News from Montpelier this week seems to make it sure that Mrs. J. K. Lynde is gaining in strength, thus laying the foundation for better things later on. Wharad, we are rejoiced.

The union chorus is practicing for an Easter concert at the union service at the Methodist church Sunday evening, March 27. An overhauling of some of the music reads us to believe it will be enjoyable.

The editorial mantle of the late Andrew Burnham of the Williamstown Herald has fallen, for the time, at least, on his son, Herbert, who is a paperhanger here. His work seems to give satisfaction to patrons.

Mayo Lynde, who, we are told, has been taking a sort of vacation in Salt Lake City, has gone back to his sheep ranching. We judge he likes the work, while he looks forward to greater benefits from thorough acquaintance with the work.

It is yet too early for safe predictions as to the maple syrup crop here this season. Those who were prepared for it last year are disappointed. This far this week, we think, the run has been light. But there seems to be time enough yet for a good crop.

We were lately pleasantly surprised in taking from our post office a letter to an unknown handwriting, directed to "the Williamstown correspondent of the Barre Times," and bearing the postmark of St. Louis, Mo. The writer of the letter proved to be an old-time Williamstownian, of a score and more years ago, who is keeping in touch with persons and things in these parts, through the medium of the Barre Times. It is always pleasant to hear of the affectionate interest taken in our town and state by former residents, and it has long been a source of satisfaction to us, personally, that we have been able to do anything to keep any of these old friends in loving touch with friends and scenes of earlier days. We are glad now to see something of St. Louis through the eyes of one of our old friends, who has been in the green hills and vales of our own section. First of all, we may say that our correspondent is not violently in love with St. Louis; and he proceeds to speak of a seamy side of it, indeed. Of course, he finds representatives of nearly all nations there. "In many districts of the city there is no observance of the Sabbath, and stores, theaters, clubs, and other places, all doing a flourishing business on Sunday." "There is a saloon on nearly every corner, although the law is on from 12 p. m. Saturdays till 1 a. m. Mondays." "In spite of an army of policemen, crimes of all sorts abound, with an average of nearly a hundred a week." This much for the shady side. "St. Louis is a great, thriving city, and particularly of shoes. It is said that a pair of shoes is turned out every second of the year. Of the 200 saloons of one shoe firm there, 22 are doing business in New England," and so on.

We were greatly pleased to see, recently, the address of the young Italian from Vermont as a prize debater in Yale university. We are of the number—and we hope, an increasing number—who rejoice in the belief that from the newcomers to our shores our own country is to receive great good. Surely the long history of Italy and of Spain must lead us to know of some of the probable great and fine possibilities in their soil. If we may be allowed to speak of personal experience now and here, we would say that since 1893 we have been brought into close touch with some of these sons of Italy, and especially of those who are engaged in teaching after their day's work in the granite sheds has been completed. We have not space here to speak of our admiration of their eager desire to learn our English language, and of their natural ability, as we have seen it, and especially of their gentlemanly manners, as they have always shown them in our home. These things are only a part of the reasons for our great and kindly interest in them all. As to the education of the children of these newcomers, we have no fears that our state and country will not do its whole duty. We only wish there might somehow be a far greater provision for the men of 20 to 30 years among them, who are so eager to learn our English language and for whom, we believe, private teaching is far the best thing where it can be had; and, finally, we can say that any man who gratuitously takes up this work—with but a single learner or one or two evenings in a week—will find that he may be getting as much, or even more, benefit than he gives his pupil. Let us all lend a hand in this work.

MONTEPELLIER.

Mother of Albert S. and Irving L. Sparrow died yesterday in Calais.

Almira M. Sparrow, mother of the proprietor of the Montpelier House, died yesterday in Calais at the age of 89 years. Mrs. Sparrow was born in Walpole, Mass., and after her marriage to Abner D. The remains of Newton Flint of Brookton, Mass., were brought to East Brantree last Thursday for burial, accompanied by his daughter and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Flagg, also a son, Anson Flint, all from Brookton, Mass. Prayer was at Williams hotel, Friday afternoon, and burial was in Brantree hill. Mr. Flint lived for many years in East Brantree till the death of his wife many years ago, since then he has lived with his children. Mr. Flint was 83 years old.

THE YOUNG CYNIC.

A dominie, after telling his scholars the story of Aesop and Sapphira, asked them: "Why is not everybody who tells a lie struck dead?"

"After a long silence one little fellow exclaimed: "Because there wouldn't be nobody left!"—TII-Bits.

The best way to carry Ashes is in a Hod! Crawford Ranges. Have an Ash Hod in the base into which all the ashes fall far below the fire. They can't bank against the grates and warp them, and they can be emptied easily without spilling. The Coal Hod is alongside the Ash Hod—out of the way. This feature is a wonderful labor and trouble saver and is patented. Another trouble-saver of the Crawford is the patented Single Damper. One motion—slide the knob to "kindle," "bake" or "check"—the range does the rest. No damper mistakes. The Oven has cup-joint heat flues that heat it alike in all parts. Ask the Crawford agent to show you and write us for circular. Walker & Pratt Mfg. Co., 31 Union St., Boston. FOR SALE BY C. W. AVERILL & CO., BARRE AGENTS

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

"Uncle Dave Holcomb" a Worthy Successor of "The Old Homestead."

William Lawrence is coming this way with his latest starring vehicle, "Uncle Dave Holcomb." The play has been seen this season in Boston, Providence, Philadelphia and the larger cities, where both press and public declare it to be a worthy successor of "Way Down East," "Quincy Adams Sawyer" and "The Old Homestead." It will be remembered that Lawrence played Benjamin Thompson's part in "The Old Homestead" for the past five seasons, and in "Uncle Dave Holcomb" he has a play better adapted to the times dealing with a problem that now confronts the nation. Every father and mother should see this play, and above all, they should have their children see it. The play contains nothing to frighten or offend any one, but will make one feel better after having seen it. Mr. Lawrence has given the play a splendid mounting and together with the original city cast will appear at the opera house on Thursday night.

"The Girl from U. S. A." which appears at the opera house on Saturday, matinee and night, is said to be a literary invention. It makes everybody sit up and taken notice. Though showing in its evolutions the social life of the orient in its two most striking phases, it is so vividly American in sentiment, so vigorously clever in dialogue, and astonishingly true as to types and characters, that no one over thinks that any of its exciting complications are other than the natural events of real life portrayed so strikingly. Of course it is a love story. A story of late also—with its twin, romance of unlawful desire and lawful triumph. And it shows in vivid glooms the complicated politics of other lands, and the close relationship of our own government with the one free press on earth, whose mighty voice controls the world, and decides the fates of individuals and nations.
