Despite the Ford peace expedition, the government at Washington still lives.

As if not pomeled enough during the past season, Yale's football team next year will be both Black and Blue.

The rush of newspaper men to go with the Ford peace party is perfectly natural, for they are promised some of the finest "copy" the newspaper sleuths could hope for in a month of Sundays.

Instead of waiting to serve time, the fugitive from the North Hero jail made time serve him as he fashioned a saw out of a clock mainspring. And now Grand Isle county hasn't a single prisoner, whereas it should worry.

This "Tom" Wilson who banqueted with Princeton '79 the other evening is an unknown person in the United States, but if anyone should go snooping round the White House, the same personage would be located under another name.

As yet Oyster Bay is mum concerning the peace ship Oscar II, but the wires will probably burn off when T. R. does begin to talk. His diatribe in refusing to participate in the Armenian massacre protest meeting indicates that the former president is fairly burning with indignation at the attitude of the United States.

John D. Rockefeller is said to be feeling the high cost of living, because he is so tight with gasoline for his own cars that he furnishes just enough for the chauffeurs to make their assigned trips and no more. Meanwhile the autoists all over the country are burning up the gasoline to lighten John D.'s financial worry.

While relatively a small amount, the Canadian domestic war loan of $50,000,000 was so quickly oversubscribed that one is led to believe that Canadian people of financial influence are with the parent government across the water, body and money. Already Canada has done a very important service in upholding the British government.

Four human beings and two horses have been rifled during the deer season. The Jerseys and Merinos must be in the barn.—Rutland Herald.

Events prove that domestic animals are not safe even in the barn, as a Stowe woman knows after having two of her horses shot as they stood in their stalls. Vermonters must be going crazy over the deer hunting proposition.

The power of the modern rifle is shown by the incident (perhaps accident would be better) at Montgomery Center when a returning deer hunter failed to remove the last cartridge and the weapon was discharged, the bullet passing through his daughter's thigh, then through an iron kettle and, finally, through the outer wall of the house, to spend itself no one knows where. This is the kind of a weapon which has been used in the Vermont woods and fields during the past three weeks. The increased "carry" of the modern rifle adds immeasurably to the dangers of hunting nowadays.

WHERE CARRIAGE LIGHTS WOULD HAVE HELPED.

The value of lights on horse-drawn vehicles was never more conclusively proven than in the case which occurred on a road just out of Montpelier one evening recently when two teams, driven slowly, collided with each other, the shaft of one vehicle being driven into the breast of the second horse in such a manner as to cause the animal's death. Result, a $250 loss in an instant. The drivers of both teams confessed they had no inkling of the approach of the other. Had one or both of the vehicles been equipped with lights, it is likely that the collision would have been avoided or, at least, that the results would not have been so damaging. Yet the drivers of horses continue to take chances on the highways at night, chances which are greatly increased in seasons when motor vehicles are in general use. A slight expenditure of money would enable them to protect themselves, their horses and their vehicles and, at the same time, free their minds of the constant worry of being hit during the darkness. It is only a certain element of stubbornness which prevents their adopting the "safety first" proposition.

THE RED CROSS ANTI-TUBERCULOSIS CAMPAIGN.

Co-operating with the national organization, the Vermont branch of the American Red Cross is distributing Red Cross Christmas seals for sale throughout Vermont. The proceeds from this sale are to be used in the anti-tuberculosis campaign, as usual, and the proceeds in Vermont will be used for the campaign in this state. Last Christmas season 70,000 of the seals were sold in the state, bringing $700, while the income throughout the country was $200,000. Vermont's share in the work was, therefore, quite small and by no means what it should be. Vermont ought to dispose of at least 300,000 of the little seals every year, with an income of $3,000 annually for the fight against the so-called "white plague."

In order to increase the sales, the Vermont chapter has placed the article on sale in more communities than usual and it hopes for largely increased patronage. These hopes should be realized. The people of Vermont, recognizing the value of the campaign, should make concerted efforts to assist. Every man, woman and child is financially able to carry on the campaign by purchasing these seals at one cent each; and those with larger pocketbooks can do a great service by buying large blocks of the seals, even though they do not use them. In Barre, for instance, there should be particular interest in furthering the campaign because of the fact that tuberculosis is the chief cause of mortality in the community. Storekeepers, office men, granite manufacturers and others should purchase large blocks of the seals; others should take them in smaller numbers. But all should help. The seals are on sale at the drug stores in Barre.

GRANITEVILLE.

William Coxon, who recently, with his wife, returned from a wedding trip to Montreal, where they had been visiting friends, was very pleasantly surprised by his friends of Graniteville and presented a beautiful Morris chair. Mr. Coxon, in behalf of himself and his wife, wishes to thank all for their good wishes and for the gift, which he accepts and appreciates very much.

Among the novelties promised for "Honeymoon Lane" at the opera house on Thursday and Friday of next week are the two songs, "Hello Frisco!" from the Ringfield Follies and "Good Bye, Girls, I'm Through" from "Chin-Chin," both of which will be presented as done in the original show. Mr. Philbrook has selected Sue Nichols, Marguerite Brown, Glynora Gould and Elizabeth Stevens to assist Henry Carroll in the dance accompanying "Good Bye, Girls," and Miss Ruth Humphrey and Mr. Carroll will sing and dance the telephone duet.—adv.

Just now basketball is the cynosure for all eyes at Goddard seminary, and the game, usually limited to those who excel in the sport, is this year to be enjoyed by a large number of the young men students as the result of a plan devised by Coach Charles Hoernle of the "varsity" quintet. Mr. Hoernle has formed a league that is to comprise six teams, all members being enrolled at the seminary. A schedule committee is working on the series of games to be played and playing will be started immediately after the holidays. At present a vacation of three weeks is contemplated, and should the customary fortnightly vacation be extended, there will be little time for basketball, and school will close next week. The seminary first team is going ahead with its own plans for the winter, having scheduled games already with Fort Ethan Allen and the Dartmouth freshmen.

News has been received here of the death of Daniel Elliott at his home in Amarillo, Texas, on the 19th of October, 1915. Mr. Elliott was born in Northfield, and was one of six sons of the late Daniel Elliott of that town, only one of whom is now living. He began work for the Vermont Central R. R. at the age of 16, and in 1882 began work for the Santa Fe road on the Atchinson branch. Later he was appointed yard foreman at Las Vegas, the roadmaster, and at the time of his death was superintendent of the Plain division, with headquarters at Amarillo. Last summer he was retired with a pension of $75 a month, the highest in the gift of the company. Mr. Elliott is survived by a widow, two sons and a daughter. John, the surviving brother, the last of the family, resides in Las Vegas, N. M., and he is a roadmaster. The above is of special interest to Williamstown people from the fact that four of the brothers were among the pioneers in the granite cutting business here, beginning work in the sheds that were later owned by the Gearson & Bockett Co. in 1885, Patey H. and Michael J., forming a partnership under the name of Elliott Bros., while the other two brothers, Christopher and Thomas, were in the employ of that firm. In 1893 the firm bought out Edwards and Jackman, then owning the site where Passers Bros. plant is now located, where they did a successful business until the failure of the health of the brothers in succession, compelled the sale of the business. All four were victims of tuberculosis, Christopher dying first, April 23, 1898; Patsie on the 11th of April, 1902; Michael on March 23, 1910, and Thomas on the 1st day of October in 1912.

Regular meeting of I. O. O. F. on Friday evening, with practice work in the second degree.

The fire alarm was sounded last evening to call out the fire company for a trial run and they responded in good time and went to the south end of the village and connected up, using the water from Stevens branch at Peole bridge. Time, six minutes.
