WILLIAMSTOWN.

Sketch of the Late Andrew Burnham, a Newspaper Man.

The late Andrew Burnham, who was buried here last week, was born in this town in October, 1838, the son of Andrew and Nancy Hovey Burnham. His father was of a well-known family, in the early history of the town, and his mother was an East Brookfield woman and a bright, capable one. His life, till 18 years of age, was lived in town, when he went to Chelsea. It was there that in 1856 he married Mary, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hyde Cabot, by which marriage two sons, Herbert F. and Charles F., were born, the former of whom is living. Returning here to live, we think, about the time of his marriage, he remained a short time and then went to Washington. His wife died in 1872. A little later he went to East Braintree, and in 1875 he married Miss Clara Hebard of Randolph, who died some years ago here. He lived in East Braintree and West Randolph several years. In the last 20 years or more, he has had his home in our village, in which time he has been the local editor and manager of the Williamstown Herald, from its start to the present. Forty years ago, he lost the sight of an eye by a cataract, and later the sight of the other eye was destroyed by the horn of an animal. He had a year of total blindness, which was finally relieved somewhat by the removal of the cataract; and, later, the sightless eyeball of the other eye had to be fully removed. How greatly the man was handicapped in all the later years, and how much he suffered, in more ways than one, probably few of his fellows ever knew. As one considers it all, his brave struggle with the hard things he was called to endure must seem very heroic and pitiful. Mr. Burnham was a charter member of our Masonic lodge and continued in it to the end. The Williamstown Herald has had a large circulation here in town under Mr. Burnham's management and had no completely successful rival till the phenomenal rise of the Barre Daily Times. In the last year or two, Mr. Burnham had had a good deal of poor health, but we were hardly expecting the end to come so quickly, so suddenly. He seemed, however, to realize the situation. After years of living by himself, largely, he was taken to the home of his only living son, where, in the few remaining weeks of his life, everything was done to make him comfortable.

Our Village Improvement society will be glad, of course, to have all our citizens keep fresh in mind its entertainment on Wednesday evening of week after next, March 16, by the Housaton company. It will, doubtless, be very enjoyable.

A patron here of the Orange County Telephone company tells us that he has just paid a $5.00 tax for this year. Last year he paid $4.00, and before that he had paid $3.00. This is in addition to having to keep one's telephone and half-mile of wire in good condition, he said.

A conference of Sunday school workers is to be held on Thursday at the vestry of the M. E. church, conducted by Rev. H. A. Durfee, secretary of the state S. S. association. Sessions will be held at 2:30 and 7:30 p. m. All persons interested in Sunday school work should be present. The annual business meeting of the Williamstown S. S. association will be held in connection with the afternoon session.

We have just had the pleasure of an interview with an Orange county farmer concerning a short trip to Florida that he made, all told, for about $90. He went by boat from New York and went as far as the southern part of the state. He had been a sufferer from catarrh and thinks that he might find some relief there for that ailment. But, from the farming standpoint, the state offers him no inducements to go there to live. Yet he thinks there are chances there for speculation and that the money taken by that state by northerners helps to keep that ball rolling. He would advise that people take some, at least, of the talk of land agents with a good many grains of salt.

EAST BARRE.

Hugh Murray, who had one leg cut off in the Central Vermont yard at Northfield several months ago and was sent to Heaton hospital by the authorities of that town, has been discharged from the hospital and, without home or funds, must have his bills paid by some one. The woman to whose home he was taken when discharged from the hospital says she can keep him there no longer unless the city pays for his care. Montpelier will look to the town of Northfield for his support and has no doubt the overseer there as he was sent here by the authority of someone in the latter place.

A letter from Secretary General A. Howard Clark, Washington, of the National Society of the Sons of the American Revolution, has been received by William T. MONTPELIER.

Citizens Got On An Economic Strack At City Meeting.

A few points under consideration at the Montpelier city meeting caused a lively time. The proposition of building a new high school was discussed from all points and finally killed. Speeches in its favor were made by John H. Senter and F. A. Rowland. A warm discussion took place when the article in the warning, to see whether the city would instruct the city council to supply the city hall committee with the funds necessary to complete their work, was read. On the motion of A. J. Sibber, the article was dismissed from consideration, the motion being enthusiastically carried. The city tax rate was made $1.50, on the motion of George Blanchard, though Mayor Dawley insisted that the rate was not large enough. The article to consider the exemption of the manufacturing establishments of Dillon and Emmons, together with the business and personal property used in such business, was adopted and the exemption was voted viva voce. The motion was carried to exempt the business of Robert Fraser for a term of five years, the article asking for exemption for ten years. There was much debate over the motion of exempting the business of the R. J. DesColines company. It was learned that the company had been exempted before that there had been frequent changes in the ownership and that each time exemption was asked. F. E. Keenan of the firm stated that he had paid taxes last year and the company had invested over $1,000 in the business. Then Mr. Senter made a compromise motion that all capital over $1,000 and the property be exempted for a period of five years. This motion was carried as an amendment to the original motion that the exemption be granted. A motion was also carried to exempt the Excelsior Granite company for five years. An article to see if the National Granite company be exempted from taxation for ten years was dismissed, as it was found that it is already exempt until 1913. Motion was carried to abate the mill taxes of the members of the state militia.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

"East Lynn" at Barre Opera House Saturday Night.

Although dealing with modern events special attention has been paid to the costumes of these players, so that in many of the scenes "East Lynn" presents a sartorial display, which resembles the oft repeated "class of fashion" of interest alike to men and women. Still the good old blood and brawn of old Adam are always in evidence for the play is thoroughly human in all its episodes. At the Barre opera house Saturday, March 5.

A WONDERFUL DREAM.

The Poor Cobbler Who Found Himself Upon a Throne.

It was in the days of Philip the Good, duke of Burgundy, that a cobbler mounted a royal throne. As the duke was traveling one night to Bruges he came upon a man stretched upon the ground sound asleep and bade his attendants carry him to the palace, strip off his rags and place him, robed in fine linen, in his own bed.

When the man awoke next morning he was addressed as "your highness" and surrounded to find himself among such rich surroundings. In vain he protested that he was no prince, but a poor cobbler. They asked him what clothing he would wear and at last conferred him, splendidly dressed, to mass in the ducal chapel. Every ceremony was observed throughout the day. The cobbler appeared in public in his new role, was received on all sides by command of the duke with deep respect and ended his brief reign in the palace with a grand supper and ball.

When presently he fell asleep he was reclothed in his rags and taken to the spot where he had been found when this practical joke was conceived. Waking in due time, he returned home and related to his wife what he took to be his wonderful dream.

His Good Work.

The director of a prison received an order after many years' service. He had all the prisoners called together and made the following speech to them: "As you see, I have been decorated, by royal grace, with an order. But I willingly acknowledge that this has been attained not alone by my own merits, but by the co-operation of all of us. I can also declare, with pleasure, that since I have occupied this office the number of prisoners has increased from 400 to 700—a fact of which both you and I may be justly proud."—London Tit-Bits.

Advertisement for J. J. Carney Mfg. Co. NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN TO THE PUBLIC throughout Washington county that E. M. Trow, and Lowell McLeod, have secured the rights for applying this patent. Full information can be obtained at their headquarters, McLeod's blacksmith shop, on Seminary street, where they have installed a plant to apply this patent on all wagons. The new way requires no jacking up, no taking off of the wheels to reoil them. It has been demonstrated from the sands of New Hampshire, severely tested on Greylock mountain, and has proved itself to be champion of the world as a practical wagon oiler. You do not have to buy new axles, the patent can be applied on the ones you are using. The J. J. Carney Manufacturing company do not ask you to take their unsupported word. We have 50 running feet of testimonials from reliable firms. We present you the names of those who have used it, read their own statement. To the Public. If you have wagons that you have to jack up and take the wheels off to oil them, make no mistake in listening to J. J. Carney as he certainly surprised me on my ice wagon, when he told me that I could throw away my jack and stop taking off wheels to oil them. He had done it. My big ice wagon is running and we have no need of a jack and can oil them with ten ton weight on them. M. W. Chadbourne. Established 1815 Office of the Abbot-Dwaine Company. Concord, N. H., Jan. 3, 1907. Mr. J. J. Carney, State Mgr., Champion Long Distance Oiler. Dear Sir: One of our customers wishes the "Champion Long-Distance Oiler" on his wagon. The axles are 2 1/4-inch, and we send them to you herewith. Please equip them with the Oiler and return to us at our factory here. Very truly yours, Abbot Treadwell, Treasurer. Lowell, Mass., June 24, 1908. To the J. J. Carney Mfg. Co., Haverhill, Mass. Gentlemen:—I have severely tested the Champion Long Distance Oiler during the past two years. I find that oiling wagons in the old way was costing us two hundred and twenty-five dollars per year, by jacking them up and taking the wheels off. I find that the new way costs us eight dollars and twenty-five cents per year, and this disagreeable job of oiling in the old way is a thing of the past. A child can oil our wagons now. It is a saving in money, and a cure and safe wagon oiler, one that the public can rely upon. Also, its manager, J. J. Carney, is a reliable man to do business with. E. A. WILSON & CO. Haverhill, Mass., May 1, 1909. To the J. J. Carney Mfg. Co., Haverhill, Mass. Gentlemen:—There is nothing that I would not say in praise of the Champion Long Distance Oiler. For its purpose, it is the best device that was ever put on a wagon. Eight months' test has proved to me, beyond all doubt, that your Oiler has come to stay, and I have no hesitation in recommending it to the public to be a practical device. Yours truly, L. F. ADAMS, Treas. People's Home Furnishing Co. Full particulars concerning rights of counties can be obtained by those who desire to install plants in cities and towns by addressing The J. J. Carney Mfg. Co. at their office at Fitchburg, Mass. or Haverhill, Mass. You will obtain information from either offices. Its managers will be here for the next few days, and will be pleased to show you all about this wonderful wagon oiler. Agents wanted in every locality to establish and conduct our plants. Must be reliable.
