A large number of prospective citizens are awaiting the arrival in Barre of Clerk Fred N. Platt of the United States naturalization court, who is to conduct a session for applicants of the first and second class in the court room at city hall. To-day Clerk Platt and his attaches were doing business at the capital. To-morrow afternoon and evening will be given over wholly to considering the applications of Barre and Barre Town people who deferred steps toward obtaining their naturalization papers last spring on account of industrial conditions. It is thought that upward of 100 names will be presented before the court to-morrow, a majority of them coming from Barre City.

Additional rules for the regulation of jitney traffic are being quietly agitated about town and the protest against overcrowding vehicles of this type has been carried informally to members of the board of aldermen with the result that the city council may be asked to take a definite stand on the question of how many passengers a jitney shall be allowed to carry. Yesterday a man who was passing along North Main street saw a jitney car originally built for the accommodation of no more than five people, loaded with eight passengers. It was evident that when the seats inside the car were exhausted, passengers were permitted to hang to the running board. Motorists who do not have any designs on the jitney business say that the practice of overcrowding cars of this kind must lead almost inevitably to sideswiping accidents.

A buckskin horse from the Slayton stables on South Main street contributed a good bit of excitement and variety to early morning doings in the vicinity of City square this morning and before the light-colored member could be restrained, it had reared about the square rather too freely for the comfort of a few beach warmers who were at the accustomed places with unenvied promptness. F. A. Slayton was driving the buckskin out of his yard when the animal suddenly plunged, threw the driver to the ground and overturned the Concord wagon to which it was attached. Down the street to the park the horse veered from one side of the street to the other, righting the wagon once or twice, only to put on the screws by sideswiping an offending pole at the Church street corner. People dodged with agility at the animal's approach. Through the park it pursued its career until serious head-on had grasped the bridle firmly enough to control the beast. The wagon was partially demolished, but the horse seemed to have escaped injury. Mr. Slayton was unhurt.

No bones were broken, but marks of the teeth were visible on her side. Had it not been for the near presence of her two oldest daughters, who caught hold of the horse and lifted the rake, it would have proved more serious.

MONTPELIER

Big Hedgehog Captured on Main Street Yesterday.

John McDonald, a special policeman, has at his home a big hedgehog which was captured early Monday morning by Officer Baldwin and himself near Shipman's shoe store on Main street. Officer Baldwin saw the porcupine run across the street and crouch in a doorway and he straightway cornered it. Not wishing to kill it (notwithstanding the bounty) he captured it with the aid of Mr. McDonald and the latter took it to his home. It is believed that someone brought the animal to the city and purposely turned it loose. The local city clerk has never been called upon to pay a bounty for a hedgehog killed in Montpelier.

The alleged offense is said to have been committed about a week ago, following which Stani left for parts unknown, taking with him their three-year-old girl. A warrant was sworn out for Stani's arrest by State's Attorney Fred E. Gleason and the police in Massachusetts and New Hampshire notified to look out for the man and girl. He is about 35 years of age and has resided in Montpelier for several years, being by trade a painter. He was arrested several years ago for being a participant in a stabbing affray and served 30 days in jail.

SEEKS ALLEGED SHOOTER.

John Wilmarth is Alleged to Have Wounded Stella Cross.

Addison, July 27.—The county authorities are searching for John Wilmarth, 27, who is alleged to have shot Miss Stella Cross, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanton Cross, while out carriage riding Sunday night. With blood pouring from a wound back of her right ear and with two wounds in her right hand, the girl was brought to the home of her parents about 11 o'clock that night by young Wilmarth. With the assistance of the young man, Miss Cross was able to walk into the house where she collapsed; and her condition was serious because of loss of blood.

Stunned by their daughter's condition, Mr. and Mrs. Cross did not notice young Wilmarth's escape. He drove from the house to a pasture in West Addison, about four miles from his home, where he unhitched the horse which returned to its stable. Pinned to the sleeve of his overcoat, which was saturated with blood, was a note saying he was going away.

Wilmarth went to the home of Miss Cross early Sunday evening to take her for a drive. They have been going together for about a year. It is supposed that Miss Cross told young Wilmarth she would not allow him to pay her any more attentions, and that he thereupon shot her.

One bullet struck her behind the right ear, coming out in front of the ear. The wound in the hand were probably received when she drew up her hands to ward off the shot. The revolver with which the wounds were inflicted is thought to be of 22 calibre.

Miss Cross was greatly weakened by the loss of blood. Dr. W. W. Waterman of Vergennes was summoned and dressed the wounds. Later the wounds began to bleed afresh and Dr. Waterman could not be located. Dr. F. M. Rogers was called and stopped the flow. Dr. H. C. Tinkham of Burlington was summoned yesterday morning for a consultation.

Wilmarth is about five feet six inches tall, has light brown hair, blue eyes, and weighs about 140 pounds. He was formerly employed in the I. M. Taylor restaurant in Middlebury. He has had a good reputation.
