

You, Too, Can Be Well Dressed at a Moderate Expense

One of the greatest compliments you can pay a friend is to say, "She wears well."

It is because on close acquaintance she continues to be what you thought she was at the start. She stays nice.

The same thing applies to the right sort of garment. You keep on liking it—you don't tire of it. Continued every day association with it does not destroy its charm.

That's why we so strongly recommend our garments to you—each garment stays just as pleasing and satisfactory as it looked to you when you bought it.

A roaring farce-comedy, "Baby Mine," by Margaret Mayo, was presented at the Barre opera house last night and produced all the laughs and the exclamations which it was scheduled to. After recovering from their shocked surprise in the first act, the audience settled down to laugh and kept it up through the remainder of the evening, the handling of the serio-comic situations being so good that even the actors had to grin occasionally. Genevieve Cliffe, as the young wife and bogus mother, who drew her errand husband back home with the announcement of expected offspring, was pretty and capable, while the deluded and later terribly disappointed husband, taken by Walter Thomas, was a part equally well carried out. James Bliss and Viva Rial, as Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Jinks, who planned the nice little subterfuge, were very important parts to the fun, while five others filled out the cast.

President Taft's Appeal to Women.

In the November Woman's Home Companion President Taft writes an article called "The Dawn of World Peace" in which he makes a special appeal to women on behalf of the arbitration treaties, which, if passed by the Senate and signed, will go a long way toward abolishing war.

On the human side, the side that ought particularly to interest women, the president says:

"The evil of war, and what follows in its train, I need not dwell upon. In our Civil war the death roll in the Union army alone reached the appalling aggregate of 359,000. But the suffering and perils of the men in the field, disheartening as they are to contemplate, are slight in comparison with the woes and anguish of the women who are left behind. The hope that husband, brother, father, son, may be spared the tragic end which all soldiers risk, when they respond to their country's call, buoys them up in their privations and heart-breaking loneliness. But there is the deepest pain, for the most poignant suffering is mental rather than physical. No pension compensates for the loss of the husband, son, or father. The glory of death in battle does not feed the mouths of orphaned children, nor does the pomp and circumstance of war clothe them. The voice of the women of America should speak for peace."

You are entitled to nothing but the best in style and quality and there is no reason why you should not have it. If you buy here, price will prevent you from fully satisfying your good taste and judgment. We are satisfied to mark our goods as low as a reasonable profit will permit.
