FLAMES FILLED HARBOR.

Blazing Barge Threatened Providence Waterfront.

Providence, R. I., July 12.—A drifting barge sending forth frequent explosions from her cargo of blazing oil and a quarter of a square mile of the harbor waters ablaze from the same cause endangered the entire waterfront and shipping of this city Saturday.

Since shortly after midnight the Texas Oil Company's barge Harrison, loaded with 135,000 gallons of oil, burned furiously, destroying the company's wharf and several of its buildings.

It also damaged the company's tug Edmund Moran, which had the barge in tow, besides scorching other craft in the harbor.

The danger was over at sunset Saturday night only when the oil had become exhausted and the barge was burned to the water's edge, a total loss.

OLDEST BRIDGE FIRE'S VICTIM.

Score Go Into River as Structure Falls.

Troy, N. Y., July 12.—The Union bridge, spanning the Hudson river at Waterbury, was destroyed by fire Saturday afternoon. The structure was built in 1804 and was the oldest bridge in the country. Flames were discovered at 1 o'clock, and in less than three hours nothing remained but the abutments.

This bridge was the first passageway from Saratoga county to Rensselaer county, it being used by all summer tourists to go to Saratoga and points north.

A score of firemen who were on the middle span at the time of the conflagration were carried down into the river as the span gave way and were rescued with much difficulty by firemen who were in boats.

The burning of the bridge was spectacular and viewed by thousands of persons.

AT NATIONAL CAPITOL

The Tariff Conference Begins Their Work

TAFT WILL TAKE A HAND

Highest Authority for Statement That He Will Have a Large Part in Shaping Results—Senator Crane Optimistic

Washington, July 12.—There is high authority for saying that the corporation tax will be reduced in the tariff conference to 1 per cent, instead of 2 per cent, and that the Clapp amendment taxing holding corporations will be eliminated. There is general feeling that the latter is double taxation, even though the tax is called an excise tax on the privilege corporations enjoy of doing business, and there is fear that the corporation tax might be declared unconstitutional on that account.

Other companies will be eliminated in other ways than by taxing them out of existence. The speeches of Mr. Vickersham this week indicated the tariff program. This was about all that was learned of importance regarding the conference, which started work in dead earnest. In the morning the conference agreed upon some 200 amendments, all on unimportant phases, and in the afternoon went over the chemical schedule where minor matters, some 100 in number, were agreed on, the items on which there was contest being passed over.

The statement from Mr. Aldrich that President Taft was not to have any part in the conference was declared Saturday to be purely a joke. To be sure, as a literal fact, the president takes no part in the conference, but he can have much to do with it. It can be said on the highest authority that the president will have a very large part in shaping the results of the tariff in conference.

The president is not anxious to begin his work until the grave matters before the conference are taken up. Saturday many senators and representatives called upon him, and the understanding was that nearly all encouraged him to hold out for a material revision downward. But, as usual, the president was silent as a sphinx, confident of his position. He listened carefully to all that was said to him, and especially to the representatives of the Massachusetts shoe men, who were presented by Senator Lodge, and who urged the president to stand out for free hides and presented a brief, which they would not give out, that the enemy might know the character of the contents. Senator Crane also was a caller at the White House.

Men like Senator Crane insist there is no need that any one be discouraged by the tariff situation. The senator is very optimistic that a bill satisfactory to those now in the dumps will come out of the conference. Men like him contend that the difference between the House and the Senate bills has been much exaggerated.

However, over in the House the low tariff Republicans feel a bit disconsolate. The conference that Speaker Cannon appointed were still the talk of the day. It was declared that the speaker had been unfair and arbitrary as usual, but that he would gain nothing, as no bill could be passed in the House that was not satisfactory to the West. It was still claimed that Mr. Payne had vigorously objected to Messrs. Fordney and Calderhead being made conferees. And it was even said that the committee was packed by Cannon, so that the high protectionists would be able to out-vote Mr. Payne and McCall, who are known to be out-and-out low tariff men, the assumption being that Boutwell and Dabzell would vote with Fordney and Calderhead.

Be it, however, said that after all Payne has the whip hand. All he would have to do would be to refuse to sign such a report and the House would sustain him overwhelmingly. Payne has a fine opportunity to make a stand if matters should come to that point. A great deal rests on Payne and especially free hides, the outlook for which is at present dubious.

Senator Aldrich has requested Senators Lodge and Smoot not to leave Washington for a minute, declaring that he may need them at any minute. Western Republicans and other Republican congressmen fresh from their homes are pessimistic regarding the next House. They say that there will not be 100 Republicans in it.

MATHEMATICAL SIGNS.

Origin of Plus, Minus, Multiplication and Division Symbols.

The sign of addition is derived from the initial letter of the word "plus." In making the capital letter it was made more and more carelessly until the top part of the "p" was finally placed near the center; hence the plus sign as we know it was gradually reached.

The sign of subtraction was derived from the word "minus." The word was first contracted in m. n. s. with a horizontal line above to indicate that some of the letters had been left out. At last the letters were omitted altogether, leaving only the bare line.

The multiplication sign was obtained by changing the plus sign into the letter "x." This was done because multiplication is but a shorter form of addition.

Division was formerly indicated by placing the dividend above a horizontal line and the divisor below. In order to save space in printing, the dividend was placed to the left and the divisor to the right. After years of "evolution" the two "d's" were omitted altogether and simple dots set in the place of each. As with the others, the radical sign was derived from the initial letter of the word "radix."

CITY OF COPPER IN DESERT.

Party of Arabs Report Remarkable Discovery in Sahara.

London, July 12.—A party of Arabs who recently returned to Cairo from the Sahara, narrated a story of a remarkable discovery. They stated that they were endeavoring to smuggle contraband across Tripoli last winter when they were surrounded by coast guards. Some escaped and rode southward for three days. They lost themselves and were without food. They had given up hope when they saw on the horizon a glittering mass like a large city. They believed at first that it was only a mirage, but it proved to be a real deserted city, built of burnished copper. The only sign of life was some sand grouse, which they shot. The party, after exploring the place and replenishing their water at an excellent well, discovered a beaten track and returned to Cairo.

The story came to the ears of the antislavery authorities, and despite the fact that Arabs are born romancers, much credence is given to the narrative owing to the production of pieces of copper of fine workmanship and antique design which the Arabs say they brought from the lost city. A private expedition has been organized with the assistance of the Egyptian government antiquities department, and it is about to start for the Sahara to search for the city of copper. It will also visit the oases of Siwa and explore Jagabub, the metropolis of the Semitic tribe, into which no European has yet penetrated.

5 BEARS ATTACK TRAINER.

Fought Off Three While Two Others Chewed Him.

Pittsfield, Mass., July 12.—While one huge grizzly bear chewed savagely at his arm and another hugged him until his ribs snapped under the fearful strain, Frank L. White, an animal trainer, fought off three other bears with one hand Saturday afternoon until help arrived just as he was succumbing to the frightful pain and loss of blood.

White was unconscious when pulled out by attendants and was rushed to the Pittsfield hospital in a special car. His entire left side was horribly mangled and several ribs were broken, but his physical condition is so perfect that he is expected to live.

The attack by the ferocious animals came without warning. The bears, although occasionally snarling and growling when White entered their den at Berkshire Park, had always performed well and were regarded as among the best of captive animals.

"I have suffered intensely during the recent spell of hot weather, and it is believed that one of them was driven mad. He was the largest of the five, and when he attacked the trainer the example was enough to arouse the others from their usually quiet demeanor, and they all leaped for White.

TRIED TO BE NICE.

But Fannie Made an Awful Mess of It With the Old Lady.

"When Fannie is bent upon pleasing," sighed Fannie's younger sister, "she can certainly make a horrible mess of things. Last Sunday Charlie Evans, having arrived at the point where he felt he wanted his family's opinion of her, invited us both up to take tea with his mother. The minute I laid eyes on his mother I knew Fannie would get in trouble—she simply can't help getting nervously foolish when there's a religious person around.

"Charlie's mother kissed us and, addressing herself to Fannie as the elder, said something about our being very sweet to come and see a daughterless old woman. Whereat Fannie looked at Charlie and his two brothers and replied feelingly that it must be a terrible disappointment to have only one sister. Mrs. Evans, to rectify my sister's misapprehension, told us proudly that she had three more sons, not present.

"By this time Fannie realized that she had made a bad beginning and leaped further in with the supposition that the other three were off having a good time instead of moping at home. The older lady drew herself up and said severely:

"My three sons are in heaven, Miss Barnes."

"Oh, how awful!" came Fannie's ready gasp.

"No, not awful at all!" and Mrs. Evans was positively glaring at us. I feel that they were specially blessed in being allowed to pass thus early to their Lord. They died as little children."

"Dear me, how glad you must have been!" blurted out fostered Fannie.

"By this time I had kicked a hole in her ankle, and that kicked her for awhile. She might have kept still for the rest of the evening had not her pet subject, the higher education of women, come up for the old lady's disapproval. Then Fannie made a hand-spring into the conversation by remarking that when we had more educated mothers there would be less infant mortality.

"And, mind you, Fannie was really trying to be nice for my sake."—New York Times.

Too Much Expense.

"Yes," said Mr. Tyte-Phist, "I was just stepping on the car when the conductor gave the motorman the signal to go ahead, and the car started. My foot went out from under me, and I sat down on the muddly crossing, running a twenty-two dollar suit of clothes."

"Then you sat there, swore like a trooper and gashed your teeth in rage, I suppose," remarked the sympathizing listener.

"No," said Mr. Tyte-Phist. "I may have sworn a little, but I didn't do any gnashing. My teeth are new and cost me $30."—Chicago Tribune.

Waked Them Up.

Dr. Hans Richter, the famous conductor, while superintending a rehearsal in a London theater once was much annoyed at the vain way the players were taking the impassioned music.

"Gentlemen, gentlemen," said he, suddenly stopping short, "you're all playing like married men, not like lovers."—Westminster Gazette.

FIND A FRIEND IN GOMPERS

F. T. Martin and Clarence Jones Astonish Smart Set BY LUNCHING WITH CHIEF

His Embassy Speech in London Pleased Them.—American Federation Chief Lionized by Labor Members of House of Commons.

London, July 12.—Samuel Gompers' speech at the American Embassy Association banquet touched so sympathetic a chord in the breasts of Frederick Townsend Martin and Clarence Jones that they called on him at his hotel the next morning and insisted on his lunching with them to discuss further measures for the promotion of the Embassy Association propaganda. The spectacle of New York's Social and labor leaders hobnobbing together at the Berkeley Hotel made some fashionable Americans at other tables doubt the evidence of their senses.

"Yes," said Gompers to a New York World correspondent, "it is true that politics makes strange bedfellows. Martin is a nice fellow, and I hope he will prove a valuable recruit to the cause of labor. He is helping push a good thing for the purchase of embassies by our Government is a national necessity in our international intercourse. I shall be glad to do everything possible to help the cause without neglecting my own work."

While here Gompers received much attention at the hands of English labor leaders. On Thursday evening he was entertained at dinner for the second time this week by the members of the Labor party in the House of Commons. D. J. Shackleton, Vice-President of the party, in proposing a toast to "Our guest," spoke in highly eulogistic terms of Gompers' work in the cause of humanity in America. Gompers' reply evoked great enthusiasm.

"I have on Sunday morning for Calais where I will have a conference with the Lacemakers' Union," said Gompers to the World. "My Continental itinerary includes Brussels, Antwerp, Rotterdam, The Hague, Amsterdam, Bremen, Hamburg, Berlin, Dresden, Prague, Vienna, Budapest, Munich, Zurich, Bern, Basle, Cologne, Milan, Venice, Rome and Naples."

Gompers, who is accompanied by his wife and daughter, sails for home probably about the middle of September, after attending the English Trades' Union Congress here.

LIVES IN THREE TOWNS AT ONCE.

Beecher to Prove It to Get Pay For Sheep.

Winsted, Conn., July 10.—Burr Beecher, farmer, who lives in three towns at once, his residence being in Winchester, Goshen and Norfolk, had a flock of forty-five sheep attacked by dogs. Two of the sheep were killed, others were badly bitten and a number are still missing.

The dogs which did the killing were shot to death. They were owned by a poor Norfolk man. Beecher called upon the town to settle, claiming the sheep were in Winchester when killed or wounded.

Mr. Beecher knows exactly where each town line runs through his property. He votes in Goshen, sleeps in Winchester and milks his cows in Norfolk.

EJECTS POLICE BOARD.

Lowell Mayor Names New Reform Commission. Lowell, July 12.—The long promised overthrow of the local Police Board came Saturday when Mayor George H. Brown turned out of office the three commissioners, his former superiors and named their successors.

Frank K. Sterns, Thomas P. Boulger and Charles H. Hanson were the police commissioners removed at noon Saturday by Mayor Brown.

Their removal was accompanied with findings on charges recently preferred by the Mayor himself, which covered 64 typewritten pages.

Formal notices of removal, together with copies of the Mayor's findings, were sent by messengers to the deposed commissioners, who immediately announced publicly that they would take the matter to the courts.

Names New Commission. Scarcely an hour after the notice of the ousting of the police had gone from the executive office, announcement was made by Mayor Brown of the new commissioners. They are Simon R. Harris, chairman; Judge Charles S. Lilley and Winfred C. MacBrayne.

The new members are all close friends of the Mayor and pledged to his policies. They have all signified their willingness to serve upon the police board.

FINDS $25,000; GIVEN DIME.

Frank Will, a youth employed by the Mobile and Ohio Railway as coach cleaner, found the wallet and restored it to Mohlenbrock, who rewarded the boy's honesty by handing him a dime.

Mohlenbrock walked from the train to a hotel, nearly a mile, and had not missed the wallet. Will called him up by phone and notified him of finding it in a car.
