AMUSEMENT NOTES.

The Theatre As Medicine.

A writer in American Medicine—no doubt a physician—sets down his belief that most persons suffering from insomnia, melancholia, brain fog and various other nervous disorders, should seek cures in the theatre. "You can't get the same benefit," he says, "by sitting at home and reading a funny book. You need the brilliant lights, the crowds of gayly dressed persons about you, the music of the orchestra and the continuous action of the stage to take you out of yourself and transport you to a world where worry is unknown. Reduce your doctor's bills by paying a few dollars in advance at the box office." This is a prescription—although it seems to be directed exclusively toward the comically amusing which no actor and no manager will question. And most other persons would better try it before scoffing at it.

John W. Vogel's big city show will appear at the opera house on next Friday night, Jan. 20 and will render a programme that will do one more good than a hundred doses of some medicine.

The Mystery.

"So there's another rupture of Mount Vociferous," said Mrs. Partington, as she put on her specs. "The paper tells us about the burning lather running down the mountain; but it don't tell how it got afire."—Tit-Bits.

Miss Winifred Horrigan of Fall River, Mass., is spending a week with friends in the city.

Miss Nome Hayes and Miss Stella Blanchard are passing a week with relatives in Boston.

Five granite manufacturers went to Northfield this afternoon to inspect the working of a new table invented for turning stones for a surface cutter, which is to be tried out this afternoon. Those who went were Douglass Barley, L. C. and W. E. Beck, J. P. Corskie and W. M. Brown.

The Shamrock basketball team went to East Barre last evening and defeated the local team in an exciting game by the score of 22 to 20. The line-up of the teams was as follows: Shamrocks; Smith, Carroll, Troup, Tomas, Grady; East Barre—Taplin, Roark, Hagan, Mathieson, Lahey. Referee, William McDonald.

Again the Methodist brotherhood invite the public to their evening service at 7 o'clock Sunday, January 15. There will be fine music by the large male chorus, which always is a very pleasing feature. Dr. Thayer will follow with one of his interesting and helpful talks on "The Traveling Salesman Christian." If you have never heard Dr. Thayer, take this opportunity to do so. If you have heard him, we are sure you will want to hear him at this service.

The young men of the Barre Baptist church are glad to announce that the Collegiate Singing Girls will appear at the Barre opera house Wednesday evening, February 1. This is a strong musical company composed of eight young women. They are accompanied by Walter Beels, also a noted solo singer. See the paper for further accounts. Remember the date, Wednesday evening, Feb. 1.

TALK OF THE TOWN.

A large maple tree which has stood in a decayed condition in front of the Aldrich library building for five years, was cut down this morning.

The Goddard seminary second team will go to Waterbury to-night, where a basketball game will be played with the athletic association of that place.

About twenty-five friends and class mates of Miss Jean Darling were entertained at her home on Laurel street last evening. The rooms were tastefully decorated in the Spaulding school colors. During the evening different games formed a part of the program. The affair ended with a dainty lunch served in the dining room.

At a meeting of Barre branch, G. C. I. A., held in the opera house last night, it was voted that the union is not in sympathy with the bill now before the Vermont Senate regarding arbitration of labor disputes. This followed the report of the legislative committee which was not favorable to the measure.

"A Salesman's Creed" will be the subject of Dr. Thayer's address to-morrow night at 7 o'clock at Hedding Methodist Episcopal church. This meeting is to be under the auspices of the Methodist brotherhood, and Hedding male chorus will sing several selections and lead the musical program of the evening. All men not worshipping with any other congregation are cordially invited to attend this brotherhood service.
