MONDAY, FEBRUARY 13, 1911.

Published every week-day afternoon. Subscriptions: One year, $3.00; one month, 25 cents; single copy, 1 cent.

Entered at the post office at Barre as second-class matter. Frank E. Langley, Publisher.

The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the year 1910 was copies, the largest circulation of any daily paper in Vermont outside of Burlington.

The score in the game of police-baiting stands in favor of the Yale freshmen, although Cornell is a close second.

The Rutland News is disturbed by the use of the phrase, "Sentenced to Rutland," in place of "Sentenced to the house of correction." Perhaps it was a slight exaggeration.

For the Grand Trunk railroad to build its Massachusetts line on land which is the personal possession of President Melan of the New York, New Haven & Hartford R. R. is carrying coals to Newcastle in earnest and piling them on, too.

The famous rush for California in 1849 to gather gold will be duplicated in part by the rush to San Francisco for the 1915 Panama exposition. Those who get in on the ground floor will have a chance to gouge the upper-story arrivals.

With both Taft and Roosevelt shouting for Canadian reciprocity through the middle West, the policy is in a fair way to get through. It is one of Taft's "my policies," which the former president is generously supporting, thus showing that Roosevelt is not always the grand-stand player he has been credited with being.

Judge James L. Martin of Brattleboro, presiding in a United States court in New York, imposed a heavy sentence on sugar grafters a short time ago. Now he has sent a prominent woman to jail for three days, in addition to a fine, for smuggling. Judge Martin may fall under the displeasure of a few, but he will gain the commendation of the many. The smuggling game is overworked, and as it is done by the rich, the culprits have had the money to pay fines with. A prison sentence is different.

We now know that Governor Simeon Baldwin of Connecticut has just passed through a bitter experience, for yesterday he declared that the newspapers of the present day print one-quarter column of proof, one column or probability, perhaps a little more of possibility, and the remainder just ordinary lies. Perhaps Governor Baldwin forgets that the every-day occurrences of life are facts, not lies, and that most of the newspapers of the country are busy presenting those every-day occurrences in concise form. Hence, they cannot present such a volume of lies as he suggests. Mr. Baldwin, is your nose on straight?

WILL NOT HURT THE FARMER.

Objection is being made to the proposed reciprocity agreement with Canada on the ground that it would injure the farming interests. This objection is made not so much by the farmer, as by other interests which know they cannot prevent its adoption if they give their real reasons for their opposition. But Secretary Wilson in his letter shows that the farmer has nothing to fear from Canadian reciprocity. He says we get from Canada timber that is very much needed and will prevent the halting of building operations. The southern states will have a new market for their cottonseed oil; Canada opens her door to our fruits; free fish will help the farmer; free barbed fencing wire is in the same class. Nor does the secretary forget the intimate relations between the manufacturer and the farmer. He shows that reciprocity with Canada is different from an ordinary tariff act, and that it will stimulate manufacturing. Then he adds: "When a workingman loses his job in the factory, the farmer loses his custom."

There is no more reason for a high tariff wall between Vermont and Canada than there is for one between Vermont and Massachusetts.

ARGUING FOR PROMPT SETTLEMENTS.

As an argument in favor of prompt settlements of present difficulties in the granite industry at Westley, R. I., and Quincy, Mass., it is being asserted, and with some truth, too, that Barre lost heavily in diverted orders during the suspension prior to the signing of the existing agreement. Therefore, Barre is being held up as an example for the guidance of the wranglers in other granite centers. The Granite Cutters' Journal, that keen advocate of the granite cutters' interests, is actively presenting this view of the matter, declaring in its current issue that "Employers in those states (New England outside Vermont) were not sympathetic with the Barre manufacturers' huge blunder, and while the suspension in the granite belt of Vermont was on, employers and their agents in other parts were busy trying to cut in on the Barre trade by assuring dealers near and far that there being no suspension in their localities orders placed would receive prompt and careful attention." Then follows a statement in favor of the employed, it is undoubtedly true that both the granite centers named did gain materially through the suspension of work in the Barre belt and that were the conditions to be reversed in the next few weeks there would be a consequent reversal of results. There is, also, on the other side, that distressing feature of general suspension of business, the loss of standard wages by the employed, which should influence to prompt settlements of disputes. Therefore, looking at the situation from an unbiased standpoint, it would be advisable to handle the disagreements in Westley and Quincy so promptly that no suspension would be made.

whatever they had gained from Barre a year ago, and more besides.

Whether the statement be used as an argument in favor of the employers or in favor of the employed, it is undoubtedly true that both the granite centers named did gain materially through the suspension of work in the Barre belt and that were the conditions to be reversed in the next few weeks there would be a consequent reversal of results. Current Comment

Montpelier's Climate.

The Vergennes Enterprise says: "No one can question the genuine hospitality and the public spirit of the people of Montpelier. Given half a chance, such as more favored cities and towns in Vermont have, they would make their city the one bright spot on the map of Vermont. What her public spirited and loyal citizens have done for the capital city is deserving of emulation. The Journal is right, they do want every guest, legislative or otherwise, to leave the city with a good impression and satisfied with the treatment received, and it is not their fault if guests leave otherwise. It is simply the 'blasted climatic condition,' not the people of Montpelier, that is at fault." What is the matter with the climate, neighbor? We thought we had a very good one, that did not differ materially from the rest of Vermont. If you will get the members of the House and Senate to agree on the kind of weather they want, we will see what can be done with the obliging weather man at Northfield.—Montpelier Journal.

DISCUSSING A RAZOR.

To Show Whether It Could Have Been Used In Alleged Murder.

Woodstock, Feb. 13.—Just before the Saturday adjournment of the Pompeia laccobucci murder trial in Windsor county court, Dr. H. C. Jackson of Woodstock was called to the stand. Questioned by R. J. Trainer, he said he had practiced medicine seven years; is a graduate of Dartmouth and has attended the Post Graduate school of New York. He had investigated the cuts on the body, and made an examination of the skull in this case. Was in court when Dr. Stone testified, and examined the cut marks that appear on the skull. He was questioned as to the nature of the instrument used to make the cuts found on the skull and neck bones of the murdered man. He thought they were made with something which had both a sharp edge and a point. Some of the wounds were evidently made with the edge, but one of the two must have been made with a sharp pointed instrument.

When asked if the cuts on the skull were made with a razor he replied that it would depend on how much time was taken. If they were made deliberately a razor might have been used. If they were made with the aid of violence it would be apt to dull the razor and the following cuts would be jagged. It would be apt to break the razor. He regarded it as doubtful that the razor in evidence could have made the wounds and remain in its present condition. He would not say as to whether certain cuts were made with a razor but did not think they appeared to be made with a sharp edged instrument.

In cross examination by Attorney General J. G. Sargent, Dr. Jackson said it would depend on how the razor was used and the temper of the steel with respect to breaking or dulling in cutting on bone. The remainder of the cross examination appeared to be an endeavor to prove the razor had been ground or otherwise altered since it was used to kill Schittini. If it were so used, Court adjourned to this afternoon before the full report of the attorney general's line of question was disclosed.

Edison Passes 64th Milestone.

Orange, N. J., Feb. 13.—Thomas A. Edison received messages of congratulation Saturday on the occasion of his 64th birthday. He spent the day at work in his laboratory. To his wife, who tried to get him to take a little outing, he said he was "too busy."
