AMUSEMENT NOTES

"The Lion and the Mouse" at Barre Opera House Thursday Night.

"The Lion and the Mouse," a play of American life, by Charles Klein, which has scored one of the greatest triumphs ever known in the American drama, will be presented here again in this city by Henry B. Harris on Thursday, November 12th.

The dominant personages in "The Lion and the Mouse," are John Burdett Ryder, known as "Ready Money" Ryder in the financial world, in which he is the acknowledged leader, and Shirley Rosemore, who, in his official capacity, has given a ruling adverse to the interests of the financial coterie of which Ryer is the head. In retaliation the magnate, with the aid of corrupt politicians, causes Judge Rosemore's temporary suspension from the bench, pending investigations into alleged fraudulent practices. Under an assumed name, Shirley Rosemore becomes an inmate of the house of John Burdett Ryder and giving the writing of his biography as an excuse, she tries, with the aid of his own son, to free the man whom Ryder is trying to impeach. When it is finally discovered that she, herself, is the daughter of this man, Ryder orders her from the house. The scene which follows this is unanimously and justly conceded to be one of the greatest ever written into a drama.

The Liens That Stopped a Railroad.

"Our work was soon interrupted in a rude and startling manner. Two most vexatious and insatiable man-eating lions appeared upon the scene, and for over nine months waged an intermittent warfare against the railway and all those connected with it in the vicinity of Tsavo. This culminated in a perfect reign of terror in December, 1908, when they actually succeeded in bringing the railway works to a complete standstill for about three weeks. As time went on, they stopped at nothing and indeed braved any danger to obtain their favorite food."

WOULD MAKE NEBRASKA DRY.

Gov. Sheldon Seeks Support for a Prohibitory Law.—To Call Special Session.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 9.—Gov. Sheldon is sending out telegrams to all members of the present state legislature, asking them if they will support a bill of statewide prohibition, which may be suspended in any county by a three-fifths vote, if a majority in both houses pledge themselves. A special session will be called within ten days.

At the late state election the liquor interests combined to beat Sheldon for reelection, besides aiding in getting a democratic legislature pledged to let liquor legislation alone.

Aims Blow at Divorce Evil.

New York, Nov. 9.—A cable despatch from Rome, printed today in the Sun, is of great interest, as showing the determination of the Catholic church to give every protection to the sacrament of matrimony.

The cable reads as follows: "The holy office has decided that Christian burial shall be refused to Catholics who are married to non-Catholics by non-Catholic clergymen."

To students of church affairs this gives additional proof that the Catholic church will do all in its power to check the divorce evil.

CURRENT COMMENT

Speaker Cheney.

Speaker T. C. Cheney showed that he was not only able to inspire the House of Representatives to two remarkable votes for honesty in the discharge of its duty, but was able to "deliver the goods" by keeping the members honestly at work. There were 292 legislators present at yesterday's roll call, 80 more than were technically necessary for a quorum. This seems to be a pretty final answer to the cry that the speaker's crusade against loafing at the state's expense would not amount to anything. It has established a precedent that means business and business methods mean state prosperity.—Rutland Herald.

Favors Tilden Bill.

On the whole The News is inclined to favor the measure introduced by Representative Tilden of Barre, for the election of liquor license commissioners by towns which vote license. The liquor traffic is now under a local option law and the responsibility is not to be divided between a town and the state. Undoubtedly there would be abuses under the proposed measure but as The News is inclined to view it, they would not be likely to be as great as under a state commission, while the opportunity of correcting such abuses would be much better. Under a state commission the chances would be that local politicians would control the granting of licenses largely and there would be small opportunity for the voters to redress any wrongs arising therefrom.—Northfield News.

Things to Be Thankful For.

Now, we're all ready for Governor Prouty's proclamation making Thursday, the 26th, Turkey day and a day of general rejoicing. This is Thanksgiving month, the month agreed to pumpkin pie and roast turkeys, with cranberry sauce fixings. Have we not all something to give thanks for? On the whole it has been a good year. Our barns and storehouses are well filled. We have cozy, comfortable homes, and the dear faces surround the evening lamp while the log crackles and sputters on the hearth. Some of us may be light in pocket, but there is no reason why we should not all be light in heart. If we have done some soul a kindness, and helped some stumbling burden-bearer over a hard place, we are certain to have singing in our hearts which makes us think of the angel chorus.—St. Johnsbury Republican.

In New Hampshire.

The election of a Republican legislature or a majority, however small, serves partisan purposes equally well in New Hampshire. The indorsement given to Mr. Carr by the independent voters of the state emphasizes the responsibility that will rest upon the Republican governor-elect and upon the legislature for the enactment of the reforms which were promised in the Republican state platform. To these independent forces is due the credit for securing the promise of reform. The question of performance is a matter between the newly elected state government and the voters of New Hampshire. The principles at issue have been confirmed. Party loyalty in a presidential election has given the Republican state organization two years of grace. The people can hold it to a strict accounting for the fulfillment of its promises if they will take the trouble.—Boston Herald.

The $25,000 Appropriation.

The appropriation for the tercentenary celebration of the discovery of Lake Champlain has been the subject of a great amount of discussion at the State House of late. In view of the fact that a large amount of work has already been done by the members of the commission and that New York, Canada and the federal government are following out some of the suggestions of Vermont with reference to the proposed celebration, it is Vermont's duty to do its share in seeing the celebration through. The question of cutting down the appropriation from $25,000 to $20,000 and other amendments proposed by the committee on appropriations were up in the House for discussion on Wednesday afternoon. Mr. DeBoer of Montpelier hit the nail on the head, in opposing the amendment, when he remarked that the $5,000 defined the quality of the commission. All the amendments were killed by a heavy vote, more than three to one, which would indicate that Vermont intends to do the thing well.—Montpelier Journal.

Beauty Spots in Vermont.

It would be difficult to convince a resident of Bennington county that more beautiful scenery and more of it exists anywhere in the state. The Bennington valleys between the densely wooded mountains, the numerous brooks, that constitute the tributaries of the Hattenkill, the Wallouane and the Hoosac rivers and the cleared areas of the mill farms make up a kaleidoscope of changes which is at all seasons of the year a most interesting sight. In only one respect must this southwest corner of the state concede to other parts of the state, and that is in the process of world-making, and that the omission of any considerable body of water. Lake Hancock in Stamford, Lake Parson in Bennington and Emerald lake in Dorset, these small ponds, constitute nearly all the beautiful water in the county and the first is nearly inaccessible. With a Bennington, a Danmore or a Willoughby, with Mt. Anthony, Bald Mountain or Equinox in the background, the scenic attractions of Bennington county would be incomparable. In several localities in the state artificial additions to the number of existing lakes and ponds are being created. A short time ago the Lamolle river was spread over a large surface between Morrisville and Hyde Park by the erection of a large power dam. The big electrical plant being constructed at South Verdon will set back the Connecticut for a number of miles. At Cavendish gorge a big concrete dam has re-created an ancient lake and proposed power works at Sharon will add attractive sheets of water to the White river valley. With the large number of established manufacturing industries in Bennington it is to be regretted that there is not in this locality an opportunity for the erection of a large electrical plant which would furnish a more economical power than steam and provide those opportunities for recreation which are so abundant in many parts of the state.—Bennington Register.

HOW CAN WE USE ROCKEFELLER. Almost Any of Our Thousands of Rich Men Would Gladly Serve as an Organizer, Without Salary. Let us have some one blessed thing done in this country on some other basis than that of dollars. But at present we seem always to get held of all these matters by the wrong end. We have some thousands of rich men that are willing to endow universities and found libraries and establish philanthropies, but we do not seem to have any that are willing to serve the community by doing anything the community wants to have done. And this is the more lamentable because some of our rich men have shown in the amassing of their fortunes a considerable endowment of the very qualities that society most has need of. Take organization, for instance. The principal lack in our municipal affairs is, after all, not so much a lack of honesty as of organization. In all our great cities, but particularly in New York, there is no discernible plan about any known thing, but we get on by sheer man strength and stupidity. Suppose we could utilize the talent for organization that Mr. Rockefeller possesses, or Mr. Carnegie. Nobody has ever stolen much from Mr. Rockefeller; he organized a system to prevent stealing. Nobody has wasted much of his time, and no part of the work he wanted to have done has been spoiled for want of coherency and design. He has never allowed anything to go to waste about his shop, and his enterprises have never been encumbered with useless material and useless men. But he has had no monopoly of this order of talent; thousands of other men have been at least as liberally gifted. Under our present organization of society it is impossible for us to make anything like a full use of such ability, but at least we can get some of it, if only we can get the idea started that disinterested service for the common good is an honor and a privilege.—Charles Edward Russell, in the November Everybody's.
