COLIC IN HORSES.
Causes, Symptoms and the Common Method of Treatment.
It is more or less common on farms having a considerable number of horses to each year have one or more cases among them of flatulent colic. More especially is this true where horses are being fitted for the market, necessitating heavy grain feeding.

In a work issued by the United States department of agriculture, entitled "Diseases of the Horse," this subject is discussed in detail, in which are given the causes, symptoms and the common methods of treatment. It is pointed out that among the most frequent causes of this form of colic are to be mentioned sudden changes of food, too long fasting, food given while the animal is exhausted, new hay or grain, large quantities of green food, food that has lain in the manger for some time and become sour, indigestible food, irregular teeth, crib biting, and, in fact, anything that produces indigestion may cause flatulent colic.

The symptoms of wind colic are not so suddenly developed, not so severe as those of cramp colic. At first the horse is noticed to be dull, paw slightly and may or may not lie down. The reins from the start are continuous. The belly enlarges, and by striking it in front of the hanches a drum-like sound results. If not soon relieved the above symptoms are aggravated, and in addition there are noticed difficult breathing, bloodshot eyes and red mucous membranes, loud, tumultuous heart beat, profuse perspiration, trembling of the front legs, sighing respiration, staggering from side to side and finally plunging forward dead. The diagnostic symptoms of flatulent colic are the distention of the bowels with gas, detected by the bloated appearance and resonance on percussion.

The treatment for wind colic differs very materially from that of cramp colic. Absorbents are of some service, and charcoal may be given in any quantity. Relaxants are also beneficial in this form of colic. Chlorhydrate not only possesses this quality, but it is also a pain reliever. It is then particularly well adapted to the treatment of wind colic and should be given in one ounce doses in a pint of water. Diluted alcohol or whisky may be given or aromatic spirits of ammonia in one ounce doses at short intervals. A physic should always be given in flatulent colic as early as possible, the best being one ounce doses of Barbados aloes. Injections, per rectum, of turpentine, one to two ounces; linseed oil, eight ounces, may be given frequently to stimulate the peristaltic motion of the bowels and favor the escape of wind. Blankets wrung out of hot water do much to afford relief. They should be renewed every five or ten minutes and covered with a dry woolen blanket. This form of colic is much more fatal than cramp colic and requires prompt and persistent treatment. It is entirely unsafe to predict the result, some apparently mild attacks going on to speedy death, while others that appear at the onset to be very severe yielding rapidly to treatment. Do not cease your efforts until you know the animal is past help.

Wire Fence Corncrib.
In the drawing is shown a handy, inexpensive corncrib which possesses several advantages not possessed by the ordinary stave corncrib. It is made on 4 by 4 posts with pans at their summits to prevent rats from climbing in. The staves are 4 by 4, scantlings 2 by 4 and two feet apart. The fencing is nailed to these on all sides, and the door frame is similarly covered. The roof is made wide, so as to shed

NOVEL CORNCRIB.
All possible water. The height, length and width may suit the farmer's convenience. A convenient width is about five feet at the door, widening to seven feet at the eaves. Owing to the very open nature of this crib, corn dries more quickly than in a stave crib, and as there is less chance for water to lodge in the cracks the crib will be more durable than if built entirely of wood.

TRIFLES WORTH KNOWING.
Leftover cereals need not be wasted. They are excellent fried like mush and eaten with sirup or honey.
Clear soup or consommé should be strained through a folded towel laid on a colander. It must not be squeezed, or some of the small particles of egg used in clearing will be forced through and spoil the soup.
Ammonia should not be used in the evening or near a fire, nor should the bottle be allowed to remain uncorked. It is inflammable, and its fumes are not especially healthful.
If fresh fish is to be kept overnight it should be salted and laid on an earthen dish, not placed on a board or shelf.
Covering the pan when fish is frying is apt to make the flesh soft. A solid, firm meat that is at the same time flaky is what the good cook likes.
When the supply of preserves has run low a good jelly can be made in winter from oranges and apples mixed. The proportions are a pint of boiled apple juice to a pint of orange juice and a ounce of

IT TAINTS YOUR FOOD

Your Meals Instead of Digesting Now Ferment

DYSPEPSIA WILL VANISH

All Your Suffering is Unnecessary and Can Be Cured Promptly—Why Not Rid Yourself of Stomach Misery Forever.

You haven't caught of the stomach, or nervousness, or gastritis, or cancer, etc. Prove this by taking Pepp's Diaperin after your very next meal. Convince yourself within five minutes that your actual disease was sour, acid stomach—food fermentation—that every bite you ate turned to stomach gas, stomach poison and acid, which makes you feel sick and miserable, producing such symptoms as pain in the pit of the stomach, difficulty in breathing after a meal, headaches, belching, heartburn, nausea, sour risings, gas on stomach and many other bad feelings.

Indigestion is a result, not a cause, of your misery. If the stomach is sour, your food becomes tainted, and that's why you have these stomach disorders. Ask your pharmacist to show you a case of Pepp's Diaperin, which costs only 50 cents. Read what this effective stomach and digestive treatment has to say for itself. It does for the stomach what the washing and sun bath do for the churn; absolutely removes every curdling or tainting element, and will digest all the food you can eat.

Sewing Machine Hint.
If your machine needle becomes sticky, why not try rubbing the material to be sewed with a piece of laundry soap? It has the same effect as an emery, or if there is danger of injuring the material to treat it in this way try sicing on a piece of waste cloth well soaped.

THE FOOD FOR POULTRY IN WINTER.
Much time and money have been spent in what seems the almost vain endeavor to make hens produce eggs in cold weather. It requires but little experience with poultry to learn the fact that, under ordinary circumstances, hens cannot produce as many eggs in winter as in summer. Summer is the natural time for the laying of eggs, and in order to increase winter production there must be reproduced the conditions that exist in summer. Mrs. John J. Layzell of Brandon, Vt., has evidently succeeded in doing this with her flock. She says: "I have been using Page's Perfected Poultry Food for the last three winters, and I find it the best poultry food on the market. I have tried several different kinds, but I got no eggs until I began to use this food."

When Visiting the Poultry Show, Come to Arkley's Stable With Your Teams where they will receive good care at reasonable prices. Ladies' waiting room with toilet connected. Union telephone.

ABOUT THE STATE

Ludlow's oldest people are Mrs. Hannah Haven, who is in her 101st year; John P. Brown, who will be 90 January 11; Ira Gale and Mrs. E. L. Wilder, who are 90 years old.

The United Wireless Telegraph company in an announcement relative to its proposed development for 1909 names Rutland, Burlington, Montpelier, and Bennington as Vermont towns where it is proposed to locate wireless telegraph stations. The company says: Contracts and leases will be entered into and the advance work completed, ready for the installation of the apparatus, as rapidly as suitable sites can be secured and satisfactory arrangements made.

Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Champion of Hartford village celebrated their 53rd wedding anniversary Saturday. About 65 were present and the occasion was very enjoyable. They received many gifts and light refreshments were served. On the table was a cake bearing the two names, and the dates 1851 and 1909. A poem was read by Dr. Drake. Both Mr. and Mrs. Champion are 82 years of age and old time residents of Hartford. On the day of the anniversary, Mrs. Champion herself cooked a dinner for 26.

The annual school for officers of the Vermont National Guard will be held at Hartford, next week on Thursday and Friday. On Wednesday the commissioned officers of Company M, Captain Parker and Lieutenants Ashley and Gill will leave for that place. The annual meeting of Company M will be held next Friday evening. The members of the company will open a fair in the upper hall of the armory on January 6. The members are working hard to make the affair a success and promise to have some new kind of entertainment for each evening.

Burns Kelley of Mount Holly, aged 24 years, has been bound over to the March term of Rutland county court on a charge of assaulting Tony Tass, age 17 years, with a dangerous weapon. The writ sets up that December 17 Kelley met Tass and accused him of stealing a halter, the boy denying the theft. It is claimed that Kelley then turned to his wagon for an axe which was found to be fastened up in some rope so he seized a cut hook and struck at Tass. The boy warded off the blow with his arm, receiving a broken bone just below the elbow. Kelley claims that Tass assaulted him first and that he struck in self-defense.

Brattleboro's Growing Fleet.
Motor boating is gaining rapidly in favor among Brattleboro people and already several have expressed their intention of placing gasoline craft on the Connecticut river the coming summer. Bert A. Wood is building an 18-foot, torpedo stern boat, and will install a 4-horse-power Fox engine for motive power. Bernard M. Hays is building a 21-foot torpedo stern launch, also from the patterns of the American Gasoline company, and Clifford Fox has placed an order for a 21-foot torpedo stern launch of the same pattern as that of Mr. Switzer. Vere Shipman is constructing a 20-foot compromise stern. Edward H. Hays is building a launch at his boat house on the island having built two 22-foot boats of the same pattern. Mr. Bigelow has bought several of the large boats used by the government at the Jamestown exposition and at the Norfolk yard. These boats will be used for excursion parties, each having seating capacity of 25 persons. Charles Allen is building a motor canoe from the Brooks patterns, this boat being nearly completed.

Handicraft Worker at 86.
St. Johnsbury has an ardent follower of the modern handcraft movement in David E. Harnett, who at 86 has opened a workshop on his own premises. In his youth in Peacham he used to watch an aged man, Samuel Shepard make baskets and a few years later profited by what he had observed. At first a pastime for leisure hours, the basket making soon became a means of eking out a slender income, insufficient for the support of a growing family. Then 35 or 40 years passed during which such work was forgotten. Last summer his wife and daughter, a teacher in Kansas City, Mo., were away in raffia and watching them brought back memories of his old employment to Mr. Harriman. This work seemed just the thing and so his shop is now established. His tools and materials are simple and inexpensive—a hammer, smoother, jackknife and two logs of brown ash. One log furnishes the handles and the uprights or wrap of the baskets. For the woof or filling at second log about a foot in diameter is hammered with infinite patience until the ribs give way, leaving the great long strips are torn from the log, pulling always from the top to the bottom. These strips are smoothed with a smoother and cut into narrow strips with a jackknife. From this point on any fifth grade boy, who has studied manual training, could easily make the baskets, but it is doubtful if he could shape them as perfectly as does Mr. Harriman. His baskets are square, round and oblong and are made in all sizes. Up-to-date the work has been a labor of love with him, for he has given away every basket he has made. His has been a long active life. Born in Peacham, August 18, 1822, he has outlived all but two of a family of seven children, two brothers, Judge William Harriman of Ann Arbor, Mich., and Henry of Berds, Ill.
