Labor Bureau Issues Striking Bulletin

IN TEN YEARS' FATALITIES

In North America 29,293—This Is at Rate of 3.11 Per 1,000—Many Accidents Due to Ignorance of Foreign Men.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Through misunderstanding of orders or by reckless disregard of the necessary rules of operation, foreign born workmen, without actual experience in mining, who are employed in large numbers in this work, often imperil not only their own lives, but also those of trained and experienced workers, according to a bulletin by the bureau of labor.

The rates by geographical sections show that in the east central portion, which comprises western Kentucky, Illinois and Indiana, the fatality rate for the twenty years ending with 1908 was only 2.25 per 1,000 employees, while in the western section, Colorado, New Mexico and Utah, it was 6.4 per 1,000 and in the Pacific coast section, Washington and British Columbia, per 1,000.

The author argues in favor of better education of the miners and of better training of foremen, superintendents and examiners. The most important single and well defined cause of accidents is fall of coal or roof, 46.6 per cent. of all fatal accidents in the ten year period being due to this cause.

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 24.—Federal Judge Bellstah, after an argument lasting all day, refused to grant a writ of habeas corpus asked for on behalf of Porter Charlton, whose extradition has been requested by the Italian government.

Charlton, who is a citizen of the United States, after the murder of his wife, came to this country and was arrested as he landed in Hoboken. Before the committing magistrate counsel for Charlton sought to prove that the young man was insane at the time of the commission of the crime and subsequently there was a hearing before Secretary of State Knox on the application of the Italian government for Charlton's extradition.

INSURGENT LOSS 5 KILLED

The Trap Set for Force of Two Hundred Men—Only 40 of Them Escaped, According to the Report.

Presidio, Tex., Jan. 22, via Maria, Tex., Jan. 24.—That fully one hundred of the governor's troops were killed in the fight two days ago at Ojinaga was the report received here yesterday. It was further stated that the heavy casualties were due to an ambuscade.

The government troops were caught in a trap and were literally mowed down by the storm of bullets which swept their ranks from three directions. The insurgents occupied the cliffs and mountains and the soldiers were in the road with the only way to escape and that blocked.

The road winds through a narrow canon forming a "cul de sac" into which the government troops marched. When all were in the pan the insurgents swept down the mountain side in the road behind them and the firing began.

The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in general debility lies in their direct response to the needs of the blood. Their work is to make new blood. That they do this well is shown by the gradual disappearance of the symptoms and the return of color and health.

Mr. Peter Hoff, of No. 108 Ferry street, Hoboken, N. J., who was in a run-down condition, restored his health with the tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. He says: "I was in poor health for three months following a severe cold and was confined to bed for a day or two at a time. There was a terrible soreness through the small of my back, which often prevented me from straightening up. My kidneys were affected, my head ached occasionally and I was unable to get much sleep. I had no appetite and was generally run down."

"I was under a doctor's care for a time but gave up his treatment to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills upon the advice of a friend. They soon helped me and after a thorough trial I was so improved that I could go to work. I was completely cured and recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills highly."

DEATH MAKES QUICK REPRISAL

Victim in "Soo" Train Thought to Be Murderer Fleeing from Crime.

Tahle River Falls, Minn., Jan. 24.—In a dead man taken from a Soo line train here the police detectives see a possible murderer, stricken down by death during his flight from the scene of his crime.

The disappearance of L. R. Lowe, a young business man of Cannoning, Ont., and the fact that a number of Lowe's papers were found in the dead man's possession, strengthens this belief. The mysterious unknown also was traveling on Lowe's ticket.

When the body was discovered Saturday night soon after the north bound Soo train for Winnipeg had left Eskrine, it was supposed that the man really was Lowe. When this city was reached doctors were called, who said the man died from strangulation.

Papers on the body gave the address of Lowe's relatives and his brother, Glenn Lowe of Morris, Sask., was notified to come here.

It was when Glenn Lowe arrived that the case developed into a mystery. For the Morris man declared he never had seen the dead man. He told the police that his brother had been in Chicago on his business and that the last the family had heard of him was about three weeks ago.

It is known that young Lowe had a considerable sum in cash in his possession in Chicago, and as the dead man here also carried a large amount of money it is the theory of Glenn Lowe that his brother was murdered and robbed and that his murderer is the man in the local morgue.

Further examination of the body disclosed that the clothes worn by the dead man had been made in Utica, N. Y. Cards were found bearing the name Theodore Hampstead and the address Utica, and the man's laundry was marked "T. H."

with money loaned by the will of Mrs. E. D. Rand, the widow of a millionaire lumberman.

"I am surprised," said Mr. Lee, "that Goldsborough should have attempted the life of Mr. Phillips, who lived near us, sometimes came to see us and took a friendly interest in us. We know little of Goldsborough or his antecedents. He came to us as a socialist and said he would like to live with us. We rent rooms and he took one of them. He owned a violin and gave lessons. I am told he had been writing begging letters to Mr. Phillips. We know nothing of that."

Harrison Phillips, David Graham's youngest brother, said Goldsborough had been bothering David with letters and telephone calls to the Princeton club for a month or six weeks, but that his brother had never been able to learn what the man's grievance was. He thought perhaps they had met at some socialist gathering and that Goldsborough had insisted Phillips ought to "do something for the cause."

Mrs. Caroline Fervet, Phillips' sister, who lived with him at the National Arts club, doubts if David had ever met the man, although she, too, said he had been bothered with notes and telephone calls in the morning. One of the members of the Princeton club said that when Mr. Phillips was asked who shot him, he answered: "I don't know."

TARIFF COMMISSION FAVORED

Committee on Ways and Means Will Report Longworth Bill.

Washington, Jan. 24.—The ways and means committee will report a tariff commission bill to President Taft and to business men throughout the country who have been active in behalf of such legislation at this session of Congress. As a result of President Taft's demand that the House leaders give the country a real permanent commission, the ways and means committee has abandoned its plan of reporting the Daltzell bill, making the present board permanent. The bill to be reported today will be substantially the bill introduced several weeks ago by Representative Longworth of Ohio. It will create a permanent commission of five members and will confer the power of sending for persons and papers. Unlike the interstate commerce commission, however, the tariff commission will not have the right to appeal to the courts to compel the appearance and the production of papers if manufacturers and others decline to recognize the commission.

John C. Cobb of the Boston chamber of commerce, who has conferred with members of the ways and means committee regarding the bill, yesterday expressed himself as satisfied with the measure and predicted that a tariff commission would be authorized by law before Congress adjourned.

ETIQUETTE OF COURTSHIP. Clearly Defined on Isle of Iviza, Where There Are Ten Men to One Girl.

With regard to Iviza, the third in importance of the Balearic isles, which lie midway between Spain and Africa, its complete history has never been and never will be written. From the fragmentary records existing, one gathers that from earliest days occupation of the lovely and fertile island was hotly contested. Chaldeans, Egyptians, Phoenicians, Romans, Greeks, Vandals, Saracens and Moors fought for its possession. Since the Argonese invasion of the thirteenth century, Iviza has belonged to Spain.

They say there are ten men for every woman in Iviza, and the aspect of the roads on a sunny April morning inclined us to believe the report, for from every direction came fine, strapping fellows moving in droves. In striking contrast to the expansive attire of the women, the men's dress appeared designed to accentuate their natural slenderness. The trousers of richly colored velvet or plush fitted closely to the limbs except at the ankles, where they spread widely, while their further adornment, being gaily lined shirts or short, full blouses, jackets and bright sashes. The popular large felt hats were lavishly adorned with gold cords and in addition to one necktie for use it was customary to add a second and even a third for show.

Some of the women rode mules, sitting perched high on a pile of sheepskins, multicolored petticoats billowing about their neat ankles. A plentitude of neckties placed low on either side of their sagging foot matting. With its flippant hues and staid cut, the native dress was a bewildering combination of garishness and sobriety. As the morning advanced, a moving throng resplendent in color crowded the market place. Girls temporarily free from their chaperons were parading in delectable rows, their hands holding pocket handkerchiefs heavily edged with crocheted lace, sedately crossed over their short but voluminous green silk aprons. It was perhaps only to be expected that wherever we saw a bevy of girls a corresponding cluster of men would be at hand. Yet we rarely saw them address one another. The modern etiquette of a rustic courteship in Iviza is clearly defined. A plentitude of suitors being assured, it is the maiden who makes the selection. The admirers of a marriageable girl wait for her outside the church door on Sunday, and when she leaves mass the one who has the prior claim presents himself and walks beside her for the first portion of the homeward journey. Then, at a given point or within a stated time limit, he yields place to the second and the second to a third until the number is exhausted.

If any suitor seeks to transgress the unwritten law, pistols may flash and knives are apt to spring. In all other matters the people of Iviza are peaceable and on all points moral and virtuous. It must be admitted that certain of the more frolicsome spirits keep up the custom of saluting the maidens of their choice, with a charge of mud, aimed at the ankles, and it is devoutly to be hoped that the unwieldy masses of petticoats serve at least one useful purpose by shielding the wearers from the saline missiles of love's artillery.—Chambers' Journal.
