

Fine Furniture

This Is What "Fine Furniture" Means to Your Family and Self.

For many years the furniture sold by this house has exercised a distinct influence upon right home furnishing—"interior decoration" some have been kind enough to call it.

The influence thus created was founded upon a close study of and devotion to the interests of our home-loving public and this idea still prevails, namely, that to create a permanent living interest in our stocks the furniture must be fine in quality, fine in appearance, fine in expressing the new designs, and fine from the viewpoint of value.

Your daily contact with it makes imperative the need of friendliness—it must prove up—show its loyalty—remain steadfast and true through the years. Trade secrets must not lurk beneath the surface—it must be as good within as it looks without. "Fine furniture" means this—and much more—to your family and self. It is the very essence of home happiness now and in the time to come.

To-night he is to speak in St. Albans and Friday night he is scheduled to deliver an address in Burlington. To quote a recent issue of the Rutland Herald, "The keynote of the doctor's theory is 'publicity, instruction and consideration' with the exercise of the police power relegated to the background and resorted to only in extremities. The doctor has applied his theory to practice in the last six years and finds it produces gratifying results."

Miss Edith Coburn Noyes of the Noyes School of Expression of Boston came before a Barre audience for the third time when she read Oliver Goldsmith's "The Stoops to Conquer" last evening in Howland hall. Miss Noyes was brought here by the educational department of the Barre Women's club. The seating capacity of the hall was taxed almost to its limit, and to say that the hearers were pleased is putting it mildly. She had the difficult task of portraying clearly and forcibly 14 different characters throughout five acts. Her voice has a remarkable flexibility which made this possible. Its carrying power is also notable. Added to these qualities are her charm of manner and the combination of all, which make her a most talented and sympathetic entertainer.

Manager C. F. Millar of the Consolidated Lighting Co., who returned only a few days ago from Boston, where he had been convalescing from an illness of several weeks, received a message this morning advising him of the serious condition of his father, C. C. Millar, who has been in failing health for some months. The message stated that Mr. Millar was not expected to live. His son left Barre at 11:50 o'clock this noon for Boston.

Word was received by Prin. O. K. Hollister at Goddard seminary last night of the serious illness of Danief Keefe, "Three-fingered" Keefe, the well known baseball pitcher, who has figured prominently in Vermont intercollegiate sports in the past two years. Soon after the seminary was closed in January, Mr. Keefe, who lives in Cabot, went to the home of his aunt in Huntington for a visit. There he was stricken with black diphtheria a few days ago and the report received at the seminary indicates that his condition is critical.

Night marauders bent on forcing an entrance into the H. J. Smith market on North Main street sometime last night, succeeded only in making their way into the back room of the market. A careful scrutiny of the room this morning when the break was discovered did not indicate that the thief or thieves got away with much loot, although there were unmistakable evidences of trespassing about the place. Mr. Smith stated this forenoon that suspicion points an accusing finger in a certain direction and intimated that the last chapter in the burglar's serial is yet to be written. Moreover, he gave out the information that two buildings and a double-berried shotgun are factors in the "preparedness" policy adopted at the store in anticipation of the burglars' next visit.
