Mrs. William Halvosa and three children of South Main street returned yesterday from Walden, where they have been spending the past few weeks with relatives.

Mrs. J. B. Darling of South Ryegate, who is the guest of her son, J. B. Darling of 8 Laurel street, was 86 years old to-day. She came to Barre to attend the Darling-McDonald wedding.

Miss Thomasina Kesson of Boynton street is taking a few weeks' vacation from her duties at the Woolworth store. She left this forenoon for Walden to visit for two weeks with relatives.

Elmer Belleville of Graniteville is taking a three weeks' vacation from his duties at the C. W. Averill hardware concern. He has gone on a fishing trip through the northern section of Maine.

In juvenile baseball circles, the Starfish Giants defeated the Brook Street Stars by the close score of 2 to 1. The batteries for the winners were Tosi and Mahatti and for the losers Massie and Baigrie.

Dr. Guy L. Johnson of Littleton, N. H., arrived in the city today to pass a few days with relatives. Dr. Johnson, who graduated from Spaulding high school in 1909, was a member of the graduating class at Tufts Dental college this year.

Misses Louise, Emma and Mary Bourdieu of East Barre were visitors in the city Saturday while on their way to Burlington, where they will pass two weeks with relatives. Miss Euphemia Bourdieu is taking Miss Louise Bourdieu's place at Websterville during her absence.

George Booth, who has been employed at the F. D. Ladd Co.'s store for some time, completed his duties Saturday night and began work to-day at the Morrison farm. Clarence Geake, who has also been employed by the Ladd Co., went to Williamstown to-day to pass the summer on a farm.

TALK OF THE TOWN

Just see who is at the Bijou to-day—Ford Sterling in "His Wedding Day."—Adv.

Charles H. Barton, with a party of seven fishermen from Montpelier, is spending two weeks in a trip to Lake Megantic, P. Q., and points in Maine.

Miss Evelyn Springer of Northfield and Ernest Luther of the Harvard Eng. Co. of Boston are spending a week with Mrs. C. H. Barton at her camp, Pitch Inn, at Edgewater.

"The Romance of an Actor," a two-reel Powers drama, featuring Edwin August; "His Wedding Day," a Ford Sterling comedy, and "Birds of Passage," an Eclair drama, at the Bijou.—Adv.

On the flyer announcing the excursion on the C. V. Ry. to St. Albans on July 4, an error was made in the printing. The time of arrival in St. Albans should read 10 a. m., instead of 11 a. m., as is on the flyer.

Word has been received in this city that the family of P. M. Coyne, formerly of Barre, but now of Salem, escaped the terrible Salem fire, although at times it looked dangerous for them and all in their neighborhood stood with trunks on the sidewalk and ready to start for Beverly, the only place they could get to out of Salem.

Friends here of Miss Hilda Washburn of Montpelier will be interested to learn that she has completed a course in a kindergarten school at Jenkinton, Pa., and is passing the summer at her home. On account of her previous experience Miss Washburn was able to finish the work at Jenkinton in two years.

The Barre A. C. have secured for an attraction Wednesday and Thursday at Interity park the McElwains of the Manchester league of Manchester. The McElwains, on their first appearance here, defeated the Italian A. C. by a decisive score. The B. A. C. wants these two games and will make every endeavor to take them. Come out and root for the home team.—Adv.

Madeline Dion was pleasantly surprised Saturday evening, when about 30 of her friends gathered at her home on Brook street. Gladys Noonan, in behalf of the company, presented Miss Dion a gold locket and chain, for which Miss Dion expressed her thanks. The evening was spent in playing games, ice cream, cake and candy were served. The party broke up at an early hour, wishing the hostess many more happy birthday anniversaries.

James Sullivan of Dorchester, Mass., arrived in the city yesterday to pass the summer. He will be employed in Barre during the summer months and contemplates entering Goodard seminary in the fall. Sullivan will play baseball with the Barre A. C., commencing this week. For the past few years he has played an infield position with the Dorchester high school team and has been regarded as one of the best shortstops around Boston.

Fred A. Slayton of South Main street is getting ready to transfer his string of racing horses to the grounds of the Franklin County Fair association at Sheldon Junction, where there is to be a big race meet and celebration on Independence day. For a short time the Slayton stables on South Main street will be vacant, although the proprietor plans to bring his charges back to Barre in time to train them further for the summer series of race meets and the fair schedules this fall. Among the fastest ones which Mr. Slayton will take with him to Sheldon is Betty Dean, who distinguished herself on the fair circuit last autumn.

The 20th annual reunion of the Wheeler family was held at Dewey park Saturday, with an attendance of 60, coming from Berlin, Woodbury, Worcester, Calais, Montpelier and this city. Mrs. Josephine Denmore opened the afternoon's program with an address of welcome, and she was followed by Miss Muriel Wheeler, in a vocal solo; Mrs. Ruth Cheney, with the family history; a quartet by the Cheney family and a closing recitation by Luella Denmore. At a business meeting, at which Secretary E. G. Wheeler of this city presided, B. W. Wheeler of South Woodbury was chosen secretary for the ensuing year. The next family reunion will be held at Maple corners.

Friends in Barre and East Barre of Clayton Tucker, a prominent East Montpelier man, will be glad to learn that he is recovering from the effects of a serious operation to which he submitted at the Mary Fletcher hospital in Burlington last week. After a rather long period of poor health, Mr. Tucker went to Burlington on the advice of his physician and underwent an operation for a rupture and again for a tumor. He is making rapid progress toward recovery and hopes to be able to return home shortly. Mrs. Tucker, who accompanied him to Burlington, underwent a successful operation for appendicitis at the hospital Saturday afternoon and reports received here this morning indicate that her condition is favorable for a speedy recovery.

Miss Margaret Walker of Grant avenue and Miss Gertrude King of Ferrisburg, who has been visiting friends in the city for a few weeks, left this morning for Clifton, Mass., where they have employment for the summer in the Rockaway inn, which is being conducted this season by Mrs. C. N. Benedict. Allen Johnston of Blackwell street left to-day for Whitefield, N. H., whence he will go to Sugar Hill to be employed during the summer months at the Sunset hill house. William Carroll of North Main street, who has been visiting relatives in Washington for a few days, left this morning for Old Orchard, Me., where he expects to be employed until Sept. 1. Mrs. Earl S. Waterman of State College, Pa., who has been visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Waterman of Washington street for a few weeks, went this morning to Burlington, where she will make a more extended stay at her former home.

John R. Tierney of South Main street went last night to Montreal, where he will visit his son, Harold Tierney, a brakeman employed by the Grand Trunk railroad. Alexander Fowle of Ayers street, who is recovering from the effects of injuries received in a baseball game at Interity park recently, went yesterday to St. John's, P. Q., to visit relatives during his convalescence. Mrs. Fred W. Sutor of Bolster avenue left Saturday for Concord, N. H., where she will pass a few weeks with her sister and other relatives. George Anderson has gone to Montreal to meet a party of friends returning to Barre from Scotland and L. F. Quimby has gone to Rutland, where he will make a short visit before going to Bellows Falls and Chesham, N. H. William Dobie, who began a fortnight's vacation from his duties in the Homer Fitts store Saturday, went this morning in company with John McCaskill, to Groton, to pass a few days in camp.

TALK OF THE TOWN

George Fradd of Burlington was among the business visitors in the city Saturday and Sunday.

Gerald Bragg of Fayston arrived in the city today, passing a few days as the guest of friends.

Miss Ruth Humphrey left this afternoon for Maplewood, N. H., where she will remain during the summer.

Alexander McLellan and William Cruickshank returned last night from Northfield, where they have been visiting friends for a few days.

Miss Inez Waterman, who has been passing a vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Waterman of Washington street, has returned to Orleans.

Charles Barton of North Main street left last night in company with a party of Montpelier sportsmen for the Canadian north woods, where he will spend 10 days at camp Woburn. In the party were Edward Felt, George M. Felt, L. C. Wood, Michael McMahon, Pliny Gale and Edward Johnson.

On Friday last one of the largest attended auction sales ever recorded in Washington county was held on the so-called Lucius Downing farm in a remote corner of Plainfield. Notwithstanding the inaccessibility of the farm there was a large gathering present, which included people from Boston, New York, Barre and vicinity and points further distant. The farm buildings and land were recently purchased by Frank Ladd of Orange. The sale on Friday consisted of house furnishings. There was an exceptional list of antiques on sale, which attracted the large crowd. During the day refreshments were served the buyers. The sale was conducted through the Perry agency, D. A. Perry acting as auctioneer.

This morning George Walker of Grant avenue, a 1914 graduate of Spaulding high school, completed taking the school census for the present year. The work was started 10 days ago and during that time the young man has visited every house in the city limits, securing the names of children between the school ages of five and eighteen. Returns were made at the city clerk's office this morning, and attaches there will be engaged the next two or three days in tabulating the census by wards and by ages. Although no definite line on the relative gains of the several wards can be secured now, it is believed that the total number of children eligible for the public schools will equal, if it does not exceed the figures for last year. The report is used by the school authorities in assigning students to the different school buildings throughout the city in September.

North and south ends of the city met Saturday at North Barre in one of the most warmly contested juvenile games of baseball the season has developed. The Condors, representing the north end, won an 11 to 5 victory over the North Barre D. C. V., but not until a late inning spurt had sent the north-enders ahead by a comfortable margin. The hitting of Rabioli and Grana's fielding featured for the D. C. V. The all-around hitting of the Condors and the catches of Geddes and Rogers were among the other features. The Condors missed the services of their star infielder, Carroll 3b, Levie ss, Smith 3b, Rogers if, Gordon 2b, McHugh c, Nichols p, Geddes of, Batchelder if, D. C. V.—Grana 3b, Manning rf, Susena c, Rabioli 1b, Colombo 2b and p, Calogero p and 2b, Sassi if, Calderara cf, Nichols allowed only three hits.

C. J. Pillsbury of Tremont street purchased the property of W. W. Anderson on Beacon street, which was sold at auction Saturday afternoon through the D. A. Perry Real Estate agency. The price of the sale was $2,140. Mr. Pillsbury will take possession in September. D. A. Perry acted as auctioneer. At 1:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon, a lot on Long street belonging to W. W. Anderson was sold at auction through the Perry agency. W. A. Drew purchased at $200. At 2 o'clock a large gathering was present at the sale of the residence owned by Mrs. Elmer Sanders at South Barre. A Ball of South Barre bought the house and lot for $1,900. Another sale was consummated through the Perry agency on Saturday, when C. W. Perry and wife purchased the farm owned by W. Henry Stewart on west hill. The purchase included the buildings, stock, tools and 150 acres of land.

Should Daughters Leave Their Parents For Business?

In the July Woman's Home Companion Christine Terhune Herrick writes an interesting article entitled "A Girl's Rights," in which she discusses the question as to whether a girl with a comfortable home should earn her own living. Taking the subject of daughters from the parents' point of view she discusses the point as follows: "I believe that the girl of to-day who does not make marriage a part of her plan of life should be accorded a portion of the freedom granted her brother, or her sister, who contemplates matrimony. What is offered a girl by the average parent who insists upon her devoting herself to home duties and social occupations? What has she in the way of a means of self-support if one of the sudden changes, so common in our American life, should throw her upon her own resources? How could she earn her living? If she has passively acquired a mode of work which might enable her to secure for herself a roof-top, and clothes, what chance has she in competition with others if she had no opportunity to practice her avocation? Or even if the need for work does not occur, what is she to do with herself when the parents in whom her life is bound up leave her alone to fill out the rest of her days as best she may? "If the parents cannot bring themselves to consent that the daughter shall go out into the world to learn an art or follow a profession, the least they can do, even at the cost of personal sacrifice on their part, is to permit her to acquire something to stand her in stead when she is left to herself. She should be allowed to qualify herself for painting or drawing or music or literature or even commerce, and have all possible assistance in gaining facility in her chosen line."

The Man Nobody Envies.

In the June American Magazine an undertaker, who calls himself "The Man Nobody Envies," writes an account of his experiences. Following is an extract:

"One of my first surprises in the business was to discover how frequently men and women realize that death is close to them, and prepare for their own funerals. Their ideas are much alike, and it was talking with some of them that assured me my theories were correct.

"Don't waste money on me," they would say. "Make the services simple as possible, and please cut out the rot." "Thereafter I studied and put forth efforts toward the comforting and consoling of the living. I studied their tastes, I learned the favorite colors, music, flowers, clothing, of the person who was dead. When I called at a house of mourning, I could discover much by studying wall paper, furniture, pictures, draperies, about what arrangements to make to afford the most comfort to those who mourned. I cultivated and developed a nicety of taste. "For a few years, in fact until after my marriage, it was with a kind of dread that I came to a house of mourning. My sympathy for the bereaved ones was so keen that my sufferings were acute. I never have overcome this half cowardly desire to avoid sadness. But when I discovered that it was within my power to give some comfort, this very acuteness of my sympathy was what made it possible. "I commenced to have very dear and true friends, but to my regret the great majority of them were men and women much older than myself. The younger ones, those who knew nothing of death from bitter experience, held aloof and appeared to shun me. My wife and I associated with the older married people. Our dearest friends were those whom I had served in a professional capacity. Although I never had been an active church worker and indeed held only a nominal church membership, we discovered ourselves listed socially with the ministers and the doctors, and, indeed, regarded much as they were—as persons rather above the average importance. Our only regret was that we seemed left out of everything of a jolly or frivolous nature, as if lefty were out of place in an undertaker. Two winters after our marriage, the young people of the town were arranging an amateur production of "The Pirates of Penzance" for charity. I possess a fair voice and had sung at times in concerts. I was requested, with many apologies, to sing in the production, and when I suggested that I was best fitted to sing the policeman's role, the delegation was dumfounded. I enjoyed the sensation. It was the joke of the town—an undertaker comedian—but we packed the house, and I was greeted with roars of laughter—because I was an undertaker, I'm afraid, rather than because I was a good comedian."
