Crandall post will make a special effort to come. Come early and have a social time before dinner.

Electrical apparatus was required Saturday to thaw out the water gauges in the basement of city hall, a freeze having developed on the Prospect street connection during the night. Until Saturday very little difficulty has been encountered by the water department, although in the cold spell that terminated toward the end of the week, the thawing device was used in a number of dwellings. Some time was required to thaw out the gauges, which are used by the water department in obtaining readings of the pressure available from three sources of water supply. The gauges were affected by extreme cold weather a year ago.

The time when candidates for office may file nomination papers expires this evening and after that anyone who would stand for election March 6 must instruct his supporters to write his name on the ballot. Thus far only two candidates have filed. F. W. Schior presented his papers immediately after the city caucus and is rated as the labor candidate for the mayoralty. Supporters of T. J. Denning for assessor signed his nomination papers and he will oppose A. L. Noyes, who received the nomination at the citizens' caucus Friday evening. Nomination papers have been taken out by Harry E. Jeffers, defeated in the caucus for second constable, but at noon to-day, the signers had not appeared before a notary.

Notice.

TALK OF THE TOWN

Get a 5x8 flag outfit for Washington's birthday at Hooker's Red Tag sale for $1.49.

A chicken-pie supper and dance will be given at Cobble hill Friday evening, Feb. 23. Carroll's orchestra will furnish music.

Charles C. Clark of Montreal, P. Q., returned to his home last evening, after visiting relatives on Merchant street during the past few days.

George Ormsbee and Roy Crossett of the Perry Automobile company were visitors in Marshfield yesterday, making the trip in the auto-sleigh which the company is utilizing through the winter months.

In spite of the snow drifts which they encountered, ranging from three to seven feet in depth, they made good time, being on the road from Marshfield but one hour and making the distance as rapidly as they would ordinarily in the summer time. In none of the drifts did the auto become stuck, for the runners passed over heaps of snow, although it was soft and slumpy for a horse.

Passersby on North Main street this morning about 11 o'clock had a chance to witness one of the daily occurrences, when a farmer from Washington way was trying to cross the track near the Ladd store, and on trying to rein his horse from the car track rut, the sleigh tipped over, spilling the contents of the sleigh.

The horse started on a run, after turning around, and headed toward South Main street. Several men, who happened to be passing at the time, jumped for the horse's head, and got him under control before anyone was hurt. Both driver and horse escaped any injuries, but one of the sleigh runners was somewhat smashed.

GRANITEVILLE.

The South Barre grange will have a dance at grange hall Wednesday night, Feb. 21. Riley's orchestra. Refreshments.

Red Men desiring tickets for Washington's birthday celebration are asked to get them at meeting to-night, as sale will close at that time.

A RUNAWAY HORSE.

Use Your Hat and Your Head, It is Said, and You Can Stop Him.

The observer of people and events wonders how many people have the slightest notion as to how to stop a runaway horse. An old farmer in an adjacent state was coming home the other morning when he heard a terrific commotion behind him and, when he turned, saw a horse racing toward him in a frenzy of fear. In the spring wagon was a little boy of six or seven, and behind the swaying vehicle was a gray haired man—evidently the child's grandfather—chasing the runaway.

In an instant the farmer was out in the middle of the road with his hat whisked off his head, both arms gyrating in wide circles. The hat did the work, for the farmer told folks afterward that his mother had told him that a horse would always stop at the sight of a hat being whirled directly in front of it. The animal came to a stop within a few inches of the farmer, who stood his ground. It was the work of a few seconds to calm the quivering animal, and soon the grandfather came up. He threw his arms around the rescuer and fairly wept for joy.

Next time you get a runaway Dobbin coming your way don't forget to use your hat—and your head.—Columbus Dispatch.

COWARDS IN DAYLIGHT.

But the Great Eagle Owls Are Fierce Fighters by Night.

There are about 200 kinds of owls. Some are tiny owls, some are big eagle owls, twenty-eight inches in length, very fierce and strong, ready to attack a man who goes near, able to kill fawns and large game birds and to do battle with the golden eagle. The courage of one of these golden owls descends it in the daytime, and then little birds, led by a crow, may find it and drive it into the open and tease and worry it without danger to themselves. But, when night comes and the bird can see, only a mighty eagle dare do battle with it.

The hawk owl is one of the owls which work by day. It is big and strong and savage. There are owls with great ear tufts of feathers and owls with none at all. Some are snowy white; others are mottled. Some live in holes in the ground with prairie dogs and such animals; some make burrows for themselves. But most owls live in hollow trees or in church bellies or other high towers. Among so many kinds of owls there are some, of course, that do harm, but most of them do more good for men than evil.—Exchange.

Chinese Locksmiths.

The earliest locks known to man were of Chinese make. Although it is impossible to tell the exact date of those still extant, they are wonderfully well made and as strong as any manufactured in Europe up to the middle of the eighteenth century. The Chinese locksmiths of today use exactly the same kind of tools that his forefathers had, for they are very simple and primitive. He carries all his implements in two cabinets, sitting on one and working at the other. When he has finished all the work available in one neighborhood he fastens the two cabinets to a bamboo rod and slings it over his shoulder. He tramps through the towns burdened in this way and stops when he is called, much as a scissors grinder or umbrella mender does in our country.—Wide World Magazine.

NAMES IN JAPAN.

The Only Lasting Title a Man Gets Comes When He Dies.

The Japanese have many quaint customs handed down from generation to generation. One of the strangest is that of their naming ceremony. When one month old a Japanese child gets its first name with ceremonial. Trumpets are blown, and the child is borne in great state to the family temple, and behind the procession march the household servants carrying the infant's wardrobe. The servant in the rear of the procession bears a huge box, in which is the priest's fee, together with three slips of paper, on which three names are written. On reaching the temple the names are thrown into the air, and the first that touches the ground is the one which the child receives.

When three years old the child is again named, accompanied by elaborate religious rites. At the age of fifteen his education is supposed to be finished, and as he then enters manhood (according to Japanese law) he is again named.

When he takes to business he receives his "business" name, by which he is known in the commercial world, and upon every upward step in life he receives a new name. If his master happens to have the same name he must at once change it, as it detracts from his superior's dignity. At his marriage his name is altered again, and his last and only permanent one is that given him after death, which is written on his tomb.—London Answers.

The Furtive Look.

Here is something worth while for bachelors to consider.

A Boston woman says she can detect a bachelor as far as she can see him. She always knows a bachelor by his furtive look. The furtive look, she explains, is something akin to that of a hunted animal, always on the watch for snares and pitfalls. Of course this may apply only to Boston bachelors, but it would be well for all other single unfortunates to take a good look at themselves in the mirror and find that telltale look. If they do there is an easy way to efface it.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Why a Horse Rolls.

Horses are fond of rolling on the ground, and no animal more thoroughly shakes itself than they do. After a roll they give themselves a shake or two to remove anything adhering to the coat. The habit is of much service to horses living in open plains. On being turned loose at the end of a journey an Arab horse rolls in the sand, which acts as blotting paper, absorbing exudations from the body. A shake removes the sand, and the coat soon dries. Cavalrymen in hot climates sometimes put sand on their horses as the simplest and quickest way of drying them.

No Longer a Child.

"Is mamma's sweet little boy ready to have his bath now?" "Oh, maw, but the soft pedal on that stuff, will you? When a fellow's six years old it's time to take him out of the kindergarten class. I'll take my splash when I've had my smoke."—Pittsburgh Times.

Necessary Things.

One of our rear admirals is quoted as saying, "The battleship can go to any part of the world if coal is provided." "This does away with the old supposition that water was also necessary," interposed a bystander.

MONTPELIER

August Alquist Died Sunday Evening, Charles P. Hayden Saturday Evening.

The death of August Alquist occurred last evening at his home, 6 Charles street, Montpelier, he having been ill for several years with tuberculosis. The deceased was born in Sweden, Sept. 6, 1879 and has resided in Montpelier for the past seventeen years, being employed at his trade of granitecutter during that period. He was married eleven years ago to Ella Sandberg, who with one son, Helman, a brother, John, in Quincy, Mass., and a sister in Sweden, survive. Mr. Alquist was a member of the localerie of Eagles and the Swedish order of Vasa. Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at his late home on Charles street with burial in Green Mount cemetery.

Charles P. Hayden died of pneumonia Saturday evening at the city farm after an illness of a week. The funeral will be held Tuesday with burial in Green Mount cemetery in the family lot. Mr. Hayden was born in Berlin 77 years ago last August, but lived virtually all of his life in Montpelier. When a young man his speech and hearing commenced to be affected and for years he was almost totally deaf and dumb. The deceased was not a city charge, being taken to the farm for the winter, where he could receive good care. He leaves a sister, Mrs. C. E. Hibbard, who resides at Pittsfield, Mass., there being no other near relatives, a brother, Edwin, having died many years ago. Mrs. Hibbard will be unable to attend the funeral because of illness, but her son is expected today to take charge of the remains.

In probate court the will of Betsey M. Clark, late of East Montpelier, has been presented for probate. Penelope Gall of Barre City, executrix of the will of James Adie, has settled her account. The will of Frederick King, late of Barre City, has been filed for probate.

The Playhouse was packed to its capacity last evening, a special performance being conducted for the benefit of the Montpelier Military band. The band gave a concert preceding a five-reel picture. T. B. Merrill, leader, announced that another benefit performance would probably take place Sunday evening, March 4.

Miss Genevieve Damon resumed her duties in the office of the industrial accident board to-day after an illness of ten days with the grip.

Mrs. Margaret Spear of Newport, who has been spending several days in the city with her daughter, Miss Virna Spear, went last evening to Burlington to visit her daughter, Miss Dorothy Spear, a student at the University of Vermont.

Colby academy, a New Hampshire basketball team, clashes to-night at armory hall with the fast traveling high school five. Montpelier high school has scored a total of 195 points in three games against Stowe, Montpelier seminary and Hardwick academy, the opponents being able to make but 47 points.

The body of Miss Harriet Briggs, aged 53 years, was found hanging from a beam in the woodshed on the farm of Michael Herbert in Middlesex Saturday morning and the woman had evidently been dead for a number of hours as the body was partly frozen. Mr. Herbert discovered the woman at 7 o'clock when he went to the woodshed, she having tied a rope around her neck and attached the other end to a beam. The deceased was a native of Williamstown, where the body was taken and had been working for Mrs. Herbert for nearly two years. According to the Herberts, she had spells when she appeared mentally unbalanced and it is believed she committed suicide while experiencing such trouble. She is survived by two brothers in Williamstown, Denison and Charles, one in California, Albert, and a sister, Mrs. Erwin Martin.

WASHINGTON

C. W. Huntington is so much improved in health that he was able to be down street the last of the week.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. John Richardson last week.

L. D. Tillotson returned home Saturday after receiving treatment at the hospital in Burlington. His condition is somewhat improved.

Mrs. Pearl Dow of East Barre was a visitor at her sister's Mrs. F. D. Johnson, over Sunday.

Mrs. G. E. Huntington is better.

Mrs. E. F. Brown, who was alarmingly ill a few days ago, is slightly improved. The Farmers club held a meet Friday evening at Odd Fellows' hall, when the ladies were invited for a social time. It is hoped that this affair will be repeated.

The dance for the public library, which was held last Wednesday evening was well attended and everyone had a good time. The proceeds amounted to nearly $20.

Among those who have been on the sick list are Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Stanley, Mrs. D. P. Smith, Neta Hutchinson and several others, but all are thought to be on the road to recovery.

Ira C. Calef was thought to be a little better this morning.

W. E. Worthley, who was quite seriously ill, is better, so he is about the house.

Literature and Life.

The distinctive characteristic of literature is not extent, but quality of knowledge; not range, but vitality; not scope of activity, but depth of life. It is, in a word, the process by which a man takes the world into his nature and is fed, sustained and enlarged by natural, simple, deep relations and fellowship with the whole order of things of which he is part.—Hamilton W. Mabie.

For a Postage Stamp, $670. The highest price paid lately for a postage stamp was $670, a sum given at a New York auction the other day for a five cent Hawaiian missionary stamp of the issue of 1851. When the early missionaries went from New England to Hawaii they looked ahead to many things, but hardly to the sale of their postage stamps at prices higher than their salaries for a year.

Silence is Safety. After forty years' married life I've made up my mind it don't matter how often a man an' his wife disagree as long as he don't let her know it.—Harper's Bazar.

Golf Versus Motoring. The difference between learning golf and motoring is that in golf at first you hit nothing, but in motoring everything.—Exchange.

TALK OF THE TOWN

Moneybak silk at Abbott's.

The class in parliamentary law will meet to-night at 7:30 in Aldrich hall.

Two dollars and a half women's 3- and 4-buckle overshoes, first quality, at Shea's, $1.59 a pair.

Twenty-five per cent discount from regular prices on electric lamps in Hooker's Red Tag sale this week.

The South Barre grange will have a dance at grange hall Wednesday night, Feb. 21. Riley's orchestra. Refreshments.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Pease, the former a member of the state industrial accident board, returned this morning to their home in Burlington, after passing the week end in town.

To-morrow, Feb. 20, George Hasseltine will lecture on "The Sunny Side of the Road," at Congregational church at 8 p. m. This lecture is full of wit and fun. Come, laugh, forget your troubles. Adults 20c, children under 14, 10c.—adv.

In the absence of the pastor, Rev. J. W. Barnett, services at the Barre Congregational church Sunday were in charge of Rev. James Ramage, pastor of the East Barre Congregational church, whose pulpit at the morning service was filled by Mrs. Isabelle Even, assistant pastor of the local church.

Joseph Bennett of River street, under arrest on a charge of breaking the peace, was remanded to the county jail Saturday when he failed to furnish bail of $100 fixed in city court after he had pleaded not guilty to a charge of beating his wife, Iona Willis Bennett. A hearing in the case will be held later in the week.

County Agent F. H. Abbott of the Washington Farm Bureau association is busy these days, threshing oats in his office by hand. Mr. Abbott has several special varieties which he is very choosy of and that were grown on plots of ground in different parts of the county last summer. His intentions are to get the seed as clear as possible and sow the different varieties side by side this summer so as to get a line on the different growths of the seed which he has stored in his office since the fall harvest.

Since advertising has put him in a fair way to recover his valuable foxhound, "Bum," Giuseppe Corti is a firm believer in the efficiency of the classified column. Some time early in the winter, "Bum" was reported among the missing and after an exhaustive inquiry, his master decided to advertise. Weeks passed and no one answered Mr. Corti's appeal for assistance in locating the lost hunter. A few days ago the Times received from a Wells River man in which a dog that strayed into his yard was described so faithfully that anyone who knew "Bum," also knew that there is a sojourner in Wells River. Mr. Corti, having satisfied himself that there is only one "Bum," has taken steps to recover the dog.

Spaulding students in two groups undertook arduous snowshoe hikes Saturday, one party of young women making for Lyon's camp on east hill while another bevy of girl students trekked the six miles to Williamstown, accompanied by members of the faculty. Under favorable conditions, the Williamstown-bound party made good time and arrived at its destination in time to enjoy a hearty dinner. Returning, they packed their snowshoes and boarded the Central Vermont train, which deposited them in Barre early in the evening. Those who headed for the Lyon camp cooked their supper under cover and enjoyed their hike home at dusk.

Members of the Danish brotherhood of Barre and friends to the number of 40 couples assembled at the Knights of Columbus hall Saturday evening to attend the annual masquerade of the society. It was one of the most successful affairs ever held under the auspices of the brotherhood. The old Danish dances were a great attraction, while several of the more modern dances were enjoyed by the younger members of the party. At intermission, refreshments of cake and coffee were served by a committee of the brotherhood. Hanley Lumme was floor manager. The costumes of several nations were very attractive. The first prize was awarded Miller Johnson, who wore a Swedish costume; second prize was taken by John Johnson, and the third went to Miss Hannah Bjorn of East Brookfield.
