SIGNALS OF DISTRESS

Barre People Should Know How to Read and Heed Them.

Sick kidneys give many signals of distress. The secretions are dark, contain a sediment.

Passages are frequent, scanty, painful. Backache is constant day and night. Headaches and dizzy spells are frequent.

The weakened kidneys need quick help. Don't delay! Use a special kidney remedy.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys, backache and urinary disorders. Barre evidence proves this statement.

L. H. Hooker, retired, 101 Prospect street, Barre, Vt., says: "Since I first used Doan's Kidney Pills some years ago, I have recommended them to at least fifty people, and have heard everyone who has used this remedy give it a high praise."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

RANDOLPH

Z. L. Merchant was in Montpelier and Barre Sunday.

NORWICH UNIVERSITY ALUMNI

Twenty-fifth Annual Banquet in Boston—President Spooner Present.

The twenty-fifth annual banquet of the Norwich University Alumni Association was held at the Boston City Club Friday night, attended by over fifty graduates. President E. Wesson Clark, Boston, toastmaster, and the principal speaker was Dr. Charles H. Spooner, speaker of the university, who, with Captain Leslie A. J. Chapman, U. S. A. commandant at the university, and Captain H. C. Keene, U. S. A., retired, were the special guests.

President Spooner announced that the university had very recently received a gift of $100,000, the income of which is to be used for new buildings, from Colonel Curtis S. Barret of Cleveland, O., a graduate in the class of '83, and one of a $1500 stallion from Colonel Everett of Windsor, Vt.

Colonel Chapman told of the addition of horses to the equipment of the university and spoke of the progress being made in horsemanship. Other speakers were Professor K. R. B. Flint, Professor E. A. Shaw, C. N. Barber, W. S. Prior, '99, E. A. Stowell, '67.

A feature of the evening was the singing of the university quartet, composed of Dr. H. M. Gokey, first tenor; Crosby Adams, second tenor; A. P. Leete, first bass, and H. L. Putnam, second bass.

The following named officers were elected: Sheldon, '84, president; Eugene A. Stowell, '66, H. E. Cheney, '88, J. Albert Holmes, '95, W. E. Haslam, '87, and P. F. Hayward, '88, vice presidents; H. K. Briggs, '03, of Everett, secretary and treasurer; Dr. E. L. Gaynor, '93, Dr. W. G. Huntley, '95, and George H. Chapin, '04, executive committee.

WASHINGTON

Special revival services are being held at the Baptist church in charge of Mrs. E. J. Parmelee of Enosburg Falls. Mrs. Parmelee was a Washington girl, and her practical talks are creating much interest. A good number of people listened to her both morning and evening Sunday.

"On Monday" evening she spoke on "Cranks." Tuesday evening she will give the story of her conversion and tell why she could not be a Universalist. On Wednesday evening there will be a general social at school house hall and Mrs. Parmelee will enjoy meeting her old friends at that time. She will during the evening give some funny experiments in Christian works. Thursday evening her subject will be, "Lies—in the Church and Out."

Ma Meant Well Anyway. A young woman overheard an old negroes call to a pekananny, "Come back, Exy, Exy!"

"Excuse me," said the young woman, "but isn't that a queer name for a baby, aunty?"

"Dat ain't her full name," explained the old woman, with pride; "dat's jes' de pet name I call fer short. Dat chile got a mighty grand name. Her ma picked it out in a medicine book. Yessum, de chile's full name is Ezema."—Ladies' Home Journal.

The Very First One. The victors in the historical museum gazed curiously at a small feather pillow which nestled in a glass case.

"I don't see anything unusual about that pillow," remarked one of the visitors, turning to the guide.

"It's a very valuable pillow," replied the guide. "That is Washington's original headquarters."—Lippincott's.

A Zoological Question. The director of the zoological gardens was on his vacation. He received a note from his chief assistant, which closed thusly: "The chimpanzee seems to be pining for a companion. What shall we do until you return?"—St. Louis Republic.

Two Words. "There are two words that I feel sorry for."

"And they are?" "Blithering and egregious. Nobody ever uses 'em except to call some one an idiot or an ass."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Guineas. Guineas were first struck by Charles II, in 1669, from gold brought from Guinea. They were first at 21 shillings in 1717. The first sovereign was coined in 1817, in which year the guineas were finally withdrawn from circulation.

Chinese Rosaries. Some Chinese rosaries are made of wooden beads with leather tassels, on which are small brass rings, and are finished at the ends with brass ornaments and tags of leather.

REAL LITERARY LABOR.

Example of Charles Dudley Warner's Infinite Patience. The extraordinary pains and patience with which Charles Dudley Warner did his literary work are shown in an account given by a writer in the New Amstel magazine of the strenuous way in which Mr. Warner produced an arbitrary notice some years ago.

Professor Edward L. Youmans was a close personal friend of Mr. Warner, and on that account when Mrs. Youmans died the editor of a daily paper asked Mr. Warner to write a sort of personal appreciation of her. This he consented to do.

He was left alone from 10 a. m. until half past 12, when he went to lunch. Returning at 2 o'clock, he worked without interruption until 4 o'clock, when he turned over to the editor what he had written.

Yet the work was not complete. Mr. Warner read the first proof and in succession three revised sheets.

Each time he made change after change in phraseology, seeking out the one right word, while even in the nicety of paragraphing he seemed to make clearer what he desired to express. Nor did the close revision end with the marking of the last proof.

After the paper had gone to press and the first sheets had been brought up to the composing room for an O. K., Mr. Warner looked wistfully at the editor and observed:

"Would you object to lifting the form? I see a sentence in the last paragraph that might be somewhat corrected. She was too good, you know, to have a slavishly tribute paid to her."

Even the printers refused to get angry over the delay, and forthwith the form was sent up and changes went on for an hour. At last, though publication was delayed fully two hours, the editor, but not Mr. Warner, had the supreme satisfaction of knowing that the work was as nearly perfect as human art could make it, and the edition was sent out.

FIRST NIGHTS.

The Way They Affected Some Famous French Playwrights. The first night with authors is viewed with different feelings. This is how it affected some famous French playwrights.

Sardou's nervousness was well known. Dumas his was never able to preserve his sangfroid. As soon as the curtain rose Dumas pere would betake himself to a restaurant and dine from as many courses as his new piece had acts. His son reported on the success of the piece. At the first representation of "Toussaint Louverture" Lamartine found his work so tedious that he went to a cafe and read the papers. Balzac when he produced "Resources de Quinola" spent the day in selling tickets at a rate higher than at the box office and reaped a fine return.

Paul de Kock, seated in the orchestra, we also read, protested against his piece and made so much noise that his neighbors demanded silence. Casimir Delavigne remained at home. Alexandre Soumet went to be shaved when "Jeanne d'Arc" was produced. The barber had finished one cheek when the author cried: "Stop! Here are 30 sous. Go round to the theater and see if they hiss or applaud the piece." The barber returned, saying: "It is a success, monsieur. They applauded." "Since it is a success," replied the author, "have the other." Scribe appeared in the best of spirits and encouraged the actors, but at the end he became nervous and tore his handkerchief with his teeth. Rossini walked about the back of the stage with his cane in his hand. Auber was never present on the first night of his works, and Bayard on reaching the stage is reported to have said that he experienced sudden illness.—New York Mail.

On the Safe Side. "In the matter of drinking," mused the philosopher with the impressionistic nose, "be sure you are right and you won't get a head."—Philadelphia Record.

A Large Toast. A prominent man, unexpectedly invited to an entertainment, found himself called on for toasts among others. He was unprepared; but, being a quick thinker, he arose and said: "I toast to the toast that was toasted by the toaster who had toasted all the toasts that were ever toasted by a toaster."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Thankfulness. "Thankfulness," said Uncle Eben, "ain't nuffin" but the common sense needed to recognize some of de good things dis world is chock full of."—Washington Star.

TRAINING THE COLT.

Youngster Should be Handled Carefully and Made to Obey.

When the foal is dropped, if the weather is cool, put some old light wool blanket on it and wipe it dry under the blankets. Then from the beginning the colt will know you are its friend and its confidence is gained, the rest is easy, if you do not lose it through ill-temper or accident, says the Indiana Farmer.

When the colt is a few days old put a strong pliable halter on its head. Do not try to lead it at first, but put the halter on every day until the colt does not mind it in the least then put a rope or a strap on the halter and putting some sugar or salt on the colt's lips, pull on the strap or rope, and tell it to come on; he will soon learn he must come when you pull on the rope and in a few days you can, after a few trials in and out of the empty stalls, take him out doors. When leading him out of doors, take hold of the chin piece of the halter and do not let him rear, as he is apt to do if you do not watch him. Lead him around the yard for a short while, then if he behaves nicely, reward him with sugar or salt or something else he likes to eat. In just a few days you will have the colt broken to lead and then he is ready to be trained to wear harness, light harness, of course, but the younger he learns, the better for him and you too.

When you wear the colt put a strong halter on his head and tie him to a manger and watch him. If he pulls speak kindly to him and pat him. If he has never broken away from you he will soon give up and stand quietly. When he is halter broken, tie him with the bridle of course with a very stiff bit, the regular old-fashioned stiff bit I think is best. Put lines on bit and at first walk at his shoulder so you can grasp his bit if he should become frightened at any unforeseen object. Each time you take him out, get back farther and farther until you are walking behind him and he will turn and back at your commanding voice and lines.

Drive the colt around the barn and house, show him umbrellas opened, papers fluttering, wheelbarrows moving, etc. Drive him through water, across ditches, on no occasion, however, let him jump across them. When about one year old you can put the regular harness on him. Some colts are afraid of the breeching and crupper because they do not know what they are for, so leave the harness on him a few hours every day, being sure before you leave him that all straps, traces, etc., are all secured and he cannot step on them; tie him so he cannot pull at the straps, as some colts will pull the harness off if they can grasp it with their teeth when left alone. When you come into the stable again, speak to him gently and take off the harness, pulling the back band all the way down to his tail gently and then he will not be afraid of it. The next time you harness him, put on the bridle and lead him out doors; drive him around awhile and teach him to step over the ends of poles, or thill. Do not let him break them, as the noise might frighten him. When he steps over them willingly and carefully, drive him up beside the cart and make him stand still for a few minutes, then drive away from it and turn around and drive up to the cart again, making him stand as before. When he stands as you wish him to, pull the cart up to him and, telling him to stand still, proceed to attach the traces first, after you have the thills in proper place, then after the traces are fastened, attach the thill straps in the thills, then last of all the holding back strap.

Do not buckle them too tight; that is make them too tight, or you may have trouble. When you get in the cart, tell him to go on and he will gently walk off. Teach him what the words "back," "whoa" and "steady" means. Never say "whoa" unless you want him to stop still, for he may not stop when there is danger. If you want him to stop trotting or not trot as fast, pull him firmly on the lines and say "steady" and he will obey and be pleased to know that he knows that much about training. Before driving him down hills, teach him how to back gently pulling in the lines and calling him by name, say, "back." He will then know what the breeching is for.
