Early in the morning the club members set out in three autos for the camp of George L. Morris, where all preparations had been made for receiving them. The club women returned to the city last evening.

Commuters aboard the suburban train leaving Montpelier at 6:30 a. m. and arriving at the Barre station at 6:54 o'clock felt the thrill of traveling in a detached coach this morning when the engine and tender unhooked from the combination car near the Wells & Lamson plant in the north end. The train was broken in a moment when no one was expecting such an eventuality and according to some of the passengers the locomotive and tender proceeded several rods before the absence of the coach was discovered. But the coach continued to skate merrily along under its own momentum and for aught the commuters knew it would have overtaken the imperious locomotive before it reached the city. When the mistake was noticed, the engineer reversed his brakes and backed slowly toward Montpelier until the passenger car should come to a halt. The suburban train was a few moments overdue in reaching Barre.

Domestic users of water in the upland streets of the city are experiencing the expected difficulty in getting an adequate supply of water owing to the change in the water main, which is being made on upper Washington street and along the East Barre road. A strip of highway nearly 350 feet long where the grade was lowered by the Barre Town road commission in the summer is the scene of the water department's operations and as many feet of water main will be lowered to conform with the street grade. Water department employees are being assisted by laborers in the employ of J. E. Cashman of Burlington, who is represented locally by J. C. DeBruine. It is thought that a week will elapse before the desired grade in the mains is finally established. Meanwhile householders in the hilly sections of the city are drawing their water in the early morning and after the stonesheds are shut down at 4 o'clock.

Mechanics and artisans from the plant of the Bremer Co. of Boston, who have been engaged in renovating the alleys at Merlo's bowling academy on North Main street, completed their work yesterday, the crew returning to the Hub last night. Much has been achieved in the way of restoring the alleys to their original smoothness and at the annual fall bowling opening to-night patrons of the academy will have an opportunity to note the improvements. Ventilation facilities in the academy have been greatly improved by the introduction of a suction fan which is capable of clearing the rooms of air in twelve minutes. Merlo Bros. have added a Western Union service clock to the equipment and a counter for cigars and light refreshments has been installed. In the billiard parlors new lighting fixtures have made a good deal of difference in the shading of the tables by night. New pins for every alley have been purchased.

Fred W. Osgood of Pleasantville, N. Y., who has been a guest of B. A. Eastman for several days, left to-day for Boston, where he will make a brief visit before returning to his home. McGinnis is another one of Charley Hoernle's proteges, who has received attention from the big league scouts this season, the others being Faulkner, who was offered a chance to play ball with the Braves next year and Shay, the versatile little infielder, who hovered around the shortfield for the Goddard and St. Johnsbury teams during the past two years, and who is with the Cubs at the present time. McGinnis' intentions at present are to enter Goddard this fall.

If You Could Know the Situation

If you could see what goods actually cost us to-day to buy, you would wonder that we had the courage to sell things so cheap. We could not, only that a great proportion of our goods were bought before the raise in price, like Yarns, Sweaters, Blankets, Dress Goods and Underwear—these were in our store, a part of them, since last February. Handkerchiefs, Umbrellas and many other Christmas kinds were bought a long time ago.

Blankets and Blanket Robes

Buy Blankets early; buy as soon as you find out how many you will want. Don't think that we have been asleep, if later we cannot supply your Blanket wants at decent prices. This is the Blanket situation. We have bought more than usual, but not enough.

We are distributors and not speculators of Dry Goods. We sell these goods just as low as we can. We give you all the value that your money will buy.

We are now showing a complete line of all sizes and prices in Blankets, even to the Imported Scotch Blankets that won't be on the market again until the war is over.

The largest and best lot of Bath Robe Blankets that we have ever had. No more this season. The mill has orders for double its output.

It will very soon be Blanket weather. Then this talk will sound better to you.

WILDER SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

Well-Known Teacher in Barre Once a Week.

Mr. Wilder has arranged, by request, to devote one day each week to Barre. Gustave Saenger, editor of the N. Y. Metronome, a New York musical publication offers the following tribute: "It is with uncommon pleasure that the Metronome presents a picture of Mr. George Hubbard Wilder of Burlington, Vt., to its readers. Mr. Wilder is widely known as an excellent flute player, orchestral leader and teacher of the voice. He has succeeded in acquiring a most enviable reputation in his part of the country in his special fields of musical activity and is looked upon as one of the most capable and reliable musicians of the New England states."

"At nine years of age he began his career as a boy soprano soloist in Bethany church at Montpelier, Vt., with W. A. Briggs as organist and director, and about that time he also began vocal instruction under the direction of Andrew J. Phillips, and later studied voice with the well known Boston tenor, Frederick W. Bancroft, continuing his vocal instruction later with Madame Edna Hall of Boston, Edwin Gorham and A. W. Keene of the same city; with Carl Young of Chicago, then with Madame Grace Couch Embler, of New York, then with Franz Emerich of Berlin, Germany, and lastly with the great William Shakespeare of London. Mr. Wilder having in his possession from the last teacher four personal letters of recommendations as an instructor of voice.

"His pianoforte teachers were his father, Prof. Geo. W. Wilder, formerly organist of Christ church of Montpelier, Methodist and Old Brick church of that city, one of Vermont's finest teachers and musicians; Mr. Ferdinand Dewey of Boston, Prof. Otto Von Koningsberg of Montreal, and lastly with Miss Shakespeare of London, who was for eight years a pupil of Clara Schumann.

"Mr. Wilder was for eight summers solo flutist with the well known Boston Symphony players at the Profile house, White Mountains, with Theodore Human and Jacques Hoffman, directors. Afterwards he directed his own orchestra at the Franconia inn with Walter Lord of the Staats Instrumental club and Frederick H. Whittier as first violin, during several seasons. He also played pianoforte at Tremont theatre, Boston, for two seasons, giving concerts in the foyer and at Pierce hall for Miss Post. One season later he appeared on the B. F. Keith circuit as soloist in New York, Boston and Philadelphia and was soloist for Redpath Lyceum bureau for two years, touring America, and playing both flute and piano solos.—Adv.

Reasons for Being Indignant.

There was something in the atmosphere which told him that things were not exactly the same. Silence followed soon after the usual greetings, but at length she spoke. "Are you aware, sir," she began, "that one hand of the Bartholdi statue measures 18 feet 5 inches?"

"So I have heard," he nodded, happy to be addressed again.

"The thickness of the head from ear to ear," she pursued icily, "is ten feet."

"Yes."

"The nose is four feet six inches long."

"That's right."

"The mouth is three feet across."

"I believe so. Just imagine it."

"The waist thirty-five feet around."

"Yes, Why?"

"Then will you kindly explain, sir," she continued, "why you stated in the poem which you addressed to me that I reminded you of the Goddess of Liberty?"
