Homemade Butter Worker. The butter worker here described has been in practical use for some time and is said to be superior to the high priced factory butter workers now on the market. The top, or bed, should be of hard wood if possible.

A HOME BUTTER WORKER.

Make the bed about thirty inches long, twenty inches at the wide end and eight at the narrow end. These dimensions are for a small worker, for ten to twenty-five pounds of butter. If you have a larger quantity of butter make the worker correspondingly larger. Make the lever or roller of a three inch square stick at least ten inches longer than the bed of the worker. It is made with six sides, hexagon shape, one end shaped for a hand hold, and the opposite end has a half inch pin placed in it. This pin is inserted in the hole bored in the narrow end, as shown, and the roller, or lever, moved over the butter with a rolling motion, the water and butter-milk escaping at the narrow end through the hole below the end of the roller. A bucket should be placed below the narrow end to catch this drip. Make the small end one or two inches lower than the opposite end to insure the water draining away.

EVER HAVE IT?

If You Have, the Statement of This Barre Citizen Will Interest You.

"Ever have a 'low-down' pain in the back?"

In the "small," right over the hips?

That's the home of backache.

It's caused by sick kidneys.

That's why Doan's Kidney Pills cure it.

Barre people endorse this. Read a case of it:

Mrs. Margaret Reid, 40 Maple avenue, Barre, Vt., says: 'I gave a statement in favor of Doan's Kidney Pills in 1905, and I am glad to confirm it at this time. For more than three years I was bothered off and on by backaches and at night I would suffer so intensely that I could not sleep. During damp weather I was always worse and although I wore plasters, I obtained only temporary relief. When Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me, I procured a box at E. A. Drown's drug store. They relieved me in a short time and I continued taking them until the pain in my back was entirely relieved.'
