To Eckman's Alternative, a remedy for Croup, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis, Throat and Lung Troubles, has been given the fullest credit of restoring health in a large number of cases. Read this:—
 623 Girard Ave., Phila., Pa.
 "Gentlemen: In the winter of 1903 I had an attack of Grippe, followed by Pneumonia, and later by Lung Trouble. In the winter of 1904 I had cough, night sweats, fever and raised quantities of awful-looking stuff and later I had many hemorrhages; at one time three to three successive days. Milk and eggs became so distasteful I could keep nothing down. Three physicians treated me, but did not go. Eckman's Alternative was recommended by a friend. After taking a small quantity I had the first quiet night's sleep for weeks. My improvement was marked from the first. I gained strength and weight and appetite. I never had another hemorrhage and my cough gradually lessened until entirely gone. I am perfectly well."

Larkin, Liberated, Declares His Intention to Do So

GENERAL STRIKE IN GREAT BRITAIN

Mistake, He Says, in Sending Him to Prison, but Release Greater

Dublin, Ireland, Nov. 14.—James Larkin, leader of the Transport Workers' union, whose members have been on strike since early in September, was liberated yesterday from Mountjoy prison, where he was serving a sentence of seven months for sedition. Larkin subsequently appeared at the labor headquarters in Liberty hall, and the occasion was seized upon by his followers to make a remarkable demonstration of their devotion to him.

The Dublin transport workers' union called a strike of the dock workers last night. Prompt response was made and freight traffic is not affected yet. The chief object of the strike was to bring about the release of Larkin. Announcement of the strike order was barely made when it was officially stated that Larkin would be released immediately. The "exercise of the prerogative of mercy" is ascribed to the fact that he was acquitted by the jury on two counts of the indictment, including that charging him with inciting to riot.

The unionist newspapers violently attack the government for yielding to the clamor of the Labor party for Larkin's release because it found that a great voting pressure was brought to bear in the recent bye-elections against the government candidates with the object of compelling the liberation of Larkin. The effect of the new strike order on the employees is doubtful. Many of the smaller ones will be hard hit by the closing of the port on the eve of Christmas traffic and the public will be more anxious than ever for a settlement. The bigger employers insisting on guarantees that there will be no strike for two years are ready to continue the fight. Of the steamships between Dublin and English and Scotch ports only six have been in commission since the strike was begun and now all are tied up. Some vessels are in the harbor with half cargoes. Large numbers of strike breakers have been imported from England.

"I'm going to England to raise the fiery cross and in a few hours there will be a general strike throughout Great Britain," James Larkin told a huge crowd which assembled in front of Liberty Hall soon after his release. He continued: "We have fought successfully the strongest government of modern times. It made a mistake in sending me to prison and has made a greater mistake in releasing me." Larkin concluded: "I tell you Lord Aberdeen must go out of the vice royalty of Ireland. He is only a tool in the hands of unscrupulous capitalists in this city. The only friends you have got are the working classes."

THE ENLARGED-HOMESTEAD LAW.

Secretary Lane Outlines the Methods of Procedure for Homestead Entrymen.

The 320-acre homestead law, or, as it is often called, the enlarged-homestead law, has made possible the entry of many millions of acres of dry land in the western states in tracts double the size allowed under the original homestead law. Only land which has been "designated" by the secretary of the interior as "nonirrigable" can be entered under this act. More than 200,000,000 acres have been thus designated, but petitions and sworn statements requesting further designations are constantly being received.

In an interview just given out, Secretary Lane calls attention to the fact that there appears to be considerable misunderstanding among western homesteaders as to the procedure necessary in order that enlarged-homestead designations may be made. The secretary states that only the simplest and most direct action by the settler is required, and that it is wholly unnecessary for him to incur the charges now made by attorneys who draw up formal petitions that are in fact no more effective than the homesteader's own letter would be. On this account a brief statement of the essential facts relative to the enlarged-homestead law is timely.

The first enlarged-homestead act was approved Feb. 19, 1909, and as later amended provides that in the states of Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oregon, Utah, Washington, and Wyoming any person who is qualified to make entry under the homestead laws may enter as much as 320 acres of public land, which is in a reasonably compact body and is non-mineral, nonirrigable, unreserved and unappropriated and does not contain merchantable timber. Before such entry can be made, however, the land must be designated by the secretary of the interior as not being, in his opinion, susceptible of successful irrigation at a reasonable cost from any known source of water supply.

Land Must Be Nonirrigable.

The work of classifying the lands and determining what areas may be considered nonirrigable has been assigned by Secretary Lane to the United States Geological Survey. Although, under the present ruling of the secretary, large areas may be designated as nonirrigable without raising the question whether the land is in other respects subject to homestead entry, the work of examining and classifying these large areas necessarily proceeds rather slowly. In addition to these so-called "blanket" designations, therefore, designations of smaller areas are made as rapidly as their nonirrigable character is determined, including areas whose designation has been requested by individual settlers for enlarged-homestead entry or for additional entry on tracts adjacent to their present unperfected homestead entries.

Formal Legal Statement Not Necessary.

No definite form of petition is required, but each application should be limited as far as possible to the specific tract desired for entry and should contain a description, by section, township, and range, of the applicant's original homesteaded entry and the date of this entry, as well as a description, also by legal subdivisions, of the land desired for additional entry. Information as to the possibility of irrigating the land should also be furnished and should include the distance and direction of the nearest stream or existing or proposed irrigation canal, the elevation of the lowest point of the land above such source of water supply, the depth at which water can be reached by wells sunk on the land, and all available information concerning attempts to obtain water by this method. The general character of the land, both of the homesteader's original entry (if he has made one) and of the land desired for additional entry, should also be described, to aid the survey in reaching a decision as to its nonirrigability.

This information should be embodied in a letter sent to the Director, U. S. Geological Survey, Washington, D. C. A formal petition drawn up by a notary or an attorney is not at all necessary, and will not result in any earlier consideration of the matter than will be given if the applicant writes personally. Action will be taken on every request as promptly as is consistent with a proper regard to other requests that

To prevent disease— resist disease germs

SMALLPOX is prevented by vaccination — the injection of vaccine. DIPHTHERIA is prevented by the injection of anti-toxin. These enable the body to produce substances which prevent the growth of smallpox and diphtheria germs in the blood. There are many other diseases, nearly, if not quite as dangerous, and far more common — typhoid fever, the grippe, bronchitis, pneumonia, catarrh, rheumatism, and a score of others — that can be prevented less painfully and more easily by making the body strong to resist germ infection.

Olive Oil Emulsion (With Hypophosphites)

Is designed for the prevention as well as the relief of disease — by enabling the body to overcome the germs. It, at the same time, strengthens and tones the nerves, nourishes the blood, puts the entire system into a proper healthy condition to combat and successfully resist disease.

Every person not in perfect health has incipient germs of some distressing ailment in his or her system. Cold weather, over-work, excesses of any kind, are liable to bring about just the conditions under which those latent disease germs will get the upper hand, and put you on your back "down sick." You who are run-down, tired-out, nervous — You who, though not sick enough to give up, still don't feel good — You who are apparently well, and want to stay well — Take home a bottle of Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion today, and use it as a means to get well and keep well. Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion is a real nerve-food tonic. In this it is different from most other so-called "tonics" which either have no food value and do nothing more than temporarily stimulate you, leaving you in a worse condition than before or, having food value, still are so unpleasant to take that many people can't keep them down. Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion is pleasant to take. The Hypophosphites it contains tone the nerves. The pure Olive Oil nourishes both nerves and blood. Rexall Olive Oil Emulsion strengthens you, puts snap and ginger and vitality into your system. It makes you feel better and stronger. Pinklets Will Really Correct Constipation

Pinklets are a most valuable laxative in the treatment of obstinate constipation. They correct this unnatural and dangerous condition by gently assisting the sluggish bowels and torpid liver to regain their normal activity. Their action is gentle, but effective and thorough, and they do not cause a single gripe. Unlike harsh, strong purgatives, they do not upset the stomach nor irritate and overstimulate the bowels. Because they have none of these evil effects, they can be taken with entire safety until the constipation is corrected. To simply regulate the bowels or to treat obstinate cases of constipation, Pinklets are the ideal laxative. They are safe for every member of the family to use. Get a bottle today and start trying them. Any druggist can supply you at 25 cents per bottle.
