

ABOUT THE STATE

HAPPENINGS OF INTEREST FROM DIFFERENT SECTIONS

Arthur Perry Little, Harvard, '16, of St. Johnsbury, has been appointed business manager of the next issue of The University Register, to appear next fall.

A Franklin County Guernsey Breeders' association was organized in Enosbury Falls recently. H. F. Comings of East Berkshire being president.

The lecture course committee at Northfield reports that it closed the season with a cash balance of $128 on hand, which is nearly twice the amount on hand at the close of the season the year before.

No doubt the oldest horse in the state was shot on the S. J. Bolanoff farm in West Swanton recently. The first owner of the horse was Captain Hawley of Swanton, and his age can be traced back about forty years.

Rev. Henry Lamb, pastor of the Congregational church at West Brattleboro, has gone to Attleboro, Mass., to enter a sanatorium, where he will receive treatment for a nervous affliction from which he has been suffering several months. He will be away a month.

If Mrs. Harriet G. Abell lives until March 22 she will pass her 100th birthday anniversary at her home in Enosbury Falls. It is planned by the Methodist church of that place to observe the day in some appropriate manner. If Mrs. Abell is in her usual health at that time, she will recite a poem.

Dr. Waldron B. Vanderpool, who with his family spent the entire year 1913 in Rutland, and who passed much of last year at Brandon inn, Brandon, died Wednesday at his home in Summit, N. J., aged 69 years, of paralysis of the brain. He was a graduate of Dartmouth college, class of 1876.

Mrs. Louise Foster, mother of Representative H. S. Foster, died Saturday at her home in North Calais, after an illness with pneumonia. For 13 years Mrs. Foster had been an invalid and for a number of years was confined to her bed. She was 87 years of age. Mrs. Foster leaves three children, Col. H. S. Foster and Mrs. Van Kent of Wellington, Col. The funeral was held this afternoon.

No scarce have tenements become in Windsor that the board of trade has appointed a committee to engineer a plan for co-operative building, whereby the citizens may contribute, according to their means, in the erection of homes for the employes of the machine shops and others who are adopting Windsor as their place of residence. The board of trade of that place is also negotiating for another business, which would employ 250 girls. The concern, if secured, comes from Missouri, and would expect accommodations provided for homes, were they to accept.

Bankers More Than Half-Century.

Cashier Charles E. Pinney of the National Bank of Middlebury has just completed 50 years of active business life. Mr. Pinney began as clerk in the store of Beckwith & Wainwright, and after three years' service resigned. On Jan. 1, 1869, he entered the National bank, where he has been in continuous service since. Mr. Pinney is, with one exception, the oldest banker in point of service in Vermont, the exception being Henry F. Field, president of the Rutland County National bank of Rutland. Mr. Field entered the employ of the Brandon bank in 1860, when he was 17 years old. He went to Rutland in 1862.

Half-hearted Attempt at Suicide.

Joseph Wilson, an elderly man, who has been a boarder at the Burlington Adams house this winter, is recovering from the effects of a minor injury self-inflicted. Wilson thought he had had enough of this world and after an altercation with a fellow boarder, the other morning, sought out a razor that another man had just used, and slashed his throat with it. It didn't cut him much, a gash an inch long being opened, from which blood flowed freely. The razor was secured and the wound dressed. Since then the man hasn't said much.

CLUB AND SCHOOL DAY.

St. Johnsbury Women Have an Interesting Meeting. St. Johnsbury, March 15.—Club and school day was observed by the St. Johnsbury Women's club Saturday, when the members and the public school teachers were guests of the club-president, Mrs. Sarah L. Hovey, in Pythian hall. The special guest of the day was the Vermont State Federation president, Mrs. George H. Smiley of Montpelier.

ier, who made her first visit to the St. Johnsbury club. The guests were given a cordial welcome by Mrs. Hovey. In the afternoon the following musical program was given: Piano duet, Miss Alice B. Warden and Mrs. H. A. Stanley; vocal solo, Mrs. Ida P. Brooks; violin duet, Miss Elizabeth S. Peck and Miss Marjorie W. Crappon, with Miss Warden at the piano; vocal solo, Miss Edwina Blodgett.

Miss Caroline S. Woodruff, president of the State Teachers' association, made some remarks on the subject of education; Supt. Walter H. Young of this town spoke on the same subject, and Mrs. Smiley gave some suggestions concerning the work of the club in connection with rural schools.

EDUCATORS ADJOURN.

After Conference Held at University of Vermont. Burlington, March 15.—The closing session of the educational conference at Williams Science hall was held Saturday with the general subject of "Agricultural Education and Home Economic" under discussion. Boys' and Girls' clubs and home project work was treated specifically.

E. L. Ingalls of the university presided and told of plans for the year. An interesting and practical talk was given by Mrs. John B. Chase of Lyndon on "Home Garden Work in the Elementary Schools." Her paper was of especial interest owing to the fact that the Adams school Parent Teacher's association has started a Home Garden class in that school. Mrs. Chase told of extraordinary success of the home garden and domestic science class at Lyndon and gave helpful suggestions of how the project might be worked out in Burlington.

A. G. Fletcher of Orleans and Miss J. J. Thayer of Ferrisville took up the topic in its relations to the high school. The session closed with a round table conference for teachers of home economics. Miss Terrill leading. The principals of the high schools of the state met and perfected an organization to be known as the Secondary Principals' association. Edward S. Abbott of Montpelier was elected president and G. R. Stackpole of Winooski was elected secretary.

Vermont Sugar Makers Should Meet Demands of the Market. While an increasingly large part of Vermont maple products is marketed as syrup and caked sugar, more than one-half the crop is probably still marketed as tub sugar. When such sugar is cooked at a lower temperature than 240 degrees F., syrup will separate from the sugar and fermentation will take place in warm weather. While there may be a limited market for a small quantity of soft sugar early in the season for immediate consumption, yet the great bulk of Vermont maple sugar should be cooked hard enough to stand transportation to long distances and to keep without stricture for a long time.

Dealers in Vermont sugar agree that because our sugar makers are not cooking their sugar hard enough we are losing the trade of many eastern and western consumers who are coming to prefer Canadian sugar even at a higher price, because it is always made uniformly hard and there is consequently no loss from shrinkage. Vermont sugar should always command the highest price, because it is second to none in quality. Our farmers should be careful to make the new crop of sugar particularly hard and thereby help to get back the business that has been lost.

This is particularly vital at this time, because after May 1, 1916, the duty will be removed from Canadian sugar and Vermont sugar makers must compete with Canadian sugar on a duty free basis.

Makers of tub sugar this spring should boil the sugar until the thermometer registers 240 degrees. E. S. Brigham, Commissioner of Agriculture.

How to Keep a Cow from Having Horns.

The following is taken from the current issue of Farm and Fireside: "Horns were useful to cattle when they had to fight for their existence, but domestic cattle do not need them. Like a man carrying a weapon, the creature with horns is likely to be uppish and contentious. Hence, dehorning should be the universal rule, unless the cattle are intended for show purposes. The time to operate is when the calf is young, and the thing to use is caustic potash. Moisture the end of a stick of the caustic and rub it on the 'button' which has the intention of becoming a horn. Clip off the hair first. Care should be taken not to put on so much of the caustic as to cause it to flow off the button upon the skin. If used properly, the operation requires no great skill—no horns will develop."

SAMUEL BOWLES, SPRINGFIELD, DEAD

Editor and Publisher of the Springfield Republican Was a Noted Figure.

Springfield, March 15.—Samuel Bowles, editor and publisher of the Springfield Republican, died at 12:35 a. m. yesterday. Samuel Bowles was born in Springfield, Oct. 15, 1851, and got his early education at home, in public and private schools. He traveled abroad for two years, and then took a special course at Yale for two years. Leaving college he entered the office of The Republican as an assistant in the editorial department, contributing to the editorial page that has made that paper famous throughout the country. In 1873 he went into the counting room as business manager, and after serving two years in that position became publisher. Since 1878 he was editor-in-chief as well as publisher.

Mr. Bowles was a prominent figure among the newspaper men of the country, and was honored in April, 1913, by being elected a director of the Associated Press for two years, to fill the unexpired term of Frederick Roy Martin of Providence.

Mr. Bowles married Miss Elizabeth Hoar, daughter of Ebenezer Rockwood Hoar of Concord, June 12, 1884. Mr. Bowles' mother was Mary S. Dwight Schermerhorn, daughter of the late Henry Van Rensselaer Schermerhorn of Geneva, N. Y., and a descendant also of James Scutt Dwight, early in the last century a merchant of Springfield. Mr. Bowles was the fourth of his name. His grandfather, a Hartford printer, founded the Weekly Springfield Republican in 1844, and he established the Sunday Republican in 1878.

When the elder Bowles died, the son, then a young man, stepped into larger shoes, but continued successfully the publication of The Republican, preserving its policy and independence of political parties.

Mr. Bowles was particularly interested in Springfield matters, and was a sturdy champion of reform; of movements to improve the city in physical and civic ways. He was an active advocate of the "safe and sane" Fourth of July celebration, which Springfield was one of the first cities to adopt. Two sons, Samuel and Sherman, are in the newspaper work in Boston and Philadelphia, respectively. Former Rear Admiral Francis T. Bowles of Boston is a cousin.

THREE BILLS FOUND.

One in Rutland County Charges Murder at Fair Haven.

Rutland, March 15.—The Rutland county grand jury, which had been at work since March 9, reported yesterday three true bills found and two not found. One of the indictments is against Giovanni Marino, who is at the county jail on the charge of murdering Angelo Gioio of Fair Haven by stabbing at the boarding house early in February. This indictment charges murder in the first degree.

One of the bills found is not made public because the accused has not been arrested. The third is against George S. Hier of Waltham, age 28 years, and it charges him with making a criminal assault at Hubbardton on Miss Gladys Benjamin of New Haven, 20, having intimidated her with a revolver. The young woman entered a complaint against Hier, but she afterwards married him, which makes an interesting complication in the case.

The grand jury failed to find a bill against Robert Moore of Clarendon, charged with arson, and Walter Severin of Pittsfield, breach of the peace.

ALLOWED TO REVIVE SUIT.

Executors of A. C. Spring May Push Case Against Rutland Officials.

Rutland, March 15.—The executors of the estate of Andrew C. Spring were allowed 30 days by the federal court Saturday in which to continue a suit begun by Mr. Spring against Percival W. Clement, W. Seward Webb and other officials of the Rutland railroad. In his original declaration Mr. Spring alleged that Clement, Webb and other officials of the road had defrauded minority stockholders by stock manipulation. Judge James L. Martin of Brattleboro, who heard the evidence, died without giving a decision. Mr. Spring's death occurred last December. Counsel for the defendants moved to have the case dismissed for want of a plaintiff, but the court ruled that the executors might revise the plaintiff's declaration and file a bond of $5000. If this is not done, the court announced, the case will be dismissed and costs will be levied against the estate.

FAVOR FOUR-TEAM LEAGUE.

Two State Directors Meet, May Decide to Drop Newport and Northampton.

Bellows Falls, March 15.—The directors of the Twin State league met here to-day and there is much interest in the result. It is thought in Bellows Falls, Keene, and Brattleboro that it will be decided to have the league the coming season consist of four clubs, instead of six. Brattleboro fans met Thursday evening and instructed the league representative to vote for four clubs. Brattleboro, Keene, Bellows Falls and Greenfield, with a weekly salary limit of $250, or to withdraw from the league. This would eliminate Newport, N. H., and Northampton, Mass. Keene is in favor of such a league and so are the fans in this town. It is not known how Greenfield stands on the question.

THE WHYS AND WHEREFORES OF PRUNING

"Prune When the Knife is Sharp"

As soon as artificial conditions are introduced into plant life, it is necessary to adopt artificial means in order to accomplish nature's work, hence the necessity of pruning trees and shrubs. Under natural conditions, plants grow thickly, one crowds upon the other, and thus superfluous plants, as well as branches, are crowded out. Under artificial conditions there is no such force at work, and trees and plants are set out at distances which prevent natural pruning, and thus the available plant food is increased. This in turn excites growth, so that the distances between trees, which are naturally developed near the end of the growth of each season, become great, and give the plant an open form and appearance of having been built in sections.

By pruning, the gardener shortens this annual growth, with the result that the tree is given a more compact and better defined form and is, therefore, better suited to serve a special purpose, whether it be as an ornament or as a bearer of fruit. In the important process of heading-in, care should be used in order that the plant may not assume an artificial shape. "The heading-in," says an expert, "should be a corrective, rather than a directive, process; that is, the heading-in should only be sufficient to counterbalance the augmented growth."

Correcting Nature.

Another reason why pruning is necessary is that many of our ornamental trees and shrubs have an unfortunate natural habit of growth, resulting in a form of branching, which makes the trees very susceptible to damage from high winds or heavy snows. It is the business of the gardener to prevent such branching and to direct the growth of the tree so as to force it to distribute its branches in such a way as to avoid this undesirable system of branching, which is the silver maple and Carolina poplar. These trees branch so as to throw two strong shoots from the point of a branching, each of which grows at about the same rate, with a very narrow angle between them; the result is that as the branches increase in size, the union between them being imperfect, severe pressure has a tendency to split them apart.

The pruning of fruit trees is, of course, extremely necessary, not only for the purpose of checking the growth, but for the purpose of thinning the fruit as well. It is generally known that checking the growth of a fruit tree has a tendency to increase fruitfulness. To a limited extent, pruning will accomplish this, and, strange as it may appear, pruning is frequently resorted to in order to stimulate growth in plants. Thus, when a very young tree is received from the nursery, it will reveal the pointer for two cuts it back during the resting period, that all the strength of the root may be given to the formation of a sturdier stalk.

Cheaper for Two People to Travel than One.

In the April Woman's Home Companion appears the first of a series of articles entitled, "Made-in-America Vacations." The plan is to describe minutely several trips which can be taken this summer. The descriptions are to include facts about expenses, and so on. The idea is that, with conditions in Europe as they are, travel in America will be greatly stimulated. The author says that, generally speaking, two persons can travel proportionately cheaper than one. Explaining this point he goes on:

"For instance, in European plan hotels, a room occupied by two costs as a rule little, if any, more than when only occupied by one person; in American plan hotels, two will in most cases be charged $7 a day, where the rate for one person occupying a room alone would be $4. On the sleeping cars a lower berth will hold two people fairly comfortably, and this cuts the cost of that important item in half. Quarters (which have to be distributed so frequently as time will permit) for the porter for two people is satisfactorily as for one. On dining cars, mostly a la carte nowadays, the portions are ample for two; the same may be said in general of restaurants, except where meals are served at a fixed price per person. A carriage ride in a city costs just as much for one as for two. There are innumerable other items where travelers may double up to advantage, so I think it is not an underestimate to figure that two persons traveling together, on such a tour as this, can probably cut individual costs from $25 to $40 below what the total would amount to for one person proceeding alone."

Even the Emerson factory wrote and told us we could not live and sell an Emerson piano for $75, but just the same you can buy it for the month of March at the advertised price. Disobeying Party Promises.

The existing primary law in this state is admittedly unsatisfactory, and the Republican party was courageous enough to say so in its platform of 1914. That platform pledged its representatives in the present legislature to bring about some harmonious combination of the direct primary idea and the delegate convention plan. It was not an easy thing to accomplish; but in a bill introduced by Mr. Chase of Concord an honest attempt was made to fulfill the platform obligations. This bill has just been defeated in the House by a combination of intriguing Democrats, plausible Progressives and heedless Republicans.

The Chase bill sought to preserve the primary in all its essentials, to legalize political committees, to make them elective by the people and to produce some sense of responsibility for party candidates. It took away no rights which the existing primary law confers and it afforded a direct primary for most of the evils for which the present law has been criticised.

The reasons which actuated the Republicans of the House in their preference to follow Messrs. Brennan, Duncan and Tobey in this matter rather than the explicit instructions of their own party platform are not easy to formulate. The only clear deduction is that they would not mend the primary law. Are we now to assume that they wish to end it?

If this is the case we can foresee many troublous days ahead.—Concord, N. H. Monitor.
