The frame is the new style tubular, designed for strength and lightness. The cover is splendid and fine, of a piece dyed taffeta, with a nicely finished tape edge, in fact it's an Umbrella no one need be ashamed to carry, and for Saturday you save 21c on each. JAPANESE SCHOOLGIRLS' WORK.
The Rules of the Tea Ceremony and the Feast of the Dolls.
"There is a new woman in Japan," says Miss Alice M. Bacon, for many years head mistress of the Persees School in Tokyo, "and she is the problem of the day in Japan. Girls are coming into the cities from the whole country to go to school, and it is a problem to know what to do with them. They know only the old system, and their parents know only that, but they feel the pulse of the new life and they cannot be held back."
"It is rather pathetic that the Japanese girls know so well that her school days are her happiest days. She never plans the gay, happy years 'when I'm grown up.' Instead she takes all her little school girl pleasures with the full consciousness that when they are over there will come a time when devotion to duty will be almost the only pleasure in life for her. She knows that after her school days the mother-in-law's house waits for her, and that there in the lowest place in a stranger's house she will have to work patiently her way up to the respect and good will of a strange family."
"The little daughter of a wealthy house goes to school from six to seventeen. She learns reading, writing, natural science, English, the koto, sewing, cooking and the tea ceremony."
"The rules of the tea ceremony were fixed about the time the Spanish Armada was besieging Elizabeth. Every movement of the woman, every position of cup, spoon, tea caddy, towel, is prescribed."
"To a foreigner Japanese sewing seems so extremely simple that it would hardly seem necessary to study it, but the Japanese girl applies herself to it with the knowledge that in the future the appearance of her children, her husband, her mother-in-law and her father-in-law will all be set down to her credit or discredit."
"She learns to cook sufficiently to direct her servants, particularly in the line of rice and pickles."
"The daughter of the house must learn to arrange the flowers not only artistically but so that they will bear that wealth of symbolism found in every Japanese grouping of flowers."
"The feast of the dolls is the quaintest of all the little Japanese girls' festivals. In the storehouse where are kept all the family treasures there are boxes filled with dolls which have come down from the grandmothers and great-grandmothers. Each new bride brings her dolls when she comes to her father-in-law's house, and she keeps the feast each year until her eldest daughter is old enough to take it up."—London Daily News.

A horse driven by Victor Sorelli of Montpelier took it into his head to do things yesterday and gave an excellent all-around exhibition of general carelessness, from the corner of North Main and Prospect streets to the end of Brooklyn street. The horse took fright at something at the corner and bolted up Prospect street, jumping from side to side of the street. The driver was thrown out, as the horse turned into Brooklyn street, and was dragged for a considerable distance. The horse stopped at the end of Brooklyn street with no real damage, except a scratched saddle, owing to the vehicle being over-turped in the ruck.
The sale held under the auspices of the Ladies Guild in the vestry of the Church of the Good Shepherd was well attended last evening. A fine lot of fancy articles, aprons, foods and candies which the ladies have for sale found many customers. During the evening an enjoyable entertainment was given as follows: selections by Gilbertson's orchestra, a song "Our Dearest Dollies" by seven young girls, Rosabel Shannon, Evelyn Gilbertson, Evaline Shields, Gladys and Bertha Dale, Isabelle and Muriel Beattie; duet, "Tommy," by Hudson Beattie and Evaline Gilbertson. The sale will be continued this evening and another pleasing program has been arranged.
The Spaulding academic seniors lost their first game in the interclass basketball series yesterday afternoon, going down before the juniors in a fast, clean game by the score of 18 to 16. The star players in the game were Maiden for the juniors and Averill for the seniors, the former scoring twelve of his team's 18 points and the latter making thirteen points for the seniors. In the second game of the afternoon, the mid-levels defeated the sub-juniors by the score of 25 to 19. At the close of the first period the sub-juniors were ahead, but the mid-levels came back strong and ran away with the game, before dropping in three baskets and Beattie too in the second half. Grigg was the best scorer for the winners, getting six baskets, while Lo-Prest tallied all but four of the points won by his team.

HARDWICK MAN ARRESTED.
Charged With Sending Obscene Matter Through Mails.
Rutland, Dec. 10.—An entry has just been made on the docket at the office of the United States marshal in this city which shows an arrest of unusual interest because of the conditions under which it occurred. The respondent is Lynn C. Fuller of Hardwick and he was taken into custody by Anthony Comstock of New York, widely known for his work in suppressing obscene literature, who was specially deputized by Marshal Horace W. Bailey to make the arrest. Mr. Comstock lost no time on his visit to Vermont. He arrived at St. Johnsbury from New York on a night train, obtained from Commissioner Harry Hodgegett two warrants for Fuller, went to Hardwick, got his man and was off for New York again the next evening.
The charges against Fuller are for immoral purposes and using the American Express company (a common carrier) for transporting obscene literature. The man is now in jail at St. Johnsbury in default of $1,000 bail on each charge.
It is charged that Fuller advertised immoral pictures for sale and fell into a trap set for him by Mr. Comstock by shipping them by express.

BE CAREFUL WHAT YOU SHOOT.
When in Doubt Shoot, as Deer and Man Do Not Look Alike.
The text of this brief sermon addressed to all who propose going afield after game, big or small, is this: Don't leave your common sense at home when you set out for the hunting ground. And as an opening remark, don't fail to cut this article out and take it with you.
For fear that you might not see the force of which opening, just listen to this: The writer forgathered lately with a gentleman from one of the large cities, who is, by way of thinking, himself a fair woodsman and is certainly reputed a hunter of class. He delivered himself as follows apropos of the rudimentary principles of all hunting, viz: "Don't shoot until you know what you are shooting at."
"I was up in North Minnesota deer hunting last fall, and got a lesson I won't forget. Just learned how easily a man who is sure he knows better can do worse and not half try. On my way up I picked up a copy of the St. Paul Pioneer Press containing a reprinted article from the New York Times, which interested me greatly, though I never then dreamed that it was to be the means of averting a tragedy. One rule it laid down was when in doubt of the identity of anything looking like a deer, but to which as deer you could not swear, to 'holer.' "Now I thought that any fool ought to know that, but smart as I followed, I secured quarters with a 'Winchester' farmer I knew and the morning after reaching his place set out by my lonesome. He told me that a moose or two were loose, and when I glimpsed the unmistakable coat of the big moose through some thick brush perhaps two hundred yards from where I was creating a thick place of timber, I threw my rifle to my shoulder and drew a bead on Mr. Moose. "But I did not pull the trigger. Into my mind came the printed warning, and although I was not in doubt a little bit, I yelled. An answer came back instantly and a moment later my host stepped into view and came toward me. And I sat down on a log with ice water pouring out of every pore—and a lot more going to prove that an experienced hunter had left his common sense at home, and no fault of his own had escaped the guilt of blood.
Take your common sense with you when you go to hunt. It will teach you that there is no resemblance between a man and a deer or bear, and will force you when in doubt to 'holer' and keep on 'holing' until you get an answer or see the suspicious object run.
Don't leave your common sense at home. If you take it with you it will interfere and step you every time you start to drag a gun out of or through anything by the barrel with the muzzle pointing straight at your body or head. That is the method of suicide, self-mutilation, or man-slaughter most favored of gentlemen users of the shotgun, although some do either or all of those acts in a similar manner with the rifle.
Use a hammerless, do you? And to you can drag your gun any old way and still be safe, can you? Friend, there never was, and never will be, any kind of loaded gun that was or could be safe while its muzzle was pointed at a human being. Give your common sense half a chance and nobody will need to tell you that. If you are going to leave anything at home, give automatic guns and whiskey the preference, but take your common sense along every time.
The killed and wounded during the open season for deer in the three states of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan alone would make a very bad second to the performance of the railroads in that line during the same length of time, and nine out of ten of every deplorable happening of them all happened because some man went hunting and left his common sense at home.
Take your common sense with you. It will teach you that under no circumstances must you carry a loaded gun, particularly a loaded rifle, into house or camp. It will show you the criminal folly of shooting at rabbits, squirrels, or birds with cartridges from rifles which will propel a bullet two miles, especially when the chances are strongly in favor of your hitting anything in the wide world except the mark you are aiming at.
It will call your attention to the fact that you came out for a hunt and not a drunk, and that the less liquor in the party the better the party's chances of a pleasant time and successful hunting. It will force you to be especially in mind the fact that you are not a kid, and so responsible for nothing, but a man who knows himself responsible to God and man for his actions, and who intends to act as one who fully realizes his responsibility.
Now before you forget it, cut this out, take it with you, and read it over each day while you are out. If you do, Sir Common Sense will be of the party—and the most honored member thereof.—New York Times.
