Dr. John M. T. Finney having declined to be considered for the Princeton presidency, there's still Sam White.

Let no one make the mistake of believing that the law permits them to kill deer after 5 o'clock this evening. There's been ten days for the slaughter, and that's enough.

The newest Atlantic liner is to be equipped with a golf links, so it is said, in which case "Fore!" will have no greater significance than "Aft!" However, the story reads like a golfer's yarn and is not to be taken seriously probably.

Even though several of its men have been found guilty and sentenced for pouring tar over a young woman school teacher after she had been deceived to a remote spot, Lincoln Center, Kansas, has not yet lived down the reputation of being a partially uncivilized section of the universe. A public sentiment that would allow such a plot to develop is not wholly civilized.

A so-called "good reputation" did not save a reckless automobile driver from going to prison for three years for running down and killing a human being. Trying to match a good reputation against a human life is ludicrous, when considered apart from the case itself, and even when considered in connection with the case carries little conviction. Hence, the somewhat general approval of a sentence imposed in court at Taunton, Mass., yesterday.

The eleventh hour confession of the young wife-killer in the sensational case at Richmond, Va., removes a tremendous load of responsibility from the shoulders of Gov. Mann of that state, who had refused to grant a reprieve to the condemned man, even though harassed. In his case, as well as that of the jury which found Beattie guilty, the justification of the verdict was of very great importance more than idle curiosity to know if the law had got the right party.

It did not take President Benton of the university of Vermont long to get acquainted with Green mountain newspaper men. He is already telling a story about one of them who has been ill and unable to lie on his left side, but is improving and "will soon be able to lie on both sides as usual."—Concord, N. H., Monitor.

We shouldn't have accused President Benton of "springing such a chestnut" as that if the information hadn't come from such a reliable source as the New Hampshire contemporary. And even yet we are inclined to believe The Monitor has resuscitated the musty joke which was perpetrated on its own brethren some fifty years ago, or something like that.

Announcement by Mr. Munsey that he is ready to sell the Boston Journal, as well as the Philadelphia Evening Times, is calculated to disturb the minds of many "old-line" Republican readers of the former throughout New England. After being accustomed to the form and make-up of the long-established Journal, they were sorely pressed when Munsey took hold of the paper and brought it out in new clothing, so to speak. Since then those who still maintained their loyalty to the old publication have barely had time to become accustomed to the Munsey ideas when the threatened transfer of the ownership brings them face to face with the problem of becoming acquainted all over again. For a great many people, changing newspapers is like discarding old friends and taking on the new. However, there seems to be a chance for a chalk-line Republican newspaper in Boston to "make a go of it" in getting new friends, since the greater part of the territory of New England, which it might cover, is of the Republican political stripe. But that depends quite a bit on the quality of the paper; people are not taking newspapers because of their political affiliations alone nowadays.

ing the verdict of guilty in the case of Arthur Bosworth, charged with murder in the first degree, charged with considerable surprise to Vermont people who had thought for some time that the death penalty was all but repudiated in Vermont. Moreover, the recommendation was surprising because it constitutes a new feature of criminal court practices in Vermont. But the jury in the Chittenden county case was acting merely within the instructions of the amended homicide law of the state, as the legislature of 1910 changed the public statutes to read that the punishment of first degree murder shall be death or imprisonment for life in state's prison "as the jury may determine." In accordance with such mandatory instructions, therefore, the jury chose between the alternatives, deciding upon the "full penalty of the law," which is supposed to mean death by hanging. In spite of this result, it is not probable that the march of progress toward complete abolition of the death penalty has been materially checked. A great step toward that end was accomplished when the legislature granted to juries the right to designate between life imprisonment and capital punishment; and cases will be rare in which the juries will select the latter. Each time they do select, it will mean added strength to the movement for abolishing of capital punishment.

SPEAKS FOR WOMEN.

"Equality" Would Like a Gymnasium to Be Used by Both Sexes.

Editor Times: A new gymnasium seems a most commendable project, just what the city needs, but as we understand it, quite an expense to the city and for men and boys only, and it seems that the tendency of the city is inclined to be one-sided. Much is already being done for the boys and young men, (the evening drawing school for instance, and last winter the evening school run by the Woman's club). What is the city doing for the benefit of the girls and young women? Why can't a building be erected for the accommodation of both sexes and fitted up for a class each afternoon or evening in cooking, sewing and directed by a competent instructor? The teaching of domestic science is a necessity.

We realize there may be a greater call on the part of the male population, but hope we will not lose sight of the many girls and young ladies in our midst who will be the housekeepers of later years, and if that calling be acceptably filled, is quite as necessary as what is needed for a business life.

City Council Gives Permission For Moving Picture Shows in City Hall.

A special meeting of the city council was held last evening at which Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Leland were given a permit to have a moving picture show in the city hall Monday and Saturday evenings, except when the council needed the hall for important gatherings. On his part, Mr. Leland agreed to install a steel and asbestos booth with fire shutters and will place no advertising in front of the hall. He also guaranteed that the pictures shown should be clean and wholesome.

Articles of incorporation were filed yesterday with the secretary of state by the Windsor Automobile company, formed to deal in and repair automobiles, motor cycles, bicycles, etc. The capital stock is $2,000 and the signers are all Windsor people.

The farewell reception to Rev. and Mrs. L. J. Bamberg of the Baptist church was largely attended last evening, not only by those of that parish but from the other churches as well. Mrs. Amy P. Hibbard and Deacon and Mrs. C. C. Holmes assisted in receiving. Mr. Holmes presented Rev. and Mrs. Bamberg a coffee percolator and sum of money, for which Mr. Bamberg expressed his thanks. Refreshments were served.

Patrick Dineen, arrested on the charge of intoxication, was sentenced in city court yesterday to 20 days in jail. Dineen had other choices and asked that he be sent either to the state hospital for the insane at Waterbury, to be cured of the drink habit, or to the Mary Fletcher hospital at Burlington to have a leg amputated. He was disappointed when told that the court could not grant his request. James Madison, charged with intoxication, was given 30 days in jail, after disclosing on a stranger.

BARRE STORE REMODELED.

Vaughan Has Much Larger Quarters By Reason of Addition to Block.

For the second time in its nine years of existence, one of the best known mercantile concerns in Barre, the Vaughan store, has been compelled to enlarge its quarters on account of its rapid strides in business. With an additional store length of fifty feet, on both the first and second floors, substantially equipped with up-to-date fixtures and furnishings, the proprietor's formal opening took place to-day and will continue during the next seven days in the way of a sale in every one of the store's numerous departments. To the public in general, the opening will afford an excellent opportunity for inspection and a cordial invitation is extended to everyone who may care to attend.

The first floor extension has been fitted up for the dress goods, silk and linen departments. Six windows, throwing light from the rear as well as the side, make the addition an admirable place for the display of goods. On the second floor, the floor space acquired through the rear addition to the block will be devoted to the drapery department. Ample lighting facilities are made possible by six sizeable windows. The changes have necessitated the removal of the elevated desk and the cash-carrier system. The desk is now located on the north side of the store, access to which is gained by roomy stairs also leading to the departments on the second floor. Throughout the store, a splendid system of gas lights has been introduced, the place presenting a brilliant appearance by night in consequence. The opening to-day really marks something of an epoch in the history of the Vaughan store. The firm has already established an enviable record for integrity and a continuance of the proprietor's sound business policy may be expected to follow. During the days of the opening, a courteous corps of assistants will be in readiness to guide the visitors around the remodeled store.
