MAYORESS ASKS FOR STATE HELP

Objects to Cartoons and Says Nasty Councilmen Won't Meet With Her—All Kansas to Back Her.

Topeka, Kan., May 20.—"Smile and do not take too seriously the comment made by citizens. When one enters public service he or she must be prepared to take criticism. All the little doings of a public officer occupying the high position of mayor are the subjects of free comment on the part of free citizenship."

This was the advice sent to Mrs. Ella Wilson, mayor of Hunnewell, Kan., in a letter Thursday by Attorney General John S. Dawson. The mayor had complained to Governor Stubbs, who referred the matter to the attorney general.

Mrs. Wilson in her complaint said the councilmen refused to meet at the place she named, and she also told of a cartoon from a Glasgow (Scotland) paper, in which the woman police officer of Hunnewell was shown arresting the burly burglar. "Don't twist my arm," says the burglar, "I'll go quietly."

Under the cartoon was poetry, and this and the picture were criticized by the mayor.

In closing his letter Mr. Dawson says: "I can assure you that you will be protected in your rights and the laws of the state and the city ordinances of your town will be obeyed if it takes the whole power of the state of Kansas to back you up."

SLAIN MAIN CALLED VERY QUARRELSOME

Several Witnesses So Testify in Behalf of Frank J. Boyd Who is Being Tried for Murder.

Newfane, May 20.—The defense was practically concluded in Windham county court this morning when the trial of Frank J. Boyd of Wilmington, on the charge of murdering John Potter, was resumed. Much of the evidence put in by the defense was regarding Potter's reputation, and practically all testified that he had a quarrelsome disposition and that he was violent at times.

The witnesses who testified in regard to Potter's bad reputation were J. D. Kildner, Edith Foster, Arthur Lyons and Wilson Robinson of Wilmington; Charles Waste and Horace Smith of Jacksonville, Frank Davis of Whitingham; W. W. Stowe and George Hayden of Coldrain, Mass.

Clara Grimes, a sister of the respondent testified that about 4 o'clock on the afternoon the assault took place Potter came to the house for a drink of cider and said he had got to have his pay. He would take it out of his pay. He then went out of the kitchen down the steps and picked up a sled stake leaning against the wood pile. She begged him not to go to the sugar house, whereupon Potter replied that if Boyd didn't pay him he would fix him.

Potter kept on toward the sugar house and the witness went into her started for the sugar house fearing house to get her rubbers and then started for the sugar house fearing trouble would take place.

At the corner of the house she met Frank Boyd, who was running and crying. She, with Walter Boyd, a nephew of the accused, and Ada Boyd, a niece, went to the sugar house where they found Potter lying on the floor with a sled stake in his right hand.

Walter Boyd asked him if he wanted to go to the house and he said "yes." Potter refused to go, and he and the others and when they arrived at the house Potter complained of being sick. He sat down on the piazza and later vomited. The witness said she helped Potter into the kitchen and to the couch where the accused, Frank Boyd, helped her wash Potter's face and that Frank rubbed him and sat fanning him until Potter died.

Ada Boyd testified she was in the house caring for a small baby and that she heard Clara and Walter beg Potter not to go to the sugar house. Potter said he would fix Frank if he didn't pay him.

Representative Joseph G. Martin of Brookline testified to being at Windham county court house when Boyd was brought to Newfane jail and that he examined him.

He said he found a black and blue spot on Boyd's hip two inches long and one and one-half inches wide, and his neck was broken on Boyd's left elbow about the size of a half dollar and a place about two thirds as large as a man's hand was red.

W. F. Benson, the county jailer practically corroborated Martin's testimony.

Charles S. Chase, senior member of the firm of Chase and Daly, who are defending Boyd, moved that the jury be taken to the premises and the motion was denied by the court.

Other Colleges Concede New England Championship

AS RESULT OF THE TRIALS

Gutterston of the University of Vermont Was the Individual Star of the Preliminaries at Springfield, Mass., Yesterday Afternoon.

Springfield, Mass., May 20.—With Dartmouth conceded to be the winner of this year's New England intercollegiate athletic association championship, interest in the finals at Pratt field to-day centered in the struggle for second place between Williams, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Wesleyan and Bates. Hundreds of undergraduates came into the city this morning.

To the disgust of the collegians and the delight of the Connecticut valley farmers, rain again threatened to make the games disagreeable from the spectator's standpoint for the third consecutive year.

The trial events were run off yesterday, which left Dartmouth with sixteen strong representatives for the finals. In case of victory to-day Dartmouth will get permanent possession of the second championship cup.

The teams from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Williams, with 10 men each for the finals, might threaten Dartmouth if it were not for the fact that these two teams are badly bunched in single events.

Although Dartmouth carried off the team honors, A. L. Gutterston of the university of Vermont was the star of the afternoon. He made the fastest time over the low hurdles, jumped a foot farther than the others in the broad jump and qualified in the high jump as well. He missed getting into the discus throw by a short distance.
