The C. M. & St. P. Overland Limited Derailed This Morning and Engine Plunged Over Bank and Then Turned Turtle.

Des Moines, Iowa, Feb. 26.—Engineer Brown of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Overland Limited train was killed, but strangely enough his fireman escaped death when their engine plunged down an embankment early this morning at Van Horn. None of the passengers was hurt.

The Overland Limited, which was west-bound, left Chicago last night and was speeding along when it became derailed near Van Horn. The engine and tender broke loose from the rest of the train and jumped over an embankment, leaving the passengers coaches on the track. The engine turned turtle completely, crushing the life out of the engineer. The fireman miraculously escaped, with the escape of the passengers from death or injury was remarkable. All that saved them was the breaking apart of the engine and tender. The first advice from the scene of the wreck stated that the list of casualties was unknown, but later it became known that only the engineer lost his life.

Hannon of 208 West 33d street, member of a wealthy Boston family, and a bond salesman for Swartout & Appeneller, bankers and brokers of 44 Pine street, was taken to Bellevue hospital last night violently insane. Hannon is a graduate of Dartmouth college and was a member of the football team. He also belongs to the Theta Delta Chi fraternity.

The residents of Second avenue, from 42d street to 88th street, will not forget the young college athlete in some time, as he left a trail of black eyes, cut lips and other facial disfigurements along the avenue. Patrolman Greenberg spied Hannon at 43d street and Second avenue at about 8:30 o'clock.

He was carrying on strangely, and his movements were a source of disturbance, and saw one of the drug clerks fly out through the door and sprawling on the sidewalk.

His appearance was followed in a moment by Hannon, who rushed down the avenue shouting, "Princeton can't beat Dartmouth. Come on, boys, and we'll tear 'em up!" Dartmouth, 11-28-44."

DORANDO BEATEN BY SHRUBB EASILY

The English Runner Held The Lead Throughout The 15-Mile Race at Buffalo Last Night.

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 26.—Leading his opponent from the crack of the pistol to the finish, Alf Shrubbs, the English long distance runner, easily defeated Dorando Pietri, the Italian, in a 15-mile race at the 74th regiment armory last night.

Every American indoor record from the first to the fifteenth mile was smashed. In the first mile Shrubbs took a commanding lead which he gradually increased to three laps in the tenth mile. Dorando made several game efforts to regain the lost ground in the twelfth and thirteenth miles, but Shrubbs never allowed him to get more than 15 yards away from him.

Shrubbs' lead at the finish was 2 1/2 laps. Dorando completed the 15 miles, finishing in a sprint that brought a storm of applause from the crowd.

The failure of Tom Longboat, the Canadian Indian, to keep his engagement here last night with Alfred Shrubbs was a keen disappointment to the Englishmen. The fear that he might not get a contest of any kind was dispelled when Dorando Pietri, the Italian, arrived ready for a race and glad to get one with Shrubbs under any conditions. He readily agreed to substitute for Longboat in a fifteen mile contest. Shrubbs ruled 6 to 10 favorites in what little betting was apparent just before the race began. One wager was reported of $800 to $1,000. The uncertainty as to the outcome of the affair on the attendance which was less than one half the number that saw Longboat defeat Pietri here a month ago.

THE SINS OF OMISSION

[Communicated.]

Most men will readily enough admit that they are accountable for what they do, and that for evil doing they may be rightly held responsible.

To say that a man is irresponsible is to intimate, either that he has lost his reason or that he never had any to lose; and no one wishes to admit that to be the case. So every man admits his responsibility, and admits that every one else shall admit it as well. It is an admission that everyone is free to choose, and that we ought to choose the thing that is right, in preference to that which is wrong.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—Six firemen were killed in a fire which destroyed the immense warehouse of the Albert Dickinson company, one of the biggest see plants in the country, to-day, and the comrades of the victims are now searching the ruins for the bodies.

SEARCHING FOR BODIES

The Albert Dickinson Plant, One of the Biggest in the Country, Burned To-day with Great Property Loss.

The fire started early this forenoon from an explosion of dust and gas in one of the buildings of the company, and spread very rapidly. A general alarm for apparatus was turned in, and within a short time a great many engines and firemen were at work on the flames. The main warehouse was twelve stories high and it covered two entire blocks, being valued at $1,000,000.

The flames had gutted the building so badly by half past nine this forenoon that the walls fell with a crash, burying six firemen who were working on the south side of the warehouse. As soon as possible the other firemen set to work to locate the bodies of the missing men.

DEMANDS $30,000 FOR HUSBAND'S LOVE

Sensational Suit Brought in Brattleboro, in Which Plaintiff Claims a Man Stole Away Her Man's Affection.

Brattleboro, Feb. 26.—Mrs. Angeline Larrow of Holyoke, formerly of this town, yesterday sued Warren G. Doolittle of Brattleboro for the alleged alienation of the affections of her husband, Frank Larrow, asking damages of $30,000, and thereby hangs a story of unusual nature.

Deputy Sheriff A. W. J. Wilkins of this town served the writ on Doolittle and attached his property for the amount of the damage claimed. Mr. Doolittle does lumbering on an extensive scale and is reputed to be the possessor of a large amount of money. Besides him the persons principally involved in the suit are his daughter, Mrs. Jennie Doolittle Crosby, and Mr. Larrow, both of whom have been in the limelight on previous occasions, once in Athol, Mass., in December, 1905, when trouble arose at the Athol house, of which Larrow was proprietor. On that occasion a guest at the hotel said Mrs. Crosby came into his room in the night and pleaded for help, saying that she would be killed if she did not help her, and that he made a rope of bed clothing and let her out of the window, but that the rope broke and she fell to the ground.

Mrs. Larrow has four minor children. She alleges that Doolittle contrived to injure her, and that on June 1, 1903, in Athol, Mass., he persuaded her husband to leave her and his family and come to aid her in her domestic affairs. She alleges that Mrs. Crosby also contrived to injure her and alienate her husband's affections, and that on Jan. 1, 1906, and at other times, in Brattleboro, Guilford, Holyoke, Mass., and Athol, Mass., and other places Mrs. Crosby had improper relations with Mr. Larrow.

She says further that Mr. Doolittle, father of Mrs. Crosby, counseled, advised, aided and conspired with Mrs. Crosby in thus wrongfully knowing Mr. Larrow, and that he harbored and protected both, and kept them in his own house in Brattleboro, knowing of their relations and well knowing that Mr. Larrow was the lawful husband of Mrs. Larrow.

WAYLAIED WIFE AND SHOT HER

Robert A. Glynn Then Turned Weapon on Himself

Springfield, Feb. 26.—Robert A. Glynn a farmer living in North Springfield, shot and instantly killed his wife, Lois A. Glynn, about 3 yesterday afternoon and then shot himself through the body three times. He may live.

The shooting occurred near the center of the village, a short distance below W. E. Fuller's store. Mrs. Glynn, who was living with her daughter, Mrs. Lillian Spafford, had started down the street, it is said, to get a man to deliver some laundry at Roy Perkins' and had crossed a bridge leading over a small brook running through the village. She was nearly opposite the house occupied by Fred Snell when Glynn approached her and entered into conversation. He attempted to take hold of Mrs. Glynn and the man hit him away. Again he approached her and again she pushed him off.

Glynn then drew a revolver and shot his wife in the body. She dropped to her knees and held up her hands as though begging him to stop. He fired two more shots into her body, then turned the revolver toward himself and fired three shots into his own body, emptying the revolver.

TRAGEDY AT SPRINGFIELD

Mrs. Glynn Had Recently Sued Him for Divorce and He Had Repeatedly Tried to Get Her to Return to His House.

There were many eye witnesses to the shooting but no one was near enough to hear the conversation that led up to the tragedy. Mrs. Glynn came down the street from Mrs. Spafford's house which is above Fuller's store, and went into the store to transact some business. Glynn was in the street and saw her go into the store and immediately started down the street where the tragedy occurred. It is supposed that he hid behind a shed near the shooting occurred and watched her approach.

Mrs. Glynn fell after the second and third shots were fired and died almost instantly. Glynn fell, also shooting himself over Mrs. Glynn's body. Mrs. Glynn had been complaining of her husband's treatment of her to her daughter for a long time and on Jan. 14, while Glynn was away from home, Mrs. Glynn looked up her personal effects and moved them with such personal property as she owned to the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lillian Spafford, nearby. On the same day had served on Glynn a libel for divorce, alleging intolerable severity and enjoying Glynn from disposing of his real estate during the pendency of the libel and also from interfering with his wife's personal liberty.
