The force of the collision sent the horse and wagon up against the curbing, but nothing was broken.

HE PLAYED CRITIC.

The Composer Tried to Be Funny and Got a Surprise.

Signor Leoncavallo, the composer, recounted an amusing experience that befell him in a theater where he occupied a stall one evening to hear the performance of his "Pagliacci."

At the finale a stranger sitting next him kept exclaiming enthusiastically: "What a masterpiece! What a perfect masterpiece!"

Leoncavallo, imagining himself utterly unknown in the audience, thought it would be fine fun to play the critic of his own work, so chimed in ironically:

"A masterpiece? I don't in the least agree with you, sir. I'm a musician myself, so know what I'm talking about. The fact is this opera is a worthless production and brimful of imitations and plagiarisms. For instance, that cavatina is filched bodily from Berlioz, the duet in the first act is all Gounod, while the finale is a sorry copy of one you will find in Verdi."

Next day Leoncavallo drove to the railway station and bought the leading local journal. On comfortably seating himself in the train he opened it and was agast with astonishment at encountering the following lines:

"Signor Leoncavallo's opinion on 'Pagliacci.' Declaration of plagiarism. Confession of a composer bereft of all originality."

The great Italian master added, "Evidently my neighbor was a journalist who had dogged me, but to this day I have cold shivers every time I recall the incident."

Origin of the Letter V.

The letter V may be regarded as the mutilated remains of one of the symbols used by the ancient Egyptians in their hieroglyphics or picture writing. A common animal in their country was the two horned sand viper, a representation of which stood for V. The priests ultimately found that for the practical purposes of everyday life it was a waste of time to use elaborate hieroglyphics and invented a kind of shorthand to meet the occasion. In this the snake was reduced to a V with a dash (V-) to represent horns and body. The Phoenicians adopted this letter, and from them we got our V by loss of the dash, leaving only the two little horns of the original picture. This snake is still common in Egypt and is probably the one mentioned in Genesis xlix, 17, "Dun shall be a serpent by the way, an adder in the path, that biteth the horse heels, so that his rider shall fall backward." Travelers tell us that it is still addicted to this unpleasant habit.

The Eyes of the Musk Ox.

The skull of the bull musk ox is remarkable for the development of the eye orbits, which project sufficiently beyond the plane of the frontal bones to compensate for the interruption the horns would otherwise make in the range of vision. The musk ox, however, does not seem to rely greatly on keenness of sight, far less on acuteness of hearing, for the ears are so small and dimly seen and are completely covered by the heavy growth of fur about them. The organs of scent are evidently more highly developed, and they exact of the hunter his greatestunning.

Resolutions for P. F. McCarthy.

Resolutions of the lumpers, boxers and derrickmen's branch, No. 59, Q. W. I. U., of North America, on the death of Patrick F. McCarthy.

On Monday last, the 20th of June, the sad news came to us that our beloved brother and able leader, Patrick F. McCarthy, was no more. The lips that had spoken so eloquently in the cause of labor and of humanity were still; the heart that ever beat true to the cause of right and justice and that held no malice or envy for any man had ceased to beat; the active brain that worked for the cause of his fellow men had ceased its earthly work. Our generous, helpful friend, who was always on the alert to do some act of kindness or friendship, has gone from us. Large brained, large hearted, ready of wit and eloquent of tongue, our community and the cause of organized labor is left the poorer by his death. In sorrow we bowed to the divine will. Now, therefore, we the members of the lumpers, boxers and derrickmen's branch, No. 59, of which organization Patrick F. McCarthy was a member, do hereby resolve that we extend to the family of our late brother our sincerest sympathy in their affliction.

Resolved, That we, the members of this organization of which he was the able leader, feel that in his death we have sustained an almost irreparable loss, for he was our leader, who, with unselfish and unflinching zeal, labored in season and out of season for the advancement of our principles and the success of our organization.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family of our late brother, a copy be spread upon the records of our branch, that copies be sent to the press and that our charter be draped in mourning for sixty days out of respect to our late brother.
