A little more coalition between those warring coal interests, please.

Dr. Wiley didn't leave his vocabulary when he left the cabinet job.

It is rather raw to allow moving pictures of the Hillsville, Va., tragedy.

Speaking of recall of decisions, we favor the recall of winter's decision to remain overtime.

And if the Virginia militia can't get the Allen gang, send the U. S. A. for them; they must be caught.

The Vermont Peace society really had no local application, although it was formed in Montpelier.

If anyone tries to "honeyfugle" you, don't let 'em do it, pending word from President Taft as to what "honeyfugling" means.

The two Republican "progressives" are progressing just about neck and neck; and the nearer they stay together, the better Taft's chances.

It was something more than wounded dignity in the case of the New England Homestead, which has been declared not a newspaper legally, it was a blow at the treasury of the publication, since the master in a test case decided that a court order printed in the publication is not legally advertised. Thus the opinion of the court master was adding injury to insult.

Woman's prerogative of having the last word prevailed in the first Colorado jury containing women—and the jury had to be discharged through successive disagreements. The eight men on the jury were sided with by two of the four women, but the other two were immovable. Thus is added a new complication to woman's entry into all the activities of man.

Those Spaulding high school scholars, who leave to-night for Washington, D. C., to spend several days, have a chance to make the trip worth while in an educational way, or they can make it a fizzle by lack of attention to the important features of such an excursion. It is to be hoped that they refuse to make it a fizzle, inasmuch as they are expending much money for the trip.

In declaring before the New York public service commission that the New York Central and the New Haven railroads were parceling out their territory to each other and that the New Haven's portion was to be New England, if the Rutland railroad was acquired, Mr. Untermeyer may have lost sight of one railroad, which is not yet ready to agree to such parceling. The Grand Trunk will have something to say about the parceling; and the New Haven knows it. But it must be admitted that, otherwise, New England is the New Haven's territory.

That Col. Roosevelt believes that he has a chance to break into New England is apparent from the fact that he has accepted an invitation to speak in Portland, Me., Saturday evening; and he probably has picked the most likely spot for his efforts. Thus far there has been a great sentiment manifested in and around Portland for the Oyster Bay man, and a few caucuses have instructed their delegates for him already. It remains to be seen how far the widening circle of Roosevelt sentiment is able to carry from Portland as a center; and the chances for its growth seem fairly good, as President Taft has left that section of New England severely alone as far as personal visitations are concerned.

REPRESENTATIVE FOSTER'S DEATH.

Coming as a great shock because the fact of his illness was not generally known, the death of Representative David J. Foster at Washington last night brings to Vermonters a feeling that they and their state have suffered an unusual loss. Though the representative from the first congressional district of the state and consequently in closer touch with affairs on that side of the state, Representative Foster was nevertheless quite intimately associated with people in the second district because of his nativity in Barnet, Caledonia county, his schooling in St. Johnsbury academy and, finally, his frequent appearance on public occasions from northern to southern border of the district. Therefore, all Vermonters are conscious to-day of that loss which his death necessarily brings.

That sense of loss is the more poignant because Representative Foster was apparently just rising to the height of his mental powers and to the point of greatest usefulness to the state and to the nation. Educated carefully and fitted by nature for the career which he had set upon, he was taking rank as one of the influential men of Congress. Representative Foster went to Washington with a ripened experience in Vermont affairs, having served as prosecuting attorney for Chittenden county, state senator, state commissioner of taxes, chairman of the board of railroad commissioners and other positions. Thus well equipped, he entered Congress from the first district twelve years ago, and he had gradually worked to a position of prominence, his fitness being recognized in part by leadership of the committee on foreign affairs and also by being chosen as chairman of the delegation from the United States to the general assembly of the International Institute of Agriculture at Rome last summer. In his duties in the national assembly and in those other duties to which his ability caused him to be called, Representative Foster showed himself to be an active worker, a fluent speaker and a polished gentleman. He was a man of much energy and that, coupled with the activity of his mind, pointed him out at once as a leader. On the floor of the House, in the convention hall, in grange meetings or in assemblies of college friends, he was always the graceful, tactful speaker; and his services as an orator were in great demand, not only at home, but throughout the country. Possessing, too, an urbanity of manner that distinguished him from many men, he was ever welcome in these assemblies. These various qualities were so pronounced that they brought Representative Foster to marked recognition and made Vermont proud of its representative from the first district.

Guy Wood of Fair Haven Committed Suicide By Shooting.

Fair Haven, March 22.—Guy Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac W. Wood of Washington street, committed suicide during Wednesday night by shooting himself with a revolver, the body being found yesterday morning by Harry R. Hamilton in a small building some distance in the rear of the house. Guy went to feed the hens about 4:30 o'clock Wednesday and did not return for supper. His parents searched the buildings around the house and telephoned to their son in Whitehall, thinking that he had gone there. Yesterday morning Mr. Hamilton found that they had not searched the small building formerly used as an oil house, situated several hundred yards from the other buildings on the place, and taking the key, he unlocked the door and found the body sitting in a chair with a revolver in one hand and a letter which he had written, on the floor. Guy had entered the building through a window, as the door had not been unlocked and the only key to it hung in the house.

Mr. Wood had been in poor health a number of years, which was no doubt the cause of the act. He was about 22 years of age and is survived by his parents, brothers, Isaac Wood, jr., and Henry Wood of Whitehall, N. Y., and a sister, Mrs. Harry R. Hamilton of this place. Health Officer Dr. R. Lape and Selectman John Delahanty reviewed the remains and ordered the body to be brought to the house.
