FRIDAY, APRIL 4, 1913.

New Hampshire stands by its liquor.

The Vermont sugar makers are wearing a sweeter look.

Ethel Roosevelt had a quiet wedding today; but nevertheless, we hear that the Big Noise was there.

Gov. Sulzer rails against the Republican boss of New York state because the latter presumes to mingle among legislators. Sort of Barnes-storming, as it were.

More street lights in the business section of Barre would add to the attractiveness of the place as well as be desirable from practically every other standpoint.

Hopedale, Mass., is at present represented by a government of the baseball bat in the hands of special deputies; but every hit does not mean a run home by the strikers.

The conviction and sentencing of Mrs. Pankhurst indicates that at last England has begun to take the woman seriously and at her own word. Heretofore, she has been sort of a vaudeville performer.

"President Wilson has announced his intention of making his summer home in Vermont," says the Buffalo Commercial. Someone in the Commercial office should take a correspondence course in geography.—Manchester, N. H., Union.

The mistake is pardonable. To all intents and purposes the "summer capital" is in Vermont.

The heritage that is Levi P. Morton's through his nativity in Vermont seems to be standing the former vice president in good stead in these days when illness adds its weakening effects to far advanced years. He is making a grand fight for recovery of health even though handicapped by his nearly 80 years. May the Vermonter live to enjoy many more years of a well-spent life!

not been without some trying situations as to high water, not the least of which was the weakening of railroad bridges sufficient to cause a serious disarrangement of train schedules. As a railroad center, the place has not recovered, although it is more than a week since the high water was experienced. The present situation shows that White River Junction is quite a town on the railroad map.

Confidence in the integrity of the Red Cross is reflected in the present instance when nearly one million dollars has been subscribed for the flood sufferers in the states of the middle West. It is fortunate that there is an organization like the Red Cross to meet such crises as this, and it is more fortunate that the affairs of the organization are so well and honestly administered that the organization is deserving of public confidence. It need not be said, therefore, that it is very imperative that the official personnel of the society be kept at the present high standard, both as to the national body and to the state branches. Once let the public become suspicious of the society, and its usefulness will be lost. The integrity of the organization must be guarded closely.

EXPOSITION DEMANDS ON NEW ENGLAND.

In view of the fact that the legislature of Massachusetts is now asked to appropriate $500,000—half a million—for the erection of a building, and other outlays at the Panama-Pacific exposition, it is extremely fortunate that the Vermont legislature is not in session. We notice that the same old stock arguments are being advanced to influence the legislators of Massachusetts to make the appropriation, with a "by" upon the additional feature incident, to the opening of the great canal. One of the stock arguments is that the remainder of New England is waiting to see what Massachusetts is going to do about appropriating money for the project; therefore, it is incumbent on Massachusetts to do the handsome thing and place its figure as high as half a million dollars. If Massachusetts should appropriate half a million dollars or a sum anywhere near that amount, it would set such a pace that the remainder of New England would let the matter drop right there. Surely, Vermont would, for Vermont already faces a direct state tax to meet its own increasing state expenses and even at that cannot keep up with the demands for needed changes. A request for spending money on the Pacific coast would meet with disapproval at this time in Vermont. The state needs more buildings for its state institutions; it needs another tuberculosis hospital; it needs a detention farm so that inebriates will not have to be sent to the insane asylum; it needs better schools; it needs more permanent roads—but what's the use of enumerating the things Vermont needs when they are numerous enough to fill a book?

Therefore, Massachusetts may approach this request for a half-million outlay on the Pacific coast without fear of possible effect of its action on Vermont. Massachusetts may go its own sweet way, so far as Vermont is concerned.
