Bishop Hamilton is a fine orator, had an interesting subject and the people feel grateful that a person of such note came to us.

The Factory Girl

Graphic description of the conditions which led a mid-western mother to do what she could to provide a larger life for the working girls of her city, appears in The Survey's March magazine issue. Mrs. Albion Fellows Bacon tells of her visit to a factory:
"The big iron doors of the mills and factories opened to us, and shut us into a new world. We had driven past these huge buildings and had heard the roar of machinery, but we thought only of the moving bands and the buzzing wheels, then. Now, inside, looking down the long dusty aisles, where ranks of girls stood, with machine-like motions, we realized that human lives were woven on those looms or wound among those wheels. The girls seemed so much a part of their work that when one of them answered our greeting it was almost as if a cog had spoken."
"It gave a new importance to fabrics, buttons, paper, etc., to see them grow by degrees under those skillful, patient hands. We had used daily all the countless products of our factories, as if they grew on trees, with never a thought of the human muscles and nerve that went into them. In the cold twilight of winter morning we had often heard, faint and far off, a factory whistle blow for work, and we had turned over to take another nap in our soft warm beds. But even then these girls were hurrying along the foggy streets, in which the street lamps still glimmered, shivering in the chill air. And when the big doors opened, after work, and they poured out into the street again, the sun was down, and they went home in another gas-lit twilight."

Cash Bargain Store

Do you love your baby? Of course you do, and so does your neighbor, who has no baby, and the crusty old bachelor, who pretends to think babies a nuisance. Everybody loves a baby and that is why the "better babies" movement is the sensation of the present day. It is a plan for making sick babies well, delicate babies strong and well babies perfect. It is founded on sane, hygienic living for the baby. The contest at Howland hall on March 31. The civic department of the woman's club is conducting the great event with the co-operation of Barre physicians. Take your baby to this new kind of show and find out whether it is a perfect baby, and, if not, why not. The doctors and good women interested in the work will be able to tell you by means of the "better baby" card, under which your baby will be weighed, measured and tested. If it is a perfect or nearly perfect, anyway, the best baby in town, it will receive a prize worth having, not only cash but a certificate, which it can show to its children and grandchildren in years to come. For further particulars apply to Mrs. Waterman, telephone 413-1; Mrs. M. L. Chandler, or Mrs. O. Boffino, member of the committee on entries and enrollment.

Regular meeting of Green Mountain council, No. 736, Royal Arcanum, will be held Friday evening at 7:30 in K. of P. hall. Let every member be present.
