

Keep Your Bath Room Spotlessly Clean with Gold Dust

Soap will not do the work properly because soap only cleans the surface—it does not dig deep after germs and hidden impurities like GOLD DUST—the greatest of all sanitary cleansers.

To keep bath tub and lavatory shiny-white and inviting—To keep metal pipes, fixtures and taps brightly burnished—To purify metal bowl—

To keep tiling and woodwork spotless and beautiful—

Simply add a heaping teaspoonful of GOLD DUST to a pail of water. You will be surprised at the ease with which it does the work. GOLD DUST sterilizes as well as cleans—and saves you one-half the labor.

"Let the GOLD DUST TWINS do your work"

GOLD DUST is sold in 5c size and large packages. The large package offers greater economy.

"Heart Beats of Long Ago," a story of the fourteenth century. In the days of long ago, where the heart directed there the cavalier forged his way, no matter what the obstacle. Even life was given in the hearing of the heart's prompting, as a feud existed between two Italian houses and it meant disaster to any one of the belligerents to intrude into the opposing house. It's at the Dreamland.

MONTPELIER.

A Cassina Bound Over to Washington County Court.

Claude Valle, at whose home on Barre street a raid was made Tuesday, when considerable liquor was found, and A. Cassina, who claimed the stuff as his, were arraigned in city court yesterday on the charge of keeping with intent to sell. Valle was discharged and Cassina was bound over to county court in the sum of $300. The officers were inclined to believe that Cassina's claim to the liquor was a frame-up between himself and Valle, and that the latter was the real owner, but decided to take Cassina's word for it and bind him over to county court.

An Island of Black Cats. "The Island of Black Cats" is a name often applied to Chatham island, one of the Galapagos. It is in the Pacific ocean, about 730 miles west of the coast of Ecuador. It is overrun with black cats, and cats of no other color are seen there. These animals live in the crevices of the lava foundation near the coast and subsist by catching fish and crabs instead of rats and mice. Other animals found on this island are horses, cattle, dogs, goats and chickens, all of which are perfectly wild.

A Startling Reply. "It is very detrimental to the conversation if you play bridge while talking. A gentleman once entered a room and walked up to a lady who was deeply engrossed in correcting her score. 'How d'ye do, Mrs. So-and-so?' he exclaimed. 'I have just met your children with the nurse. By the way, how many have you got?'"

"The lady looked up and replied, 'Sixteen above and twenty-four below.'"—From "The Confessions of a Bridge Player," by Quilon.

Buttons. The Elizabethan era gave vogue to the button and buttonhole, two inventions which may fairly be regarded as important, since they did much to revolutionize dress. The original button was wholly a product of needle work, which was soon improved by the use of a wooden mold. The brass button is said to have been introduced by a Birmingham merchant in 1680. It took 200 years to improve on the method of sewing the cloth upon the covered button. Then an ingenious Dane hit upon the idea of making the button in two parts and clamping them together with the cloth between.

Twenty Years Ahead!

Crawford Ranges

Other ranges have not advanced in any material way in twenty years. They have the same cook-confusing, food-spoiling way of regulating by two dampers.

Crawfords have but One Damper (patented); one motion controls fire and oven absolutely; slide the knob to "kindle," "bake" or "check"—the range does the rest. No damper mistakes.

Ordinary ranges have the old clumsy ash pan; troublesome, untidy.

Crawfords have an Ash Hod (patented) into which all the ashes fall, far below the fire—making their disposal easy and cleanly. The Coal Hod is beside it.

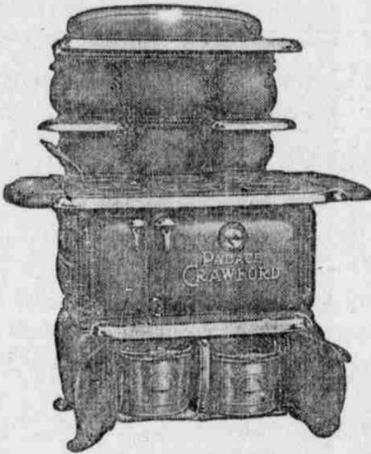

Crawford Ovens have cup-joint flues that heat every part uniformly.

Crawfords have Patented Grates—most durable, least trouble.

Gas Ovens and Broilers at end or above range furnished if desired.

Ask the Crawford agent to show you and write to us for circulars.

KILLING THE UMPIRE.

It is an Essential Part of the Great Game of Baseball.

According to bleacher law, there are three particularly justifiable motives for doing away with umpires. An umpire may be killed—first, if he sees fit to adhere to the rules and make a decision against the home team at a close point in the game; second, an umpire may be killed if he sends a member of the home team to the bench when the player in question has done absolutely nothing but call the umpire names and attempt to bite his ear off (an umpire has no business to be touchy); third (and this is a perfect defense against the charge of murder), an umpire may be killed if he calls any batter on the home team out on strikes when the player has not even struck at the balls pitched. That the balls go straight over the plate has nothing to do with the case.

There is ample proof at hand to show that killing the umpire is a distinctively American sport. Other countries have tried baseball, but they have not tried killing the umpire. That is probably the reason why they have not waxed enthusiastic over baseball, for baseball without umpire killing is like football without girls in the grand stand. It simply can't be done. That foreign countries know nothing about our kind of outdoor sports was indicated forcibly when in the fall of 1909 the Detroit team made a trip to Cuba under the management of Outfielder McIntyre. In the entire series of twelve games with the Havana and Almendares lines not one single objection was made by either the Cuban players or the silent Cuban spectators to a decision of the umpires. The Americans did not know what to think of it—until they counted up the gate receipts at the end of the series. Then they realized that in their own country it is the delight in killing the umpire rather than the pleasure in watching the game that draws the tremendous crowds through the turnstiles.—George Jean Nathan in Harper's Weekly.

MEASURES OF LENGTH. Light Waves and the Wonderfully Accurate Interferometer.

At the bureau of weights and measures at Sevres, France, the standard meter of metal, which is the standard length of the world, is kept carefully in an underground vault and is inspected only at long intervals. In Great Britain similar care is exercised in guarding the standard yard measurement. As it was possible for these metal standards to be destroyed or damaged in the course of time, it was decided a number of years ago to determine the exact length of the standards in wave lengths of light, which would be a basis of value unalterable and indestructible. For this purpose the instrument known as the interferometer was invented. This instrument represented the highest order of workmanship and the greatest skill of the best opticians of the world. A series of refracting plates were made, the surfaces of which were flat within one-twentieth of a wave length of light, with sides parallel within one second, representing the utmost refinement of optical surfaces ever attempted. With the interferometer perfected, the attempt was made to make the wave length of some definite light an actual and practical standard of length. For over a year scientists worked to secure this result, and experiments finally showed that there were 1,553,164 1/2 wave lengths of red cadmium light in the French standard meter at 15 degrees centigrade. So great is the accuracy of these experiments that they can be repeated within one part in two millions. So inconceivably small is such a possibility of error that should the material standard of length be damaged or destroyed the standard wave length of light would remain unaltered as a basis from which an exact duplicate of the original standard could be made.—Chicago Record-Herald.
