The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

5,115

An oil well would make a fitting monument for H. H. Rogers.

"Didn't know it was loaded" applies to newspaper editorials, it seems, as well as to guns.

Having lost its suspender factory, Swanton will have to take another hitch in its prosperity.

A deluge drove President Taft off the speaker's stand at Charlotte, N. C., but it probably wouldn't have driven him off Golf Links, D. C.

An automobilist was fined in Montpelier city court recently for operating his machine before it was registered. There's a warning for others.

When last seen in the state prison by a reporter, Lorne Elwyn was seated, smoking a cigar and reading a paper. Evidently, the "hard labor" had not begun.

Governor Johnson of Minnesota won't be governor for the fourth consecutive time; he puts his feet right down. Therein he shows he is not a real Democrat.

If Editor Ellsworth's editorial was 200 words long, his writings are as costly as Theodore Roosevelt's, but as we remember it, the editorial was longer and then some.

Thinking he was about to rescue a young lady, a New York youth dived into the water, and rescued a "peach basket" hat. Nevertheless, he was brave, very brave, to pull the thing out.

Editor Battell of Middlebury consented to have his horses attached to that most hateful of all things, an automobile, and the animals then dragged the machine out of the Weybridge mud. Wonder if Battell's horses were contaminated through the association.

The Montpelier papers are professing to discover that the Barre lid was not down as closely Sunday as it might have been. What Barre needs evidently is a supply of hat pins to hold the lid on—Burlington Press.

And if the Montpelier papers should investigate in their own city, they would find conditions about the same as Barre has been trying to regulate.

This is May 20 and the prospects for league base ball in Rutland very unfortunately are not very promising for this season. The opinion hereabouts is that Pleasantburg, N. Y., is hardly enterprising enough to warrant the town being on the main line of a railroad—Rutland News.

And here are Barre and Montpelier, located on a sidetrack of the Central Vermont railroad, eager to get into the game. From the contemporary's standpoint, we deserve to be on the main line.

A GOOD DEED SHINES FORTH.

The courtesy of the Consolidated Lighting company in keeping the streets lighted until three o'clock in the morning of this Odd Fellows week shines forth as a good deed in a naughty world, apparently, for the fame of it has spread as far away even as Concord, N. H., where The Monitor, ever faithful to record the good deeds of ministering angels, refers to the matter and makes the rather doubtful comment that "the Odd Fellows of Vermont, who have been in session at Barre this week, must have been having a large time." To counteract any possible bad interpretation of the matter, The Times hereby vouches for the good conduct of the visitors during the week and notifies the contemporary furthermore that they were not afraid to go home in the dark and they could have done so if the situation had called for the display of special courage; but thanks to the lighting company they are spared the necessity.

Seriously, however, the people of the city have appreciated the act of the company in shedding light on the dark places, and, no doubt, the visitors have also; which brings up the pertinent suggestion if it would not be a good system to work under throughout the entire year, whether we have visitors with us or not. Like Boston and perhaps Concord, if the truth be told, we go to bed early in Barre and the streets are ordinarily deserted after midnight; but there's many a swarty home-comer and a perplexed stranger arriving on the early morning trains (two of them) who would appreciate having a beacon to guide them to their permanent or temporary abode. The work of the policemen, the firemen and the watchmen would be materially aided also if the lights were to shed their kindly rays for a few hours longer than at present. One of these days we may rise to the influence when we can have lights all night, but for the present a three-o'clock limit would be appreciated.

The Vermont State Fair.

The management of the Vermont State Fair, which is held in White River Junction, have been doing much in way of preparation for the coming exhibition September 21, 22, 23 and 24. They have had a survey made of the original grounds, also of the Smith farm adjoining recently purchased by the fair ground railroad company, and used by them as a terminal for the fair ground. This purchase makes a forty acre addition available if needed. In the original grounds, there are 68 acres, which together with the newly acquired acreage, constitutes the largest fair grounds in New England. Secretary F. L. Davis informs us that the special offered for this year's fair are far in excess of those of the two previous years. Plans are under way for new stables for the accommodation of trotting stock, also for an up-to-date and commodious poultry house. Many minor improvements are being made which will greatly facilitate the handling of the enormous stock exhibits. We have seen the past two years what capable management can do for the Vermont State Fair, this year gives fair promise of out-shining all previous attempts—White River Junction Landmark.

LOWELL'S POLICY.

Few Such Thorny Problems as The American College, He Says. Cambridge, Mass., May 21.—A virtual declaration of the policy to be pursued by Abbott Lawrence Lowell, who Wednesday assumed the presidency of Harvard university, was made by President Lowell yesterday in response to an enthusiastic greeting given him by several hundred students comprising his class known as "Government I." The president said that the present general policy of the university would be maintained and that Harvard college would preserve the same analogy toward the graduate department as formerly.

"Few things stand before us presenting such thorny problems as the American college," he said. "Educators are attacking it on all sides. Many are not in sympathy with it, saying that in its present status it has outlived its usefulness. However, that is not the direction in which we shall go here. I believe in the college as the core of academic life, and as such it will continue at Harvard."

"My ambition is to see develop at Harvard the best crop of all around men, mentally, morally, and physically, in the United States."

Interest Rates

Since the organization of the People's National Bank the rates on interest bearing deposits have been maintained at 3 per cent. and 3 1-2 per cent. per annum, believing this to be a fair and conservative rate of interest to the Depositor and to the Bank.

The Boston News Bureau of May 5, 1909, states that The Suffolk Savings Bank, the second largest Savings Bank in Boston, paid its 78,500 depositors, for the past six months, at the rate of 3 1-2 per cent. per annum.

The Montpelier Evening Argus, of May 18, 1909, has the following:

"The Board of Trustees of the Montpelier Savings Bank and Trust Company in accordance with the conservatism that has been characteristic of its management and which has made this Bank one of the leading Trust Companies in the state, have voted, that beginning with July 1st, 1909, the rate of interest paid to its depositors, will be 3 1-2 per cent. and the rate of interest, charged on loans secured by mortgage on Real Estate in Vermont will be 5 per cent."

The Trustees of this Bank, "have always thrown every safeguard possible, around its investments and have realized the Bank's responsibility as a depository of the People's Savings and the Trustees now realize that no Bank is able to pay 4 per cent. interest to its depositors and find sound, safe investment for their money."
