Cows sold from $27.50 to $80; small yearling heifers brought $20 and $21.50 per head; three-year-old bull, $67.50; yearling bull, $29; young calves from $2.50 to $9.65. Weather conditions favored an appropriate observance of Arbor day to-day, but it is doubtful whether most of those who paused in their various employments to consider the significance of the occasion paused any longer for the purpose of planting a tree. The teachers in some of the public school grades sought to impress upon their charges the real meaning of the day and Arbor day exercises were held in several of the schools. The number of trees planted, however, will not tend to change the complexion of the city in a birdseye view fifty years hence. Banks and business offices, even the license establishments, were doing business as usual.

Notice to Public. Owing to the advance in cost of raw materials we are compelled to increase prices on sodas in order to keep up the quality of our goods, which will be 10 cents more on a case beginning May 8, except Hires and Orangeade. Low prices means cheap goods. The public, knowing nothing of costs, continue to buy from dealers who think more of their own selfish profits than they do of their customers' health and safety, will continue to buy the cheapest sodas they can get and as they all charge the consumer the same price, the consumers' only safety is to trade only with dealers who supply the goods bearing our trade mark on the label. F. W. Langlois, 34 Granite street.
