KELLOGG SCARES JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER
 In Cross Examination at Oil Inquiry

OIL KING'S MEMORY BAD
 Admits that $50,000,000 Was Original Capitalization and 1907 Surplus Was $40,000,000 After Equal Sum Paid in Dividends.

New York, Nov. 20.—After two days of general reminiscences related under the leadership of friendly counsel, John D. Rockefeller was turned over yesterday to the sharp cross-questioning of the government prosecutor, Frank B. Kellogg. There were many differences in the general aspect of the testimony as a consequence.

For one thing, the benevolence of the Standard Oil company was put more in the background. For another, the rebates which Mr. Rockefeller explained away Thursday, stood out rather sharply under Mr. Kellogg's snappy, persistent queries. In addition, the tremendous hazards of the oil business, which Mr. Rockefeller described vividly Thursday, were somewhat discounted by the enormous and stable profits, the figures of which Mr. Kellogg wrung from Mr. Rockefeller's lips one by one.

But it was the difference in Mr. Rockefeller's memory which stood out most sharply between Thursday and yesterday. In response to his own counsel, Mr. Rockefeller showed an amazing grasp of the minute details of Standard Oil transactions of thirty and forty years ago. Yesterday, the animated Mr. Kellogg, turning, twisting and repeating his questions with persistence and ingenuity, found himself hopelessly blocked, time and again.

"Mr. Kellogg, it is quite impossible for me after thirty-five years," Mr. Rockefeller would begin, quietly and politely. Whereupon Mr. Kellogg would attack again, asking a rapid-fire series of questions in an endeavor to get behind Mr. Rockefeller's blank wall. "It may be," "Perhaps," "That is very likely true," Mr. Rockefeller would agree amiably. But when the questions came back to the real issue, Mr. Rockefeller would be as imperturbable as ever.

"Ah, but I was engaged in more important matters then—I do not recall," he would reiterate.

"Do you consider a business hazardous which on an original investment of $50,000,000 pays dividends of $30,000,000 and has a surplus left of $30,000,000?" asked Mr. Kellogg.

"The oil king hesitated, while the spectators wondered how he would get out of that situation. Finally he replied: "I do not consider the amount of money made determines whether the business is hazardous or not."

Mr. Rockefeller raised a hearty laugh is too high in quality to compete in price. It's too good to be wasted on Bread and Biscuits not demanding the very best baking results. Its greater economy is proven in the first loaf you bake.

with one little jest. It was when Mr. Kellogg was struggling to bring out the enormous profits of the Standard Oil company. A few extra millions were mentioned and assented to by the witness.

"Ah, yes—a little more for the poor old Standard Oil," said Mr. Rockefeller plaintively. And everybody roared, while the witness looked up with a quizzical smile.

Later Mr. Rockefeller put in his first religious remark. His voice has a distinctly ministerial intonation and the words fitted the utterance perfectly. Mr. Kellogg was remarking sarcastically that Mr. Rockefeller had waited up for a good many years without finding the oil supply exhausted.

"And we were grateful for it," shot back Mr. Rockefeller in a pious tone, but with the suspicion of a smile on his face.

Counsel for the defense raised the objection that had been expected in view of their abrupt termination of their direct examination Thursday when the year 1879 was reached. They objected to all questions put by Mr. Kellogg relating to later transactions as not proper cross-examination.

Mr. Kellogg said the cross-examination would not be confined to the period between 1862 and 1882, concerning which Mr. Rockefeller gave evidence on his direct examination, but would cover also subsequent developments which were connected directly with those of the period described by Mr. Rockefeller.

In response to questions about the hazardous nature of the oil business, owing to the possibility of failure of supply, Mr. Rockefeller said that the production of crude oil in the Pennsylvania field had steadily increased from 1862 to 1900. Mr. Kellogg read figures from an official report showing that the Pennsylvania field reached its highest point of production in 1900. Mr. Rockefeller denied that the supply of crude oil had always been ample and asserted that it had fluctuated, but that the supply is larger now than when he was actively engaged in business.

He was asked about the development of oil fields in Ohio and Oklahoma, and said that he knew little about them, as they had been actively worked since he retired from the business. He described the drilling and production of oil as of the character of a mining business. He said that it was the policy of the company to pay for its oil at the wells and that the larger part of the oil it refined was purchased from the producer.

"You have been prosperous since the beginning," asked Mr. Kellogg.

"Yes."

"Do you consider a business hazardous that, on an original investment of $50,000,000 paid dividends amounting to $30,000,000, and had left a surplus of $30,000,000?"

"I do not consider that the amount of money made determines whether the business is hazardous or not," said Mr. Rockefeller. He was asked about the trust agreement of 1882 and whether the trust certificates did not show a value of $70,000,000 and that the stocks held under the agreement had an actual value of $5,710,000. Mr. Rockefeller said he believed those figures to be correct.

Mr. Kellogg then asked whether the stock certificates issued thereafter were for stock dividends or for additional properties acquired, but John G. Milburn, oil Rockefeller's counsel, objected on the ground that this was not within the scope of Mr. Rockefeller's direct testimony. Mr. Rockefeller replied: "I suppose so."

After Mr. Milburn had again objected, Mr. Rockefeller said that a stock dividend of $18,000,000 was paid in 1886 and that the stock of the company was then $98,320,000.

"Then up to the present time there has been issued $13,110,000 for cash or property," asked Mr. Kellogg.

"I cannot tell."

"Well, that would make the total value of cash and property turned in, exclusive of money earned and turned back into property, $115,210,000," Mr. Rockefeller said he did not quite comprehend the increase of $13,000,000 and Mr. Kellogg then asked: "The record shows that up to 1906, the net earnings of the company were $881,922,904. What was the dividend in 1907?"

"I should say about 48 per cent."

"That would be $39,000,000," Mr. Kellogg said.

"That would be a million in favor of the poor old Standard," said Mr. Rockefeller.

Profits Do Not Determine Hazards.

He added that the net earnings for 1907 were approximately $50,000,000. Mr. Kellogg again asked if he considered the business hazardous on such a showing and Mr. Rockefeller again retorted that the profits did not determine the risk. It was evidence that the business was prosperous. He assented to Mr. Kellogg's figures showing that the company earned $460,000,000 from 1860 to 1906. Adding the earnings of 1907 would give total earnings of $570,000,000.

"Where does the hazard of the business come in?" asked Mr. Kellogg.

"In the first place since the first refinery was built more than 50 years ago we have been prepared at any moment, day or night, to hear the fire alarm. We are dealing with a very explosive product. Fires are constantly occurring."

"But your profits were above your fire losses which have been charged to profit and loss account?"

"Yes, sir."

Mr. Rockefeller said another risk was the peculiar construction of refining machinery, which could be used for no other purposes.

Mr. Kellogg asked Mr. Rockefeller about the Standard Oil agreement with the Pennsylvania railroad in 1877, in which the Pennsylvania agreed to pay back 10 per cent. of the freight rates which the Standard paid. The witness said this agreement lowered the rate was between the Northern and Southern lines and that there was an agreement whereby he was to equalize the amount of freight distributed between the different railroads.

Mr. Kellogg read the agreement which showed that it provided that the Standard Oil company was to ship 2,000,000 barrels of oil a year. When the government counsel asked if the other railroads besides the Pennsylvania make a like agreement for a 10 per cent. rebate, Mr. Rockefeller referred him to the men who made the negotiations.

AFRAID TO EAT MEAT?
 Give Your Stomach a Good Eat Without Fear

STOPS FOOD FERMENTING
 Let Diapiesin Digest Your Meals Until Your Stomach Gets Strong—Eat Your Favorite Foods Without Feeling Miserable.

As there is often some one in your family who suffers an attack of indigestion or some form of stomach trouble, why don't you keep a case of Diapiesin in the house handy?

This harmless blessing will digest anything you can eat without the slightest discomfort, and regulate a sour stomach five minutes after.

Tell your pharmacist to let you read the formula plainly printed on these 80 cent cases of Paps's Diapiesin, then you will readily see why they cure indigestion, sour stomach, heart burn and prevent at once such miseries as belching of gas, eructations of sour undigested food, nausea, headaches, dizziness, constipation and other stomach disorders.

Some folks have tried so long to find relief from indigestion with the common every day cures advertised that they have about men's up their minds that they have something else wrong, or believe there is a case of nervousness, gastritis, start of the stomach or worse.

This is a serious mistake. Your real trouble is, what you eat does not digest; instead, it ferments and sours, turns to acid, gas and stomach poisons, which will putrefy in the entire digestive tract and intestines, and besides, poison the breath with nauseous odors.

A hearty appetite with thorough digestion, and without the slightest discomfort or misery of the stomach, is waiting for you as soon as you decide to try Paps's Diapiesin.

One candy-like triangle, taken after eating, will promptly digest all your food, the same as a strong, healthy stomach would do it.

NO ONE ASKED TO CABINET
 President-Elect Won't Decide for Some Time

PLANS FOR THANKSGIVING
 In Reply to Rumor That F. B. Kellogg Had Been Asked to Become Attorney General, Taft Declares He Has Not Yet Asked Anyone.

Hot Springs, Va., Nov. 21.—Quiet settled on the politics of the Springs this morning for one day. Congressman Theodore Burton will see Mr. Taft again today and the House organization will be discussed in detail.

Chairman Frank H. Hitchcock of the national committee will be here next Tuesday.

Mr. Taft, in reply to a statement from St. Paul that Frank B. Kellogg had been asked to become his attorney general said: "I have not yet asked any one to enter my cabinet. I expect to get to that some time this winter."

Senator Nathan Bay Scott of West Virginia saw the president-elect yesterday morning and came from the interview in a glow of enthusiasm.

"We are going to have great prosperity under Mr. Taft's administration," he said. "I wish every business man could know him personally. His honesty, earnestness and ability to perceive the right, impress every one who talk with him."

Charles F. Brooker, national committeeman from Connecticut, Herbert Parsons of New York and Timothy Woodruff are coming. Tim will be here about Thanksgiving. Mr. Woodruff himself suggested the visit. Melville K. Ingalls has reopened his cottage and on Thanksgiving day the Taft family will hold a reunion there. The Henry W. Tafts and C. E. Tafts, as well as the president-elect's children, are coming. A daughter of C. P. Taft married Albert, the son of M. E. Ingalls. The gathering will be entirely a family one.

DON'T BLAME HER

For she cannot help it. Women are often cross, irritable, hysterical, and declare they are driven to distraction at the slightest provocation.

Men cannot understand why this should be so. To them it is a mystery because in nine times out of ten this condition is caused by a serious feminine derangement.

A remedy is necessary which acts directly upon the organs afflicted, restoring a healthy normal condition to the feminine system, which will quickly dispel all hysterical, nervous and irritable conditions. Such is LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

The following letter serves to prove this fact.

Mrs. Mattie Copenhaver, 315 So. 21st St., Parsons, Kans., writes: "For two years I suffered from the worst form of feminine illa, until I was almost driven frantic. Nothing but morphine would relieve me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought me health and happiness and made me a well woman."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.
 For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female illa, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

who had really distinguished themselves in war as ours have done, well, it would mean more real character and manliness."

TRAIN HITS HANDCAR; SEVEN INSTANTLY KILLED
 Chicago Suburban Express Strikes Party of Section. Hands.

Chicago, Nov. 21.—Seven section men employed by the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railway company were killed yesterday when a hand car on which they were riding was struck by a suburban express at Highlands, a station seventeen miles west of Chicago. The train which struck the hand car was running at a high speed on a light down grade between Highlands and Highlands.

Officers of the railway company said later that the accident was due to a mistake on the part of the men operating the hand car, which was on the wrong track. The crash as the engine met the frail hand car brought the passengers to their feet and a few seconds later when the train was brought to a sudden stop they poured out upon the track to assist in drawing the bodies from beneath the trucks of the cars.

LADY AUCKLAND WILL WRITE ABOUT GOTHAM
 She'll Let Its People See "Just How Funny They Are."

New York, Nov. 21.—"Six Weeks in New York," is the title of a stirring novel, in which Lady Auckland announces she will show up New York people that they may see themselves as others do, and see just how funny they are.

Lady Auckland has a highly developed sense of humor, for an Englishwoman, her friends say. "Well, it is true that I have been greatly amused these six weeks I have spent in New York," she declared to a reporter. She also confided her plans for writing "one of the smart books of the year," as she terms it.

Lady Auckland sailed for London on the Celtic yesterday. She is a clever caricaturist, and whenever an unusually funny circumstance of American life has appealed to her sense of humor she has made a hurried sketch of it.

"New York women need to know lots of things," she says. "I was walking down Fifth avenue with a New York society girl. She walked with a stride and swung her arms until she resembled a windmill. I finally asked her if she would not please walk with her feet instead of her arms. That may be the style here, but I do not admire it."

Then Lady Auckland took a rap at New York men.

"Your men lack what shall I say! Rummy; yes, that's it. They are too rummy-pummy. Our men are fine specimens of manly men. Well, I guess that comes from fighting, don't you think so. If the New York men had more fighting ancestors back of them,

STORMS UPSET PLANS OF FLEET
 Only One Day of Shore Liberty For Battleship Crews at Manila Probable.

Manila, Nov. 21.—Owing to five days of storm and rain it will be impossible for the Atlantic battleship fleet to complete its program of manoeuvres before Nov. 29, and this will probably limit the liberty of the ship crews to one day.

Manila is bitterly disappointed, for plans had been made for a great reception for officers and men. The Filipinos appear to fail to understand the situation and cannot comprehend the navy's apparent indifference to the hospitality which has been so lavishly extended by the city.

CATCH 11 CHILDREN THROWN INTO STREET
 Police Improve Nets With Their Overcoats During a Fire—Boy Burned to Death.

New York, Nov. 21.—One boy lost his life in a fire at Havemeyer and South First streets, Williamsburg, early yesterday, and another is believed to have been fatally injured. Greater loss of life was prevented by the heroism and quick wit of the police.

Some of the blue coats carried out a number of tenants in the nick of time, while others improvised nets out of their great coats and caught children which were dropped to them from the upper floors. Eleven children were rescued in this way. Green poroses leaped from the windows after throwing out their children, but they were all safely caught.

David Corcoran is the boy who lost his life, while his brother Thomas is the one believed to have been fatally burned. They lived on the third floor. The building was a three-story frame tenement. The fire broke out at 1:45 o'clock. There was some suspicion that it was of incendiary origin. It spread very rapidly up through the building, giving the occupants little time to think what to do.

The police showed no hesitancy in venturing into the burning tenement. One of them, Fagan, was overcome in trying to reach a woman and her child on the third floor. Policeman Boyle then carried out both the woman and child and also his fellow-policeman, Boyie then went back and rescued others.

In the meantime the other policemen tied their coats together into lifelines and shouted to the women to drop their children. Before the great coats were spread, Policeman Smith caught one child which a mother threw from the third story into his arms.

The police saved the lives of 30 persons.

STRAUS MAKES EPIGRAM.

"Public Office Is Not a Private Franchise."

Washington, Nov. 21.—When Secretary Straus of the department of commerce and labor was asked yesterday at the White House just before the cabinet meeting, if he contemplated a "shaking up" among the officials of the immigration service at New York, he replied that an improvement of the service was in contemplation. "Public office is not a private franchise, as I myself will soon learn," said the secretary as he disappeared into the cabinet room.

ARTISTS WHO HAD BEEN SKETCHING HIM TO LET HIM SEE THE PICTURE.

"I wish I had your talent," said the richest man in the world, gazing earnestly at the portrait of a man showing and "I wish I had yours," quickly responded the artist.

Mr. Rockefeller laughed heartily and extended his hand, which the artist shook, the Standard Oil man saying, "We ought to pool issues."

SOUGHT WHAT ALL SHIPPERS SEEK.

Asked whether the Standard Oil company was to get the rebate, the witness said that the greater volume of business given by the Standard was in part responsible for the rebate and that in those days it was the custom for large shippers to receive consideration.

"We sought to secure what all shippers then and now seek," said Mr. Rockefeller. He did not recall what Daniel O'Day's connection with this matter was, but said Mr. O'Day was general manager of the Columbia Conduit company, which was purchased by the Standard in 1877.

Mr. Kellogg then read letters of Mr. O'Day to Mr. Cassatt of the Pennsylvania railroad, in which it was stated that the American Transfer company received a rebate of 20 cents a barrel from the Lake Shore road, and it was requested that the Pennsylvania give the same rebate. It is shown by the letters that they were granted.

"Don't you know that Mr. O'Day said Mr. Cassatt both testified that the American Transfer company—the Standard Oil company—was not only paid a rebate of 20 cents a barrel on its own shipments, but a rebate on the shipment of oil by independent refiners?" asked Mr. Kellogg.

"My attention has been called to such testimony," said Mr. Rockefeller.

Mr. Rockefeller said that he was president of the Standard and had general direction of it at that time.

"Did you know of the contract whereby the Standard was to obtain 20 cents a barrel in rebate on outside shipments?"

"I may have known of it generally at the time," he had nothing to do with the contract. The witness said he could not recall whether Mr. Cassatt had testified that these rebates were given. His mind, he said, was engaged in more important problems.

Recess was then taken for luncheon. During the noonday intermission Mr. Rockefeller took to ask the newspaper reporters for printing his maxims on the eave of the stadium.

"Don't you hope that you have violated my confidence?" he asked with a quizzical smile. "I meant the information for your special benefit, but I suppose the advice is good for everybody, so I don't care very much."

Mr. Rockefeller then asked one of the

RODE THE GOAT.
 Nebraska's Governor-elect Nurses Broken Ankle.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 21.—Ashton C. Shallenberger, Nebraska's Democratic governor-elect, is under a surgeon's care as a result of severe injuries sustained Thursday night during a Shriners' institution.

Shallenberger was a member of class 20 of the novitiates. While crossing the "burning sands" with Shriners' goat the governor-elect was propelled down an inclined plane, landing at the bottom with a severe injury of the ankle that threatens a month's use of crutches. He is suffering from a broken fibula.
