GOVERNORS DISCUSS FOSS' SOLUTION

All the New England Executives Present To-day in Boston Except Gov. Haines of Maine.

Boston, Jan. 25.—The transportation problems of New England were considered by five governors at a luncheon given by Governor Ross to-day. Gov. Haines of Maine was ill and unable to attend the conference. The conference was held behind closed doors.

Governor Foss in a statement suggested that the solution of the difficulties might lie in the creation of a New England transportation commission and state representation on railroad directors. The governors declined to discuss the proposition before the opening of the conference.

Governor Foss says in part: "It seems to me that until we have settled our transportation problem we cannot feel sure of our future development. We of New England have this overshadowing question in common, and the suggestion has been repeatedly made that we might make greater progress toward its solution by more co-operation between the New England states."

"When we see the limitations upon the powers of our state commissions acting separately in such fundamental matters as the corporate powers of our railroad lines, we see the common interest of New England having regulating our situation as a whole, and in the decision against us on the matter of our differentials, we of New England see our common danger of being ignored in national councils."

"To the extent that New England naturally stands apart from the rest of the country, we must inevitably stand together. My suggestion would be that we might find a way to establish a permanent board with the power of all our states behind it. Could we not constitute the six chairmen of the commissions having power over the transportation commission?"

"The fundamental difficulty in the present situation is that we have no railroad system covering all New England, which are attempting to regulate by six separate commissions. My idea is that the scope of the work of this New England transportation commission should be broad. The commission should call upon the railroads to provide such facilities for New England as may be requisite; they should also determine whether New England rates are upon a proper basis and use their influence to make the rates in and out of New England favorable to the development of this region."

"In connection therewith the financing of these improvements must necessarily be considered; and the general policy of the states in regard to the railroads should be discussed. It may be said that the orders of this New England transportation commission cannot be given the force of law; but this commission would prove to be a very formidable board to deal with. No corporation would dare disregard instructions from a body made up of the executive heads of the state commissions; and the recommendations of such a board ought to insure identical legislation in the various legislatures. It would have behind it decisions the virtual authority of the six commissions. To say nothing of the united opinion of the six states."

"No one believes more strongly than I in the policy of regulation, but I am not at all sure that regulation alone will solve our New England problem where we are absolutely dependent for our prosperity upon a single railroad system. I am inclined to believe that we must insist upon having a voice in the management by the appointment of a certain number of directors, in order to feel secure of our future."

FIRE DROVE STUDENTS FROM DORMITORY

Lives of Hundreds of Young People at Cazenovia Seminary Near Syracuse Were Endangered.

Syracuse, N. Y., Jan. 25.—The lives of hundreds of students were endangered when flames broke out early this morning at Cazenovia seminary.

The building, a four-story structure, was occupied by 175 young men, and so quickly did the flames spread that many had difficulty in escaping. Four students, overcome by smoke, were rescued by Cazenovia firemen.

Eddy hall, a dormitory adjoining the burning building, which houses about 100 young women students, was in danger of being destroyed. The young women were routed from their beds and forced into the street scantily clad.

Officials of the seminary called a roll of the students on the campus while the flames were destroying Callahan hall. Several men were missing, but it was said they had gone to the homes of friends.

The village firemen had the flames under control after an hour's work. The loss is estimated at $25,000.

NO REPLY RECEIVED BY THE CONDUCTORS

To Their Demands on Bangor & Aroostook Railroad for Increase of Wages.

Bangor, Me., Jan. 25.—The investigation of the strike of firemen and engineers of the Bangor & Aroostook railroad was resumed by the state board of arbitration to-day. Representatives of the various industries affected by the strike were witnesses. The board also heard members of the union and railroad officials. The conductors and trainmen who asked an increase are expected to meet to-morrow to decide what action to take. The time limit on their demand expires Monday. No formal reply has yet been received.

The grand officers, conductors and trainmen's unions are to meet President Todd of the railroad to-day to discuss the demands. Todd has previously stated that it is impossible to grant the demands of the men who want a forty-six per cent. increase. If a strike is called, it will be entirely independent of the present strike.

Rochester, N. Y., Jan. 25.—A lockout of 12,000 garment workers on Monday is threatened by the manufacturers of this city, who have been combatting a big strike for several weeks. The serious obstacle to the settlement of the trouble is the demand of the operatives for union recognition, where the demands include increased pay and better shop conditions. The clothing industry is one of the largest in the city, the yearly output aggregating about $22,000,000. More than half the shops were idle to-day.

MARCHING ORDERS PREPARED

As First Step Toward Reorganization of U. S. Army.

INCOME TAX WAS DEBATED

Attempt to Ratify Amendment Failed in House To-day

MOTION TO ADJOURN QUIETED THE EFFORT

There Were 104 Members in Their Seats When the Session Opened

State House, Jan. 25. Notwithstanding the advice given yesterday by prominent members of the House, the number of vacant seats was even larger than when the lower branch convened yesterday noon. There were only 104 members in their seats when Speaker Plumley called the House to order. Even Chaplain Ford was not in his accustomed place, and the devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. George S. Smith, the member from Worcester.

Though many of the remnants of the House gazed wistfully at the clock and fidgeted in their seats every time they heard the whistle of a railroad locomotive, the speaker kept them on the job and third readings were ordered on the following measures: An act relating to appropriation of money for the State Agricultural school, appropriating $25,000 for the erection of a dormitory and for other purposes in place of the $30,000 in the original bill; changing the name of the Bethel Telephone & Telegraph company; authorizing the city of St. Albans to issue bonds.

When Mr. Kendrick of Greensboro moved to table House bill 122, relating to filling vacancies in town offices, Mr. Cook of Lyndon demanded the yeas and nays but offered to withdraw his demand if Mr. Kendrick would withdraw his motion. With less than 110 members in the hall a roll call would have been in bad about 133 members who were not present, and the member from Greensboro saw the point and withdrew his motion.

The first genuine attempt at necromancy came this morning when Mr. Cook of Lyndon called up the resolution introduced several days ago relating to the ratification of the federal income tax amendment. The member from Lyndon said he called up the resolution with a two-fold purpose: To show that the House had devoted itself to an hour of real work and to take the opportunity of expressing himself in favor of the income tax. He said he thought it was time to let up for a period on the knitting of corporations and to get after the millionaires.

Then Mr. Miller of Bethel spoke in favor of the federal income tax and made many references to party politics. Mr. Ryder of Rockingham said he had not heard of a resolution regarding the blocking of the resolution and he denied that there had been any "playing of politics." A motion by Mr. Strong of Hyde Park that the House adjourn stopped further debate right there.

May Question Its Constitutionality. Although the sterilization bill, which was passed by the House, 95 to 82, yesterday, is likely to receive the signature of Gov. Fletcher, it is said that opponents will probably question the constitutionality of the act.

The direct primary bill will be taken up in the House as a special order Tuesday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock. It having been ordered to lie yesterday, the House also ordered to lie the bill regulating the sale of morphine and other narcotic drugs, as also the bill incorporating the Southern Vermont Light & Power company.

At its session yesterday afternoon the House passed the following bills in concurrence: To permit the public service commission to regulate wages within the state; relating to nominations and ballots; to authorize the city of Burlington to issue bonds for the purpose of enlarging and improving its electric plant; relating to persons convicted of being found intoxicated; for making repairs and for other purposes at the state prison at Windsor; relating to the selling of milk and cream.

The House passed its own measures as follows: To create a livestock commissioner and defining his duties, a motion to amend by changing price paid for diseased animals from $50 to $70 having been lost; amending statutes relating to the weight and measure of wood and lumber; relating to stationery and supplies; relating to the rate of taxes assessed on railroad property.

A few highway aid bills were squelched by the House, the towns of Jamaica, Dorset and Peru having applied for state aid. The House reconsidered its refusal of a third reading to the bill relating to the employment of railroad engineers and conductors and ordered the measure to a third reading.

How It Looks for Adjournment.

The special committee on final adjournment has reported that up to yesterday the condition of the bills was as follows: Bills in hands of Senate committees, Senate bills 35, House bills 55, total 90; in hands of the House committees, Senate bills 18, House bills 99, total 117; in hands of revision committee 30. This makes the total number of bills in the hands of committees 237, which was a reduction of 47 since the report a week ago.

And still the bills continue to come in. In the House the following were introduced: Amending acts incorporating the village of Bristol; incorporating the Pittsford Congregational church and society; relating to acts incorporating the village of North Troy.

From the committee on ways and means, relating to the taxation of telephone companies, it being a substitute for H. 411; from the same committee, amending sections 734 and 735 of the public statutes, relating to the taxation of telegraph companies, assessed at rate of 65 cents per mile of pole and one line of wire, and 55 cents per mile for each additional wire owned, or 1-14 per cent. of the entire gross earnings; from committee on agriculture, enabling towns to appropriate money for county agricultural extension work, in which towns may appropriate money pro rata on grand list.

Before winding up its work yesterday the Senate refused a third reading to the interchangeable mileage bill which came from the committee without recommendation; also to the bills relating to incorporation of villages, relating to hours of labor on railroads and creating the office of state engineer.

"BOBBY BURNS CALLED THEM

Gay Party Gathered in Honor of the Scottish Poet

AT ANNUAL BANQUET OF BARRE BURNS CLUB

Eating, Speaking, Dancing, They Whiled Pleasant Hours Away

For the twenty-fourth time since it came into existence, the Burns club of Barre observed the anniversary of Scotland's national poet, Robert Burns, in Clan Gordon hall last evening. In company with their countrymen throughout many cities of the United States, members of the club gathered to celebrate the one hundred and fifty-fourth return of the day when the bard of Caledonia first saw the light in a little cottage at Ayr, Scotland, not far from the "Alloway Kirk" and the "Auld Brig o' Doon," which were later immortalized in the song writer's "Tam o' Shanter."

The affair last evening lost nothing in comparison with the observances of past years. The hall was appropriately decorated for the occasion, and an excellent program was arranged to a successful finish and an elaborate supper was followed in turn by a dance that rounded out a celebration that fittingly marked the anniversary.

In front of the stage, which was decorated with the stars and stripes and the Scottish national standard and a large picture of the poet, stretched long rows of tables that were to be later lined with the banqueters at the feast of "Haggis." Shortly after 8 o'clock, President Angus McDonald opened the program with a short address of welcome. For an hour or more afterwards the time was given over to songs, toasts and stories, each participant responding to the call of the president. The numbers were given in the order following:

"Bantlin' Rovin', Robin," Burns club quartet, consisting of Miss Barbara McDonald, Miss Annie Anderson, Robert Inglis, James Anderson.

Toast—"Burns," William Scott. Song—"A Man's Man for a That." Song—"Bluebells of Scotland." Toast—"America," City Clerk James Mackay.

Song—"Columbia the Gem of the Ocean," Miss Margaret Shirreff. Song—"Star Spangled Banner," James Anderson.

Toast—"Scotland," James K. Pirie. Song—"Afton Water," Miss Barbara McDonald. Song—"Scotland Yet," James Hogg.

The honor of giving the address to the "Haggis" fell to James Rae, who made his remarks in characteristic style. The supper followed and to say that the company did ample justice to the menu would be a waste of words. Scotch pipes who already had contributed merrily to the program, furnished more harmony during the supper hour. With the last course ended, an intermission in the festivities was declared and in a few moments the hall had been cleared for dancing. Bruce's orchestra ushered in the closing event of the evening with a prelude and thereafter until midnight had long passed, merriment held high carnival. The music seemed to have its subtle effect on everyone and it was not long before the entire company was on the floor.

In charge of the celebration was the following committee: Angus McDonald, president of the club, James Mitchell, vice-president, Robert Inglis, the secretary, and James Rae, treasurer, James Hogg, Adam Craig, John Chesser, James Smarr, William Goutts and Hugh Christie, Messrs. Hogg and Craig acted as floor managers during the dance.

OBSERVED BURNS' DAY

Scotia Club of St. Johnsbury Held Banquet Last Night.

St. Johnsbury, Jan. 25.—The serving capacity of Pythian hall was again taxed last night when about 125 people sat down to tables prettily decorated with sunbells and flowers for the annual banquet of the Scotia club, in observance of Burns' birthday.

The banquet was in charge of Mrs. S. J. Somerville, and the following young people assisted: Sidney Borland, who was in charge of the dining room; Kenneth Kirk, Misses Mary Carr, Pauline Randall, Ethel Wright, Ethel Perkins, Ida Pavlov, Grace Locke, Lena Fishoy, Mrs. Hazel Thompson and Misses Ellen McGregor and Mary Lowe.

The hosts and hostesses at the tables were Elwin A. Silby, president, and Mrs. L. P. Leach, a member of the executive committee, at the president's table; Mr. and Mrs. John T. Ritchie, Rev. and Mrs. Peter Black, Donald McGregor and Mrs. J. D. McGregor, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Mackey, Mr. and Mrs. James T. Borland, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Stanley, Robert Mackinnon and Miss Delia I. Griffin, Hon. and Mrs. Alexander Dunnett.

During the banquet, at which many Scotch dishes were served, Raymond Ingalls, of Berlin, N. H., played on the bagpipes. After the banquet there was a program of songs and readings from Burns, those taking part being: Soloists, Mrs. Don C. Stiles, Miss Ella M. Brownell, H. N. Wood, E. R. Mackey and Frank H. Brooks, Mrs. H. N. Wood and Miss Alice B. Wardle accompanied the soloists. Rev. Peter Black gave some readings, also from Burns. The president, Elwin A. SHOWERED MILK ON WOMAN

SLIPPED AND LOST HIS LIFE

Osman Smith, M. & W. R. Brakeman, Killed in Barre To-day

WHEN RUN DOWN BY HIS OWN TRAIN

A Car Had To Be Jacked Up Before Body Could Be Removed

Quick thinking on the part of a passing milkman who showered her with milk as she was rushing out of doors from her home on Liberty street probably saved the life of Mrs. Frank W. Jackson, whose clothing took fire as she started to fill the kitchen stove with old newspapers this forenoon at 10:30 o'clock. Although severely burned about the lower limbs, the body, arms and face, Mrs. Jackson has a strong chance for recovery, physicians said at noon.

When Mrs. Jackson started to dump a quantity of newspapers into the stove, the paper refused to burn, and just as Mrs. Jackson turned them over in the stove with a poker, the top layer blazed up and her apron took fire. Her first thought was to seek aid, and she started for the door. The draft from outside probably served to fan the flames, and when she had reached the open air the fire had almost wholly encompassed her. Ernest Sprague of Brookfield, aged 17, one of L. B. Dodge's delivermen, who finished his daily trip around noon, made a fortunate appearance just as Mrs. Jackson came through the door. Seeing the situation called for prompt action, the young man seized his largest can of milk and before the half-crazed woman could realize what was happening, he had drenched her clothing with the milk.

Within a few moments physicians were alleviating the burns. Mr. Jackson, who was at his place of business in the Frank McWhorter store, was notified, and neighbors also responded. Examination of the injuries showed that Mrs. Jackson's burns extended from her knees to the head. Portions of the flesh on the arms were quite badly burned, although the face escaped most of the fire and the hair was only slightly scorched. Not all of the burns extended deeply into the flesh, and it is believed that the victim will recover without being permanently disfigured.

OSMAN SMITH, M. & W. R. BRAKEMAN, KILLED IN BARRE TO-DAY

WHEN RUN DOWN BY HIS OWN TRAIN

WHEN RUN DOWN BY HIS OWN TRAIN

When the accident occurred, the brakeman was standing between two cars with his hand on the coupling pin. Braking on almost any train is fraught with additional danger during the icy season and Smith is believed to have lost his balance on the ice just as he was about to lift the pin from its socket. He fell to the ground and before the train could be stopped he had been trailed a distance of several yards. Members of the crew ran to his assistance, but it is almost certain that death ensued within a few seconds after the man fell.

Before the body could be removed, it was necessary to secure jacks by which the car was lifted from the rails and the remains released. Health Officer Dr. J. H. Woodruff and Dr. P. S. Duffy were called at once, but on their examination of the body both stated that death must have been nearly instantaneous. Around 8 o'clock the body had been disintegrated from the wheels and A. W. Badger & Co.'s ambulance took it to the Badger undertaking rooms in the Morse building.

The dead brakeman was twenty-eight years old and had been employed by the M. & W. road at different intervals during the past several years. He leaves a wife and two children, a son aged 3 and a daughter under 2 years old. There are several brothers and two sisters, also the young man's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Smith, who live in West Medway. The brothers are Robert of Boston, Howard, who lives in Massachusetts, George of Canada, Charles, a resident of Montana, and Fred Smith of Montpelier. Mrs. Smith was formerly Miss Ethel Hayden of Benning falls, a daughter of F. R. Hayden. She came to Barre soon after receiving news of her husband's death.

Arrangements for the funeral have not been completed, but it is expected the remains will be taken to Montpelier to-night or to-morrow.

TALKED OF THE SEA

Prof. Raymond McFarland of Middlebury College at Vincitla Club.

An interesting talk was given the members of Vincitla club at their club rooms last evening by Prof. Raymond McFarland of Middlebury college. The speaker's topic was "Tollers of the Sea," and he described the life of the fishermen off the Atlantic coast from knowledge gained from his own experience, as he lived with the fishermen during several seasons before and after he attended Amherst college. Because of that personal knowledge Prof. McFarland was able to weave in some anecdotes which added materially to the effectiveness of the address, although the unadorned facts as related by him commanded the close attention of the hundred or more men present.

The speaker was introduced by Vice-president M. S. Rounds of the club and the latter later introduced Dr. F. M. Rounds, who gave a dialect reading and had in response to the appreciative applause by giving a second reading. Afterwards refreshments were served, and the remainder of the evening was spent in an informal manner.

REUNION OVERCAME SEXTON

Or Rather the Stuff Which an Old Friend Brought.

Daniel Sexton, in the midst of moving his goods and chattels from 15 Foster street to new quarters in the A. Tomasi block, fell in with his old friend, John Poulton, of Concord, N. H., yesterday, and before the little celebration which followed the reunion, the long and the law swooped down and encompassed Daniel. Officer John W. Dineen arrested him at the M. & W. station this morning at 1 o'clock and brought him to police headquarters. When arraigned before Judge H. W. Scott in city court this forenoon, Sexton pleaded guilty to a subsequent offense and disclosed an old banon.

The respondent told of falling in with the Concord quartermen Friday forenoon. Poulton had two pints of alcohol and a pint of whiskey, Sexton said, and it took just about all of it to drown the sorrows of a six years' separation. They were glad to see each other. Judge Scott gave the man a fine of $15 and costs of $24 with an alternative sentence of 60 days in county jail. Sexton accepted the jail sentence.
