waiting for? What time do we pull out, anyway? Guard (who has survived two generations of hustlers)—That all depends, sir. American—Depends on what? Guard (judiciously)—Ah, sir, that again depends!—Punch.

Would Mortgage the Farm. A farmer on rural route 8, Empire, Ga., W. A. Floyd by name, says: "Ducken's Arnie's Sausc cured the two worst sores I ever saw; one on my hand and one on my leg. It is worth more than its weight in gold. I would not be without it. If I had to mortgage the farm to get it." Only 25c. at Red Cross Pharmacy, Rickett & Wells' drug store.

GIVING HER DEFENCES.

Hub—But if you like the young fellow, Kate, why do you object to our daughter marrying him? Wife—Oh, she'll marry him for all that; but I want to give her a chance to say, when they quarrel, that "Mother didn't want me to marry you, anyway."—Boston Transcript.

Better and Worse. "How's yer husband arter the accident, Mrs. Glinnery?" "Faith, sometimes he's better an' sometimes he's worse, but from the way he swears and yells an' takes on vain he's better, O' think he's better when he's worse."—Puck.
