The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

When Peary also reaches New York, the town won't hold both him and Cook.

It will seem like home for Barre people to tread on Barre granite in the streets of Paris.

This Indian summer would be quite satisfactory, if accompanied with a shower or two.

Strangely enough, Brookfield is said to be the driest place on this side of the state so far as water is concerned. What was the town named for?

If the present rate continues, the Vermont state fair will soon be an automobile exhibit. There was a sea of machines parked on the grounds yesterday.

State Highway Commissioner Gates was not at the state fair yesterday, as Mead and Merrill were. Perhaps Gates was busy doing what he is paid to do by the state.

The Waterbury Record, the past grand master in the art of "mentioning" people, has now brought Frank M. Corry of Montpelier into the limelight as a possible banker after the office of lieutenant-governor. The Record is in-Corry-gible.

Possibly President Taft will be able to survive the discourtesy which Columbus, Ga., is intending to force upon him. Columbus, Ga., by the way, will bring upon itself a large share of discredit if it does request the president not to visit the city if he can't stay as long as the citizens there would like to have him. The spirit displayed is decidedly peevish and childish.

Governor Johnson of Minnesota was worthy of the eulogy which will be given him. The Springfield Republican in the course of a very laudatory editorial says of him:

Since Lincoln, no American public man had risen from humbler surroundings. The romance of poverty clung to his childhood, and the masterful struggles of his youth against adverse circumstance present anew the old and ever wonderful story of the magic of American opportunity. The people of his own state took him to their hearts, and he repaid them with a devoted, intelligent and wise administration of their affairs. A keen politician, a strong speaker and irreproachable in character, at home he was irresistible and his entrance into a wider field was as inevitable as from the viewpoint of his admirers, it was pre-eminently to be desired. It is needless to add that Gov. Johnson's death changes considerably the problem of the future leadership of the Democratic party.

THE STATE FAIR ALL RIGHT.

Persons intending to visit the state fair need fear no fake if they steer clear of the fakirs. The part of the show which is under the management of the state fair commission is fully as good as it is advertised to be—clean, whole, some, and up-to-date in every detail, while the facilities for handling the immense crowd are quite adequate. If there were to be any criticism of the latter, it would be merely that the management build additions to the present grandstands. Although the present grandstands look cavernous when empty, they were not large enough yesterday to accommodate the people who flocked into them; and if the state fair is to increase in popularity, as it seems bound to do, these additions will be simply a necessity. This matter is something which was probably apparent to the commissioners yesterday. So long as the management maintains the fair at the present high standard, it certainly deserves the support of the whole people of the state. From entrance to exit there is something interesting, novel and instructive to be seen, and the "thrillers" are not absent, either. Such a gigantic entertainment has not been attempted in Vermont for many years.

CURRENT COMMENT

Official Autos Soon.

One of these days Vermont will appreciate the economic benefits possible to be realized in the public service by the employment of automobiles and her legislature will make an appropriation providing for motor vehicles for the use of the governor, auditor of accounts, highway commissioner, superintendent of education, commissioner of agriculture, and similar officials whose duties require them to do a great deal of traveling about the state. Indeed, the state highway commissioner is wisely making a great deal of use of the automobile today, thus supervising the details of work in miles and miles of road construction; that it would not otherwise be practical for him to see, and the governor is fortunate to have a car of his own which he has devoted to the state's service and his own official convenience. When these state officials are given the use of automobiles they will cover more territory in a given time, be independent of railway time-tables, avoid short journeys and lay-overs at night when several towns can be visited in one day, do away with many ho-

Stanley C. Wilson was in Montpelier on business Wednesday.

Millard F. George left Tuesday morning for White River Junction, where he will exhibit his patent cow stanchion at the state fair.

Cashier H. N. Mattison left Monday afternoon for a short vacation, which he will spend at his boyhood home in North Bennington.

The reports which are received here nearly every hour from Randolph are to the effect that Mrs. Geo. L. Stow, who was stricken with apoplexy while on a visit to friends in Randolph Monday evening, that she has not regained consciousness and is continually growing weaker.

The cemetery on the West hill, which is known as the Peter Wiggins cemetery, has recently been enclosed with a new fence. This is one of the oldest cemeteries in town, if not the oldest, and when laid out was by the side of a main traveled road, but the road was made a post road many years ago, since which time it has been, so to speak, isolated and surrounded by pasture land. A recent visit to this cemetery revealed the fact that there are forty-four graves there which it is impossible to tell whose remains are slumbering within them for the reason that most of them have only a little stone or remnant of a slate stone at the head and foot to indicate that a grave is located there. The balance of the forty-four have slate headstones which were never marked or which time and the action of the elements have effaced the markings. The oldest stone in the cemetery on which the inscription can be read marks the grave of a person who has been dead one hundred years, and the latest interments were made in the cemetery in the early eighties. It seems a lamentable fact that the resting places of our forefathers, the early pioneers, should have been so poorly marked or so grossly neglected as to have become lost in oblivion.

ARM BROKEN BY KICK.

Stephen Provost of Burlington Injured By His Horse.

Burlington, Sept. 23.—Stephen Provost of North avenue had an arm broken yesterday afternoon by a kick from a horse. Provost had just fed the horse and in coming out of the stall dropped his jack knife between the horse's hind legs. He stooped to pick it up and the horse, which is of a nervous temperament, landed a kick squarely on the left arm, breaking it below the elbow.

SOCIETY WOMEN'S HAIR

A Simple Treatment That Will Make It Truly Fascinating—Red Cross Pharmacy Guarantees It.

Nowadays every up-to-date woman has radiant hair.

What a foolish creature a woman would be if she lost the opportunity to add to her attractions.

Yet in America to-day there are hundreds of thousands of women with harsh, faded, characterless hair, who do not make any attempt to improve it.

In Paris most women have beautiful hair, and in America all women who use Parisian Sage have lustrous and luxuriant hair.

And any woman reader of the Barre Daily Times can have attractive and lustrous hair in a few days' time by using this great hair rejuvenator, Parisian Sage.

The Red Cross Pharmacy sells a large bottle for 30 cents and they guarantee it to banish dandruff, stop-falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

Parisian Sage is an ideal hair tonic, not sticky or greasy.

The high standard of the attraction at the Barre opera house this evening is vouched for by Manager John T. Brownman of the Bellows Falls theater, who telegraphed to Manager Hoban of the local house to-day as follows: "Paul Gilmore in 'The Call of the North' the best production ever in the house; six and seven curtain calls on each act."

JINGLES AND JESTS

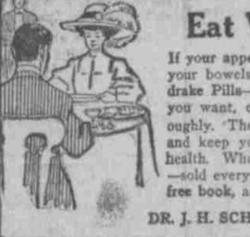

Exercise and Food.

"What do you want?" demanded Mr. Newlywed, as he confronted the tramp at the door of his bungalow; "breakfast or work?"

"Both, sir," replied the wayfarer, timidly.

"Well, eat that!" returned the other, savagely, handing out a biscuit and piece of steak, "and you'll have both."

Whereupon Mrs. Newlywed glared reproachfully at her husband, for he was giving away the first fruits of her culinary studies at the cooking school.—Brooklyn Life.
