AMUSEMENT NOTES.

Next Friday Evening "Bought and Paid For."

"Bought and Paid For," which comes to the opera house on Friday, Oct. 4, has been running at the playhouse in New York for one solid year. The vogue of this Broadway success is credited to the naturalness of the story, which recalls to many minds a similar series of "episodes in families in their acquaintance and also in a large measure to the personalities which are familiar to most individuals in real life.

This is particularly true of the character of Jimmy Gilley, the conceited young shipping clerk, who imagines he is a genius and is waiting for some millionaire to come along and give him a chance.

Jimmie is totally without gratitude, or even appreciation, profoundly believing himself not only responsible for the advancement provided by his rich and generous brother-in-law, but actually favoring the indulgent personage by working for him. Such a character easily might work out disagreeably, but in the dress provided by Mr. Broadhurst young Gilley, as portrayed by William Carlyle, is received with roars of laughter. "Bought and Paid For" is one of the really good things to be seen here this season.--Adv't.

May Robson Furnished Much Fun.

May Robson, the comedienne of international fame, entertained a good-sized house last evening at the opera house in her play, "A Night Out." Miss Robson appeared in the leading role that of Grandmama, and upheld her reputation as a funmaker. Miss Robson was supported by a very worthy personnel of actor-people. The theme of the play centers about the escapade of Grandmama and her two grandchildren, who depart early in the evening and spend the evening at an exclusive restaurant in a nearby city, which at the time of their visit is preyed on by officers. The complications that arise from the escapade furnish the outline for the laughable circumstances that ensue.

Flowers to Be Eaten.

"The usefulness of flowers as edible delicacies is practically not known in this country, though abroad they are used as ingredients in many dishes. Candied violets are now a staple product of several districts in France. At Grasse, for instance, in which neighborhood immense quantities of them are raised, all the old and stale violets are purchased by the confectionery manufacturers, who steam them, dip them in boiling sugar, and sell them in commerce at a high price as 'confiture of violets.' Rose buds boiled in sugar and made into a preserve form, a sweetmeat popular among the Turks and Greeks. In Roumania, roses, lime flowers, violets are much used for flavoring preserves of various kinds; and are also utilized in Turkey, Persia, and Arabia, in the preparation of sherbets. The famous violet sherbets of the Caliph is of greenish color, and to this day is called the Grand Signor's sherbet. That species of lily known to botanists as Thunbergii is, in China, one of the most choice delicacies of the native kitchen. It is dried, and used for seasoning ragouts and other dishes. The lilies are grown for market in many provinces of China, and usually are dug up just before they open. Cooked as a fresh vegetable, they have a singularly agreeable taste and fragrance. The Chinese also candy dried rosebuds, violets, jacinths, and pomgranate blossoms, while out of the yellow waterlily they make a delicious jelly. The Turks also utilize this common waterlily in the preparation of a very favorite cooling drink.--Suburban Life Magazine for October.

SWEET REVENGE.

Mark Twain Proved That His Old Time Chum Was a Liar.

When the great man "arrives" the associates of his boyhood days who used to laugh at the idea of his ever "amounting to anything" retire unobtrusively to the background. But when the opportunity arises to make an example of some such skeptical old friend surely no one could rise to the occasion more effectively than did Mark Twain on the occasion described by Albert Bigelow Paine in Harper's Magazine.

He came to Keokuk to visit and was offered $5 a week and board to remain. He accepted. In the same building was a book store in which a young man named Edward Brownell clerked. He and Sam Clemens became great chums.

Sam read at odd moments, at night, in bed, voluminously--until very late sometimes. One night Ed Brownell, passing upstairs to his room on the fourth floor, poked his head in at the door.

"What are you reading, Sam?" he asked.

"Oh, nothing much--a so called funny book. One of these days I'll write a funnier book than that myself." Brownell laughed.

"No, you won't, Sam," he said. "You are too lazy ever to write a book."

A good many years later, when the name Mark Twain had begun to stand for American humor, the owner of it gave his "Sandwich Islands" lecture in Keokuk. Speaking of the unreliability of the islanders, he said:

"The king is, I believe, the greatest liar on the face of the earth except one, and I am very sorry to locate that one right here in the city of Keokuk in the person of Ed Brownell."

ROMANCES OF PORCELAIN.

The Climax to Palissy's Sixteen Years of Misery.

The maker of porcelain and pottery has decidedly the most exciting and romantic trade in the world.

The great factories of Sevres and Dresden were founded by Bernard Palissy. This man invented white enamel, but it took him sixteen years to make the invention--sixteen years of hunger, misery and persecution, which culminated in the episode, used in H. A. Jones' play of "The Middleman," wherein Palissy maintained his furnace fire by burning all the furniture in his house and finally opened the furnace door to find within the glaze which he had sought throughout the best years of his life.

Bottinger invented hard porcelain. He was an alchemist, and one day, chancing to discover that his powdered wig was unusually heavy, he inquired the cause and found that the weight was due to the kaolin with which the wig was powdered. This kaolin was the substance for lack of which Bottinger's investigations had for years failed.

When Elers opened a porcelain factory at Burslem, England, he employed the most stupid and illiterate workmen, so that his secret processes might not become known. But Samuel Astbury resolved to learn the Elers method, and, affecting ignorance and stupidity, he got a place in the factory, mastered all of Elers' secrets and eventually opened a plant of his own, wherein he duplicated in every detail the work of Elers.

As Mark Twain Saw It.

When Mark Twain was city editor of the Virginia City Enterprise, back in the seventies, he used to brighten up the columns of the paper with comic paragraphs setting forth the advantages of advertising. These paragraphs were based on all kinds of odd facts--on murders, on crop reports, on kidnapping, on the weather. One paragraph ran like this: "Germany has just discovered a buried forest in her midst, supposed to be 10,000 years old. If the man who lost it had advertised in the Enterprise the chances are that it would have been returned to him that night."

Ignored the Hint.

The midnight stillness of the darkened parlor was punctuated by a crash just overhead.

"Wh-wha-what was that, dud-dud-dud-dud?" exclaimed the young man.

"Merely father dropping a hint," she replied as she snuggled a little closer.--Philadelphia Record.

Too Much Seasoning.

"What is this thing?" asked the man at the lunch counter.

"A sandwich, of course. What did you think it was?" said the girl behind the counter.

"I thought it was a mustard plaster."--New York Mail.

MADAM! IF YOU DON'T FEEL RIGHT TAKE DELICIOUS "SYRUP OF FIGS."

Waste-clogged bowels, torpid liver and decaying food in stomach cause the sick headache, gas, backache, sallowness, biliousness and indigestion.

All women get bilious, headachy and constipated--simply because they don't exercise enough. They don't eat coarse food, or enough fruit and green vegetables. Those are nature's ways of keeping the liver and thirty feet of bowels active; but very few women employ them. The next best way is delightful, fruity Syrup of Figs.

Nearly all ills of women can be overcome with Syrup of Figs alone. There is no need to have sick headache, backache, dizziness, stomach sour and full of gases, bilious spells, sallowness, coated tongue, bad breath, bad complexion, nervousness and depression. The surest and safest remedy is one or two teaspoonfuls of delicious Syrup of Figs. Try this to-night--you'll feel splendid in the morning when the sour bile, clogged-up waste and poisonous matter have been gotten but thoroughly moved on and out of your system, without nausea, gripping, or weakness. Your head will be clear, complexion rosy, breath sweet, stomach regulated; no more constipation, gases, pains and aches.

It is simply a matter of keeping your stomach, liver and bowels clean and regular. Then you will always be well--always look and feel your best.

But get the genuine--the old reliable. Ask your druggist for "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna." Refuse with contempt the so-called Fig Syrups sometimes substituted to fool you. The true genuine bears the name California Fig Syrup Company; look for this on the label--Adv't.
