GRANITEVILLE.

Lecture on Socialism by Edward F. Cassidy Monday Evening.

Last Monday evening Edward F. Cassidy, ex-vice president of the "Big Six" typographical union of New York, addressed three hundred people at Miles' hall on "Socialism Inevitable." He spoke of the ridicule which met the early "founders of modern scientific socialism" who predicted this modern trust and the ridicule of the more recent exponents of Socialism, who contended that industrial evolution was working into monopoly. He said the trust went on growing until to-day we have one big trust, known as the Morgan-Standard Oil combination. He said this new trust has already invaded some retail trade in the large cities. In closing, he said: "Monopoly we must have because it is the mandate of evolution, which is the greatest law known to man or nature. The only question for us to decide is whether monopoly shall be private or collective; whether a few shall own the industries of the country as their private property; and run them for private gain, or whether the people as a whole shall own and operate them for the health, life and happiness of all the people."

Mr. Cassidy is in this vicinity as the representative of the national Socialist Lyceum bureau to arrange for a course of lectures next January. The speakers in this course are: Charles Edward Russell, Walter Wilbur, Benjamin Wilson, John Slayton and L. M. Lewis. At the meeting here Monday night it was unanimously decided to have the course of lectures in Graniteville. This evening the Socialists of Barre and Montpelier will have a joint meeting in the Scamplin block to decide whether the lectures shall be given in Barre.

Don't forget the Odd Ladies' fair to be given in Miles' hall Oct. 19, 20 and 21. A good entertainment will be given each evening, followed by dancing. Music will be furnished by the Imperial orchestra. Everybody welcome.

LAW MUST BE OBEYED SAYS WICKERSHAM

Although It Seems to Favor One Class as Against Another—Attorney General Spoke to American Prison Association.

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 18.—In the battles of economic forces for supremacy, the law must be obeyed, even though it seems to favor one class as against another. This speech before the American Prison association here last night.

Punishment in some form, declared the attorney general, is still necessary to prevent crime. "This is especially the case," he added, "in a community and at a time when divers economic forces are struggling with each other for the masters in the state, and where laws are enacted through the influence of one class or classes, to control the action of another class who are unwilling to accept them as rules of action, because unconvinced of the wisdom or justice of the legislative policy which they embody. Yet a consideration of the nature of social organization will demonstrate the absolute necessity of all classes of society conforming to requirements prescribed by the duly constituted authorities—however wise or unwise those regulations may appear to those whose conduct is sought to be controlled by them.

But within its constitutional scope, the acts of the legislature stand until repealed as the mandate of organized society, and the continued effectiveness of organized society requires that obedience to such laws be compelled." The attorney general lengthily discussed the broad question of punishment for crime and the administration of the federal parole law. Modern penal legislation, he said, is based on a recognition of the expediency of endeavoring to reform the criminal, and so great a stress has been laid on that feature in dealing with criminals, that "we sometimes forget that in order that punishment may act as a deterrent upon others it must appear as a badge of disgrace, and not simply the bestowal of benevolence."

Mr. Wickersham favored the extension of the parole law to include life prisoners. He regarded it as an incongruity that prisoners sentenced to long terms for vicious crimes should be eligible for parole, when the man convicted of second degree murder must remain in prison for life.

If the law making power, continued Mr. Wickersham, considers reformation, conditional liberation and reinstatement to a normal position in society possible in these cases, "it is difficult to say on what principle the same possibility and hope of reformation, liberation and forgiveness should not be extended to one guilty of murder under circumstances not punishable by death. While there is life there should be hope." It may be far off, delayed, a dim, distant possibility, but it would seem that that hope should be held out as a possible attainment to the meanest wretch who is allowed to live. The justice of man should aim at the perfection of divine justice, and though finite wisdom not knowing the hearts of men, may not always deal justly with offenders, yet it should not "shut the gates of mercy" against the meanest of God's creatures."

Since the parole law was passed in operation last autumn, the attorney general said, but one prisoner had violated his parole. The 293 prisoners who were paroled from the time the law was put into effect in the autumn of 1910 to June 30 earned nearly $22,000, whereas, if they had remained in prison, the attorney general pointed out they would have been a charge on the government. Mr. Wickersham expressed the belief that the parole boards should be enlarged by adding two unofficial persons selected from among prominent citizens of the locality in which the prison is situated.

AMUSEMENT NOTES.

"Madam X," the Thrill of Two Continents, To-night.

"Madam X," the marvelous striking drama of "thrills and tears" had a two years successful run in New York at the New Amsterdam and Lyric theatres and so great was its success in London and Paris that its season was twice extended in these cities. These acts clearly indicate it met with extensive public approval. It is generally regarded as the greatest drama of the age and has that lasting quality that will make it welcome for many seasons to come. Miss Adelaide French is now playing the role of "Madam X" and meeting with the most enthusiastic praise from the press and her audiences. Her supporting company is particularly good and the production, complete in every detail, will surely delight a large and distinguished audience when "Madam X" is played here to-night, Oct. 18.

"Baby Mine," Funny Comedy.

"Baby Mine," that famously funny comedy offered by William A. Brady (Ltd.), is scheduled for its first appearance in this city next Friday, Oct. 20, at the opera house and it would not be at all surprising if the capacity of the theatre would be severely tested in view of the fact that this remarkable success completely enslaved the laugh desiring theatregoers of New York for one solid year at Daly's theatre. "Baby Mine" has demonstrated its superior quality as an honest laughmaker, and there is not the slightest improbability but that it will prove to be the comedy event of the season here. "Baby Mine" has become internationally famous; it is now being performed in London, at Sir Charles Wyndham's Criterion theatre, where it has duplicated its New York success.

Health Is Worth Saving, and Some Barre People Know How to Save It.

Many Barre people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health—the slightest delay is dangerous. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has cured thousands of kidney sufferers. Here is a Barre citizen's recommendation.

L. W. Rowell, 37 Jefferson St., Barre, Vt., says: "I have no hesitation in recommending Doan's Kidney Pills as an excellent remedy for backache and all disorders of the kidneys. For several years I was annoyed more or less by kidney complaint, and I had pains in my loins and kidneys. I had heard a great deal about Doan's Kidney Pills and finally deciding to give them a trial, I procured a supply. I used the contents of two boxes of this remedy and a decided change for the better was noticeable in my condition. I continued taking Doan's Kidney Pills until the pains were greatly lessened and finally disappeared entirely. I now have none of the old symptoms of my complaint but nevertheless keep Doan's Kidney Pills in the house at all times. This remedy cured me and I am glad to state that the cure has proven to be a permanent one."
