A Hay Fever If.

(With apologies to Mr. Kipling.) If you can face a ragweed without sneezing And walk undaunted past a stack of hay; If you can find a field of daisies pleasing, And not require ten handkerchiefs a day; If you can stroll in meadowland and orchard And greet the goldenrod with gay surprise, And not be most abominably tortured By swollen nose and bloodshot, flaming eyes; If you can go on sneezing like a geyser And never utter one unmeasured curse; If you can squeeze the useless atomizer Nor look with envy on each passing hearse; If you can still be merry in September And not lay plans to drown yourself in drink, Then your career is something to remember And you deserve an Iron Cross, I think.—New York Times.

O. O. F. The officiating clergyman was Rev. W. A. Remele, pastor of the Congregational church. Mr. Stoddard had been in feeble health the past few years and the end came Thursday, Sept. 21, at 6 p. m. Hiram Freeman Stoddard was born in Waitsfield, Oct. 13, 1840, the son of William Tell and Lucy (Porter) Stoddard, one of a family of nine children, only one of whom survives. Dec. 24, 1865, he was married to Adaline Persis Palmer, with whom he lived many years on the place now owned by Paul Buzell, which was his boyhood home, and later on the farm now the home of his daughter, Mrs. M. L. Martin. The last few years of his married life he lived in the village in the LaMorder residence. Upon Mrs. Stoddard's death in 1911 he returned to his daughter's home.

They Took the Lash.

One of the traditions of the British Royal Yacht club is of Lord Yarborough's Falcon, the crew of which were paid extra wages on condition that they they submitted to the usual rules in force on British vessels of war. These included flogging under certain circumstances, and it is said that in consideration of the additional sum paid by Lord Yarborough some of the crew cheerfully submitted to the occasional application of the cat-o-nine-tails. "Indeed, before the Falcon left Plymouth sound for a cruise all hands cordially signed a paper setting forth the usefulness of a sound flogging in cases of insubordination and their perfect willingness to undergo the experiment whenever it was deemed necessary for the preservation of good order."

Superstitions About Hares. There have been at various periods all manner of queer superstitions about hares, which would seem to indicate that the believers were themselves madder than any hare that ever gambled in March. Its brains were believed to make children's teeth come quickly and painlessly; those who ate its flesh became lovely and gracious for a week after; a waistcoat made of hare's skin straightened the bodies both of young and old, etc. Even today there are those who take as an evil omen the crossing of the road before them by this most innocent of creatures.—London Chronicle.
