

NATURES WARNING

Barre People Must Recognize and Heed It. Kidney ills come quietly—mysteriously. But nature always warns you through the urine. Notice the kidney secretions. See if the color is unhealthy—If there are settlings and sediment, Pills, To ward off Bright's disease or diabetes. Doan's have done great work in Barre. Norman York, 29 Branch street, Barre, Vt., says: "I was subject for six years to attacks of kidney trouble, and I believe the complaint was brought on by a strain. I had pains in my back and was led to believe that my kidneys were out of order by too frequent passages of the kidney secretions. If I stooped to lift anything, it was only with the greatest difficulty that I could regain an erect position. I finally used Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at E. A. Brown's drug store, and their effect was wonderful. The pain in my back soon ceased and the kidney secretions no longer bothered me." For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

The Best Hour of Life

Is when you do some great deed or discover some wonderful fact. This hour came to J. R. Pitt of Rocky Mt., N. C. when he was suffering intensely, as he says, "from the worst cold I ever had. I then proved to my great satisfaction what a wonderful cough and cold cure Dr. King's New Discovery is. For, after taking one bottle, I was entirely cured. You can't say anything too good of a medicine like that." It's the surest and best remedy for diseased lungs, hemorrhages, la grippe, asthma, hay fever, any throat or lung trouble. 50c or $1.00. Trial bottle free. Guaranteed by the Red Cross Pharmacy.

CABOT.

Miss Bernice Pope of Orange, Mass., is visiting at Bert Smith's. Mrs. Alice Ormsbee is ill at the home of her nephew, Ernest St. John. Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Wales are at Peake's island for a two weeks' outing. Mr. and Mrs. O. R. Collins of New York are stopping at the Winooski house. Ernest Smith has purchased the Charles Harvey farm at Lower Cabot and is moving. Miss Glenn Adams of Barton is at her grandfather's, Hiram Russell, on west hill. Mr. and Mrs. Lyndon McAllister went to St. Johnsbury last week to visit their daughter, Mary. Alonzo Foster, 24, went to Barre last week, where he had an operation performed on his nose. Mrs. Alonzo Wheeler and children of Hardwick were at her father's, John Noyes, at Lower Cabot, over Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Chadwick and son have returned to their home in Bethel, after visiting her father, J. M. Fisher. S. C. Voadry is a nominee for representative from the Democratic party, and Dr. L. W. Burbank from the Republican party. Clement Howland died at the home of his brother, Charles, on Whittier hill last week, after several months of illness suffering. Mrs. Harry Foster has a petunia plant containing 108 blossoms and numerous buds. The blossoms are dark red and measure 2 1/2 and 3 inches across. John Livingston made his first appearance as licensed auctioneer at the auction of J. M. Fisher, August 17, and proved himself to be a very efficient man for that place. J. M. Fisher has sold all his property in this town and gone to live with his daughter, Mrs. F. M. Parrott, in Montpelier. Mr. Fisher has been a lifelong resident of Cabot, where he has held important offices of trust, and, although his declining years and feeble health have lately deprived him of filling such places and mingling in society as in days past, he will be missed by the townspeople, in the church, and in the neighborhood where he lived. The good wishes of his many friends go with him.

WILLIAMSTOWN.

Miss Saida Boyce, a teacher of large experience here, will have one of our village schools next term. We are told that a daughter of Frank McWhorter of Barre City will have one of the primary departments in our village school next term. We are just told that N. B. Robinson is going now to extend his water system farther in Mill village, all the springs supplying it being on the old General E. Bass farm. Dr. E. B. Watson's outside office, vacated not very long ago by Solon Patterson, has been put in condition for the occupancy of a teacher-to-be in one of our village schools. We once heard one who was suffering from liver trouble talking with one of Vermont's noted physicians, and the only advice given him by the medical man was, "Eat apples." Mrs. Barna D. Fink, who is here from Denver, Col., just now, tells us that her sister, Mrs. Barnet Goodrich, who lives in a suburb of Denver, is in very poor health with heart trouble. Tracy L. Jeffords, for some years a resident of Washington, D. C., has just told us that never since he was of voting age has he failed to vote somewhere, but at no time has it been in this, his native place. A very pleasant automobile party, consisting of four ladies from the homes of Mrs. J. E. Ainsworth and the Misses Edson, were taken Tuesday to Northfield and Brookfield by C. M. Edson in his automobile. It was a delightful day and a delightful trip. Mrs. Charles R. Benedict is just coming under the annual spell of hay fever that she suffers from so greatly. Mrs. Ezra D. Benedict was for years here a great sufferer from the same trouble, but since going some years ago to Long Beach, Cal., she is said to be entirely free from it. Messrs. Charles Tink* and Col. Chandler and brother of Brooklyn, N. Y., were in town last week on an automobile trip. Col. Chandler's brother told us he was in a company with the late Lewis and Chester Clark at the time of the late Civil war. The party went from here to Chelsea. We learn with great pleasure of the success of Corey, the young son of the late Wallace and Mrs. Clara Norris Hunter, who went not many months ago to the Albany, N. Y., business college from Northfield, where Mrs. Hunter lives at present. Before he had quite completed his course, he had a chance to enter the employ of a lumber firm, somewhere on the Hudson river, as cashier and bookkeeper. We expect the young man to "make his mark," as he goes on in life. Old acquaintances here of his mother and late father will hope it.

Canada's Alien Ruling.

VERMONT WOMAN HAS GAINED RENOWN

Helen L. McLean, Aged 90, Still at Her Desk in Treasury Department in National Capital. Washington, D. C., Aug. 25.—Ninety years ago, was 1820, and that was the year in which Helen L. McLean came into the world. Forty-seven years ago was 1863, and that was the time when Mrs. Helen L. McLean Kimball became the first woman clerk in the service of the United States government. Here is 1910 and 9 o'clock of every working day finds Mrs. Kimball at her desk in the big gray treasury department building, ready for work. The condition of many clerks, weaker in spirit and body and superannuated under the weight of 70 or 80 years, serves to emphasize the high qualities and extraordinary career of Mrs. Kimball. Dignified and cheerful, she is an inspiration to her associates. In accordance with a rule made early in life, she refrains from uttering words of complaint or criticism and looks for a bright spot in every problem. She found early in her experience, she says, that there was more than enough gloom and sadness in the world, and that her part should be to help in relieving those burdened with trouble. It is to her consistent optimism and her ability to keep her mind free from worry that Mrs. Kimball to a large extent attributes the length of her life and the happiness of her later years. Her duties always have been and are performed with efficiency that evokes nothing but commendation from the officers of the department. She is active, enjoys the best of health and performs without favor the duties that go to make up the day's work of the average clerk. She has an active, well-stored mind and is gifted and entertaining in conversation. Mrs. Kimball naturally has the appearance of an elderly woman, but time has dealt gently with her and 85 years would be the average age estimate by persons not aware of her remarkable history. In her time the map of the nation has undergone many changes. Kings have been born, ruled and passed away; and many of the scientific discoveries and the inventions that count as the biggest factors in the world's progress have been made. She has seen transportation developed from the slow stage coach to the modern railroad, to automobiles and flying machines, and as a means of communication the courier supplanted by the telegraph, the telephone and the marvel of wireless telegraphy. There has been something of a transformation in the treasury building since Mrs. Kimball entered its doors. She began service there while the Civil war was at its height, and the treasury house known only in its gloomy dignity to the present generation was an arsenal. Rifles and munitions of war filled all the available space and soldiers filled the corridors. Mrs. Kimball lived in New York, and her appointment was brought about without her knowledge by John J. Cisco, the United States subtreasurer in New York. A few women were employed in trimming notes in the office of Treasurer Spinner, whose name is revered by all feminine federal employes as that of the first man to place women on the government payroll. Scarcity of labor on account of the war led Spinner to the adoption of this plan. There were no women clerks, however, when Mrs. Kimball came over from New York and broke the monopoly that had been held by the men. Through the influence of Senators Morrill and Edmunds of Vermont, her native state, she was soon appointed treasury librarian. The treasury library at that time was quite an important factor in the organization, and Mrs. Kimball greatly extended its field of usefulness. When John Carlisle became secretary of the treasury under Cleveland, the treasury library was practically abolished, the books being sent to the congressional library, and Mrs. Kimball was transferred to the office of the comptroller of the currency. There she has labored in good health and good spirits, winning a host of friends in the army of treasury employes. These friends introduced the wonderful old lady to fame recently by arranging a celebration of the ninetieth anniversary of her birthday. An office was adorned with flowers, a table was spread, with a big birthday cake in the center, and Mrs. Kimball was escorted into the improvised reception hall to receive bouquets and congratulations. As a result of it, all of Washington began talking of this young woman of 90 who had the strength and independence to make her own way and to look only on the bright side of things of the world. Near the close of work a few days ago, Mrs. Kimball was found at her desk busy with an assortment of imposing looking official documents. She smiled when she greeted the visitor, but displayed great reluctance when she learned that the object of the inter-
