

KING GEORGE V. WAS CROWNED IN SPLENDOR TODAY

Scene Inside Westminster Abbey Was One of Mediaeval Splendor With Wealth of Religious Rites and Royal Ceremony.

HUGE CROWD JAMMED STREETS OF LONDON

King George and Queen's March To and From Buckingham Palace Was One Continual Ovation—Queen Mother Alexandra Was Not There.

KING GEORGE AND QUEEN MARY IN THEIR MAGNIFICENT CORONATION ROBES.

KING GEORGE V. King George V., crowned to-day with impressive ceremonies in Westminster Abbey, is the sixth ruler of the House of Hanover, son of the late King Edward VII, and grandson of Queen Victoria. He is 46 years old this month.

London, June 22.—King George V., to-day was consecrated to the service of the British empire, and, in turn, he received the public homage of his world-wide subjects. With the consort, Queen Mary, His Majesty was crowned in Westminster Abbey with all the wealth of religious rites and the royal ceremony prescribed by history and customs.

Outside, the usually dull streets were transformed into masses. The king's and queen's progress to the Abbey and their return to Buckingham palace was an unbroken ovation. The route was hedged with a vast horde, with a background of decorated reviewing stands. Windows and roofs were crammed to their capacity. Hundreds shouted themselves hoarse. The welcome was almost deafening.

The king was anointed by the archbishop of Canterbury, girded with his sword, invested with the imperial robe, ring and scepter. Reverently the archbishop placed the crown on the king's head and again the trumpets sounded and the Abbey shook with cheers. Her majesty was nervous and wept at the crowning.

The king was anointed by the archbishop of Canterbury, girded with his sword, invested with the imperial robe, ring and scepter. Reverently the archbishop placed the crown on the king's head and again the trumpets sounded and the Abbey shook with cheers. Her majesty was nervous and wept at the crowning.

Ascending the throne, the king received the homage of the archbishop with a kiss. He then took the Prince of Wales in his arms and kissed him affectionately. The more simple service of crowning the queen followed. Her majesty anointed the crown placed upon her head and received the ring, scepter and ivory rod. She then ascended the throne and as the king passed the queen, husband and wife made obeisance. When the actual crowning was signalled to the public outside by the bells, the host broke forth in a chorus, "God save the king." The strains were taken up at each succeeding section of stands along the route until the largest choir ever known simultaneously sang the anthem.

After the sacrament, the procession reformed at the Abbey and the appearance of their majesties, with the crowns, was the signal for cheering. The king and queen smilingly bowed and when Buckingham palace was reached, the king and queen appeared on the balcony. Then a cheer went up which surpassed anything that had preceded it affording the most thrilling moment of an interesting day.

THE CORONATION OATH.

The Archbishop of Canterbury administered the Coronation Oath, saying: "Will you solemnly promise and swear to govern the people of this United Kingdom and the Dominions thereof according to the statutes in Parliament agreed on and the respective laws and customs of the same?"

The king: "I solemnly promise so to do."

CROWNS OF SOLID GOLD.

The Crown placed on King George's head to-day is of solid gold studded with precious stones of inestimable value, including 3,000 diamonds, 300 pearls, and hundreds of rubies, emeralds and sapphires. The Queen's crown contains the famous Koh-i-Noor diamond with its legend of bringing good luck.

Ascending the throne, the king received the homage of the archbishop with a kiss. He then took the Prince of Wales in his arms and kissed him affectionately.

The more simple service of crowning the queen followed. Her majesty anointed the crown placed upon her head and received the ring, scepter and ivory rod. She then ascended the throne and as the king passed the queen, husband and wife made obeisance.

ROYAL GUESTS.

Over forty members of Royal families, 250 rulers of foreign states, 1,450 Earls, Dukes, Lords and Ladies, 300 Ambassadors and Ministers, 1,500 representatives of the Army, Navy, Judiciary, Clergy, etc., formed part of the 7,000 guests at Westminster Abbey to-day.

Some of the Decorations. The gorgeous street preparations have been in progress for weeks. They reach their climax at Westminster Abbey and the streets immediately in the vicinity of the cathedral. The troops present are picked regiments of the army, and the bands of music the best the English barracks, and the seven sea dominions could send out.

AMERICANS AT THE CORONATION.

America is represented at the Coronation by the American Ambassador, Whitelaw Reid, the American Special Envoy John Hays Hammond, many American wives of English Peers, members of the American diplomatic corps, and many unofficial Americans, including Charles P. Taft, brother of President Taft.

The decorations are most lavish and massive in the near vicinity of Westminster Abbey. Trafalgar Square is one mass of color, while the vista down Whitehall, Lockspear street, Pall Mall, St. James street and Piccadilly, are magnificent and bewildering with countless flags, bunting, garlands and wreaths and festoons of flowers.

Night illuminations have been projected to add a splendor to the scene that the light of day could not give. London, to-night, doubtless will be more brilliantly illuminated than any other spot in the world.

Among the notable buildings that are to be resplendent and glowing in electric lights, fashioned to form expressions of loyalty and good wishes to the king and queen, are the Bank of London, the Royal Exchange and the Mansion House, numberless clubs and big business houses; Dorchester house, the residence of Whitelaw Reid, the American ambassador; the offices of the American embassy, in Victoria street, and Stratton house, Piccadilly, the residence occupied by John Hays Hammond, the special American ambassador to the coronation.

Nor are the illuminations to be limited to London. Every city in the provinces is to have its display of electric and gas lighting to-night; the vessels of the British fleet in the channel are to be ablaze with twinkling decorations and the flashes of their powerful searchlights, and throughout the United Kingdom, cities are to be illuminated to-night and enthusiastic demonstrations are to be held to celebrate the coronation of George V and Mary III.

Vermont's Progress and Needs.

Those who have enjoyed the privilege of traveling about the state during the past few days can fully and heartily subscribe to the following words of the Bennington Banner:

"Vermont is at its best at this season of the year and reports from all over the state show that the recent discussion and advertisement of Vermont attractions coupled with the progressive action of the state in improving its highways is already bearing fruit. We need more good hotels, not necessarily mammoth resort hotels but well managed country inns, where people from outside the state can secure the comforts and luxuries that the summer tourists demand. Some day the people of Vermont will wake up to the fact that millions of dollars can be added to the income of the state by the proper development of the hotel business."

A summer hotel on the Underhill side of Mount Mansfield and other hoteleries scattered about the state at interesting points would do for Vermont what New Hampshire's host of hotels have accomplished for the Granite state, and sooner or later we are bound to have them. Our railroads are becoming an asset to the necessity of these attractions, and it remains for our people as a whole to become aroused to their grand opportunities.—Burlington Free Press.

VERMONT PHARMACISTS.

Elected Timothy Neville of Vergennes as President.

Burlington, June 22.—At the annual election of the Vermont Pharmaceutical association yesterday afternoon the following officers were elected:

President—Timothy Neville of Vergennes. First vice-president—A. B. Anderson of Swanton. Second vice-president—F. J. Kinney of Orleans. Third vice-president—Guy C. Rocheleau of Burlington. Secretary-treasurer—W. E. Terrill of Montpelier.

Trustees of the permanent fund—W. F. Root of Brattleboro, F. P. Pollard of Proctorville, N. C. Dodge of Springfield. Mr. Terrill has served nine terms, and was firm in his refusal to accept a re-election, until persuaded by the evident desire of the association to continue him in office. The trustees were also re-elected.

The following names were presented with the usual recommendations and voted in membership: Harvey B. Davenport of Bennington, Arthur H. La Rochelle of Barre, John B. Lambert of Burlington, Joel B. Bly of Newport, John K. Shaffer of Bradford, Henry A. Leonard of Randolph and Henry A. Church of Bellows Falls.

The Pharmacists' Auxiliary. The Traveling Men's Auxiliary of the Vermont Pharmaceutical association, which was formed for the purpose of giving the druggists a good time when occasion offers, held their annual meeting yesterday afternoon in the parlors of the Hotel Vermont with the largest attendance at such a meeting which the organization has yet known. In addition to the transaction of routine business much was done toward furthering the ends of the association and a very satisfactory year was shown to have passed. Steps to secure Burlington as the place for the meeting each year were also taken.

The new officers are: President, C. G. Maynard of Brattleboro; vice-president, E. B. Hyde of Springfield, Mass.; secretary and treasurer, W. L. Wood of Woodstock, who was re-elected. The executive committee was appointed as follows: J. E. Riley of Danville, Mass.; L. C. Huggart of Springfield, Mass.; P. B. King of Rutland, and F. J. Henderson of Elkhart, Ind. The press will be in charge of G. J. Shanley of Winooski.

The reports of the officers showed that the membership of the association had increased 25 per cent. during the past year and the spirit of the members was admirably shown when it came to a question of "coming up" where it meant money. The retiring president, C. L. Flint of this city, made a well received address after the election of officers, and a number of others spoke along lines of suggested improvements and advanced ideas for giving the druggists a good time.

WOMAN KILLED IN BURLINGTON HOUSE; HUSBAND ARRESTED.

Table Leg Was Perhaps the Weapon Used—Her Husband, Azotio Croto, Was Arrested on Suspicion.

Burlington, June 22.—When the body of Mrs. Jane Croto was found last evening at her home, 98 Battery street, her husband, Azotio Croto, was arrested on suspicion in connection with the case. Both the Croto have had long police records, having been arrested many times for fighting. Stories of the neighbors state that both were drinking heavily yesterday.

The first head of the case last evening was when Croto appeared in the doorway of the Revere house, which is next door, and said that his wife was ill. He wanted a doctor and Dr. C. A. Zaas was sent for. When the physician arrived, the woman was dead, lying in a heap on the floor. Dr. Pease thought her death looked suspicious and at once notified Health Officer C. F. Dalton, who, with Deputy Chief P. J. Cosgrove, went at once to the scene. State's Attorney H. B. Shaw was also notified and arrived shortly afterward.

Upon the arrival of the police, the woman had been strangled and was lying on the floor with a pillow under her head. It afterwards developed that three boys, Harry Bayley, Alvi Blair and a third by the name of Champagne, had entered the house by the rear and had placed the pillow under her head.

The table, which always stood close to the wall, was swung about, and one leg was found to be broken. Measurements showed that the two marks on the left forehead corresponded in width exactly with two ridges on the table leg. To an observer it looked much as though the table had been wrenched away from its accustomed place and the leg, which showed that it had been loose for some time, torn from under it. These were the only marks shown on the woman. The table, however, had one leg broken on from it and the dishes were broken and scattered about the floor.

The statement of a witness, Dominick Lawrence, who had been there during the afternoon, showed that both Croto and his wife had been drinking and further testimony from the neighbors told that the couple had been accustomed to rove. Last Saturday afternoon, Aaron Everitt, employed by the municipal lighting plant, was walking on the street toward his home on Pitkin street when he saw Croto engaged in an altercation with a young man. Just as he approached he saw Croto strike the boy, knocking him over. He ascertained the cause of the row and was told that Croto had been abusing his wife. She was then crying in the doorway.

Aside from his quarrelsome disposition, Croto seems to be a good citizen. He has been a hard worker and owns the house in which he lives. Of late years he had been employed in the Burlington steam laundry, but has not worked there recently. The dead woman is about 65 years of age and was born in South Burlington. She has lived in this city for the past 50 years. There are no surviving children of the couple, but there are several grandchildren. Mrs. Croto was formerly married to Charles Champagne, who still lives in the city, and to Eugene Carpenter, before she married Croto.

ON MERCY OF SENATE

Wool Revision and Farmers' Free List Bills

WITH NO RECOMMENDATIONS

Senate Finance Committee Decided Today to Throw Both Into Senate and Let Them Run Chances With Reciprocity.

Washington, D. C., June 22.—The already tangled situation in the Senate was still further complicated to-day when the finance committee decided to throw the wool revision and the farmers' free list bills into the Senate to take their chances along with reciprocity. The committee refused to take the responsibility for reporting in detail on the measures and decided that the case should fall upon the coalition of Democrats and insurgents. The committee forestalled action, Senator Clapp offering a resolution of instruction to the free list bill. The effect on reciprocity is problematical.

SEEKS FREEDOM BY HABEAS CORPUS

George Phillips, Prisoner in State Prison, Who, When Transferred to Waterbury, Fled and Was Recaptured.

George Phillips, who is a prisoner in the Vermont state prison at Windsor, has applied for a writ of habeas corpus on the ground that he is unlawfully detained in the prison. Phillips was committed to prison from Addison county court for burglary, his sentence being not less than two years and not more than two and a half years. Before the completion of the term he was sent to the asylum at Waterbury on the supposed ground that he was troubled with tuberculosis and that the change would stop the progress of the disease.

On being placed in the Waterbury institution Phillips escaped and was recaptured, being then taken back to the state prison at Windsor, and his sentence was started over again. Now Phillips claims that he was unlawfully transferred to the asylum and also that he cannot be held for the serving of his sentence over again.

CHURCHES FEDERATE.

Unusual Action by Congregationalists of Burlington and Winooski.

Burlington, June 22.—By the terms of the articles of federation ratified at a meeting last night, Rev. Ernest G. Guthrie, pastor of the First Congregational church of this city, becomes the pastor of the federated churches, the Winooski Congregational church and the First Church of Burlington, Rufus C. Flagg, pastor of the Winooski church, becomes associate pastor.

The federation of the two churches was decided upon to promote the interests of the respective fields of labor. The articles are to continue in force for five years. Under the terms of the federation each church is to preserve intact its own legal and ecclesiastical existence and organization but will seek from each other counsel and service whenever needed. Each church will elect its own officers and committees having respect to the new conditions of the federation.

The two churches will act together as one church having two places of worship. The pastor of the First Church, Mr. Guthrie, will be the pastor of the federated churches. When an associate pastor is to be chosen he will be nominated by the Burlington church and elected by the Winooski church, each church acting separately.

PHELPS MUST DIE.

Says Massachusetts Supreme Court in Murder Case.

Boston, June 22.—The conviction of Silas N. Phelps, aged 38, for the murder of Emmett F. Haskins at the home of the defendant in Charlemon was upheld by the full bench of the supreme court yesterday. Defendants' objections were overruled. He must suffer death in the electric chair.

He had been employed at the Ramo paper company in Munroe. He was discharged by Supt Penman June 11, 1910, and he stabbed Penman. About four o'clock the following morning Sheriff Haskins, with a posse of six persons, went to Phelps' home. The latter refused to admit the deputy or to come out. Finally he fired a shot, killing the sheriff. Phelps escaped to the woods, but was caught.

A number of exceptions were taken in regard to the admissibility of evidence, all of which the court overruled. One exception was that the sheriff had no warrant and so was a trespasser, which justified the defendant in firing the shot. The court holds the sheriff had a right to force an entrance into the house, having suspected the defendant of stabbing Penman.

South Royalton, June 22.—The wedding of Miss Isabelle P. Martin of this place and William E. Kidd of Northfield occurred at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. W. M. Sargent, last evening at 8:30 o'clock, there being in attendance only the relatives and a few friends, the latter being teachers in the Barre public schools. Her bridesmaid was a cousin, Miss Mabel Martin of Montpelier, who wore pale blue chiffon over messaline and carried pink roses. The groomsmen was D. H. Perry of Barre, also a cousin of the bride.

Following the marriage, an informal reception was held and then refreshments were served in the dining room, four young ladies from the Barre schools acting as waitresses, as follows: Miss Josephine Sargent of South Royalton, Miss Maud Abbott of South Royalton, Miss Marguerite Kew of Watfield and Miss Helen Emerson of Watfield. COBLEIGH WILL DISPUTE.

Various Witnesses Express Their Views as to Capability of Testator.

St. Johnsbury, June 22.—The greater part of yesterday was taken up with putting in evidence in the Webster & Harris vs. Lynch case. In the forenoon Albert Ruggles of Lyndon, Joshua Bemis of Burke, Isaac Bemis of Lyndon, Mrs. L. S. Howe, Frank E. Cobleigh, Cephas Trefren and David Young all testified that they had known Mr. Cobleigh to a great extent before he died and that they had not heard him say what he intended to do with his property.

It appeared from the testimony that Mrs. Howe was much interested in getting some money for the Universalist church at Lyndonville, and that Mr. Cobleigh did not give as much as he previously promised and that Mr. Lynch was with him at the time he gave twenty-five dollars. Frank Cobleigh, a cousin, testified that he had heard Mr. Cobleigh say that the Lynches would not get any more of his property.

In the afternoon A. J. Miles, Chas. L. Stuart and G. M. Campbell testified as laymen as to their acquaintance with Mr. Cobleigh and as to his mental capacity in the latter part of his life, saying that he was not competent to make a valid gift. Dr. A. C. McDowell was called by the plaintiff as their first expert alienist and testified that towards the very last of his life Mr. Cobleigh was competent to make a valid gift. The remainder of the afternoon was taken up with the reading of three depositions taken from E. S. Eggleston, Luther A. Cass, and Ira and Abbie Humphrey. The depositions were strenuously objected to by the defence but were admitted and read subject to exceptions.
