At the Theaterium, for two days, the feature picture will be "The Heart of a Race Track Taut," the scenes of the production being arranged around a race track, containing many elements of humor. The details are managed with more than ordinary fidelity and there is a movement and swing to the action which aptly depicts the life supposed to be represented, which adds to its interest and increases its attractiveness. "The Piddlers," a trick picture in which a company of minstrels do many interesting and amusing tricks.

"A Bride Won by Bravery." At the Comique. Here is one of those active Western dramas which are such prime favorites with so many people. This is a picture illustrative of the well known fugitive poem, commencing, "Twas 'way down in the Lehigh Valley," and it must be said the work is very well done. The different scenes are alternated with lines from the poem which carry the story along clearly.

TALK OF THE TOWN

Miers' sanitary barber shop grows in popularity because of superior service.

The Bijou has for a head-liner today that pathosic picture drama, "Poor Kid." It tells how a poor showman is giving performances along the highway and find a little child and sick mother.

The way he sacrifices for them in the preceding pictures and how in the end he is rewarded makes a very interesting film. Then there are two comic pictures for the children to laugh over.

"A Soldier in the United States Army" is the title of the feature picture today at Dreamland. It portrays the everyday routine life of a soldier of today. It shows the young man as enlists, the physical examination, the drills of a raw recruit, and some of the garrison experiences. They it shows the young man departing with his regiment for the Philippines, and finally the film shows a series of realistic scenes of a skirmish with a band of rebels. The rest of the program is well up the line in quality.
