BLAMES SHERMAN LAW. Holds It Responsible for the Appalling Waste in Mining.

Philadelphia, Oct. 23.—Dr. Charles R. Van Hise, president of the University of Wisconsin, attacked the Sherman antitrust law last night as the one agency more responsible than any other for appalling waste in mining and consequent grand larceny from future generations of a portion of their inheritance of natural resources.

To propose the repeal of the Sherman law, Dr. Van Hise asserted, would be chimerical at the present time, but it should be amended so that the provisions co-operation would be permitted. Unrestrained competition, he added, meant appalling waste; and waste was positively opposed to the policy of conservation.

RENEWS HIS THREAT AGAINST EMPLOYERS

Secretary Redfield Says Department of Commerce Has Not Abandoned Plan to Investigate the Reduction of Wages.

Flint, Mich., Oct. 23.—Notice was served on employers of labor last night by Secretary Redfield, of the department of commerce, that he had not abandoned his intention to investigate reductions of wages, made under the plea that the new tariff compelled retrenchment.

"When it was suggested some months ago," he said, "that the inquiry powers of the department might under certain conditions be used to learn whether such a plan was being carried out, it was not intended to justify a reduction of wages when alleged to be made because of tariff changes, there appeared very general comments on the alleged action, which comments were chiefly remarkable for their vigor in dealing with an assumed state of facts that did not exist."

"The secretary of commerce has done so much," he says, "in assuming responsibility for the vagarious remarks which have been made, and which would like to criticize, the views expressed in the address, because of which all the dust arose, have not been changed and the action that was suggested in that address will be taken if the circumstances suggested therein should arise and seem to make it necessary."

FEW RESCUED OF 230 CAUGHT

Mine Explosion Buried Men Near Dawson, New Mexico

EARLY RESCUE WORK WAS SUCCESSFUL

Several Men Alive But Weak Were Found Late Last Night

Dawson, New Mexico, Oct. 23.—More than 200 were believed to be still entombed in the shaft of the Stag Canon mine of the Phelps, Dodge & Co., this morning more than twelve hours after the explosion in the depths of the workings. Fourteen bodies were recovered during the night and the 23rd living victim was found at a depth of a mile and taken out unconscious.

The indications were that the searchers would reach a majority of the entombed men to-day. Hope was strong that the great fans which were driven all night would have so diluted the gas that the trapped men might be found alive.

The exact cause of the explosion is not known, but it is believed that it was due to ignition of either black damp or coal dust.

Immediately after the explosion all shifts of men were called to the work of rescue, and those miners who were employed in other shafts were put to work drilling through the debris which was said to have blocked the mine below the second level.

The United States rescue car stationed at Trinidad was summoned and every available man in Dawson was aiding in the attempt to reach the entombed miners.

F. L. Miller, superintendent of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company, with a trained crew of rescuers left Trinidad in a special car for Dawson with oxygen helmets and other apparatus.

Mayor E. L. Kinney declared that it was impossible to make any estimate as to the possible loss of life and that none of the mine officials or rescuers on the ground would care to make any statement. He said the mine was so constructed as to permit of the least possible danger from such explosions.

According to Mayor Kinney, no cause for the explosion has been learned. None of the men rescued had been able to approach the air shaft of any of the workings within the mine which would have proved a means of exit through another shaft, and the fact that none of the other entombed miners have been able to make their way out of the mine leads to the belief that all have been cut off from every means of exit.

In the relief camps near the entrance of mine No. 2 are gathered the women and children of the entombed miners. The miners' families are cheered by the knowledge that Superintendent McDermond is among the main body of miners entombed and they have confidence as have mine officials in the superintendent's resources in such a disaster.

VERMONT'S TEACHERS ASSEMBLED TO-DAY

Large Convention Will Be Held at Montpelier City Hall During the Remainder of the Week.

School teachers from all parts of Vermont came to Montpelier last night and to-day for the 64th annual convention of the Vermont state teachers' association, which will be held at the Montpelier city hall to-day, to-morrow and Saturday. The convention opened this afternoon, the opening session being taken up at the start with the preliminaries incident to the assembling of such a large convention—nearly 1,500 teachers are expected—and the formal welcome to Montpelier.

Most of the space inside the building, even the city offices, was given up to the convention. The smaller rooms contained frames bearing exhibits from many places in Vermont, the exhibits being largely of art, manual training and domestic science departments. Another office was fitted up as a tea room, where tea will be served at all hours of the day and evening during the convention.

The city council chamber was turned into an information bureau and telephone room. The basement of the building was used for the display of various publishing houses dealing in school books and supplies.

Following devotional exercises by Rev. Albert H. Spence of the Church of the Messiah, addresses of welcome were given shortly after 2:30 o'clock by State Superintendent S. Stinson, for the state department of education, Mayor James B. Estee for Montpelier and Gov. A. M. Fletcher for the state of Vermont. Included in the response was the annual address of Pres. Allison E. Tuttle of the association.

After that, Prof. F. B. Jenks of the University of Vermont gave an address on "The Teaching of Agriculture in Our Public Schools," and Rev. B. D. Hahn of Springfield, Mass., gave an address on "The Coming American." These addresses will be followed by a business session late this afternoon.

He has had a wide experience in advertising and conducting sales of plotted tracts of land and city additions for building lots.

Mr. Dashner is known as a hustler. He has been actively engaged in the real estate business for the past two years and without doubt he has sold more farms in that period than any other man. He has a large list of buyers from New York and Canada and has sold several farms in this vicinity for buyers from those sections. He will continue to purchase stock for the Brighton markets and, having recently moved to Barre, will occupy the Olds property at the corner of Washington and Camp street.

The new firm will do a general real estate business, handling farms, timber tracts, city and town property, livery stocks and merchandise stocks of all kinds. The firm will also look after local property for non-residents, collect rents, negotiate loans, etc. It has announced its purpose to do business on a fair and square basis with the live and let live policy always in view. Mr. Smith will continue the auction business which he has had for 27 years experience in selling real estate, cattle, horses, farm tools, merchandise, etc. The firm is ready for business and will be pleased to see anyone contemplating the purchase, sale or exchange of real estate.

DOCKET WELL CLEANED UP

By Washington County Court at Adjournment of Feb. 11

CHANCERY CASES MAY COME UP NOV. 4

Appeal in Division of A. C. Brown Estate of Montpelier Dismissed

The fall term of Washington county court was brought to a close to-day, all cases on the docket having been taken up with the exception of a few chancery matters which are likely to be presented when Judge Butler returns to Montpelier on Nov. 4. Good progress has been made in cleaning up the litigation on the docket.

On Nov. 11 court will reconvene to take up criminal cases, of which there are three. The most important is State vs. Louis Gomez of Northfield, charged with assault with intent to kill one Gordon in Northfield last summer. Gomez is now in county jail under $2,000 bail, having failed to secure a bondsman. On Nov. 11 the court will take up the case of N. E. Roll Co. vs. W. E. Jackson.

The appeal from the commissioner's report in the matter of the division of the Andrew G. Brown estate was dismissed by the court with costs. Roma G. Brown was represented by Attorney F. L. Laird and Joseph G. Brown by Attorney H. C. Shurtleff.

The court ordered that unless specifications are filed by the defendant in the suit of J. J. Williams & Son of Montpelier vs. the Studebaker Co. before the next term a non-suit would be entered. An agreement was reached in the divorce action of Frances Kenson vs. Frank Kenson, by which the latter is ordered to pay $3 a week toward the support of the petitioner, from Nov. 1, and that he also is ordered to pay $20 on Nov. 1 and a like amount on Jan. 1, 1914, for attorneys' fees.

Lumina Bisson was granted a divorce from Fred Bisson on the ground of refusal to support, and Mrs. Bisson is given the custody of a minor child and allowed the alimony asked.
