Barre and Montpelier police, in conjunction with the sheriff's department, are still searching for James Powers, a jail breaker, who headed for Barre last week, once he had quitted a lumber job on the Montpelier road. Sunday afternoon Plainfield authorities telephoned Chief Sinclair that a man answering the description of Powers, as furnished by Sheriff F. H. Tracy in a signed poster, had passed that way, but an investigation did not satisfy the police it was Powers. A reward of $50 offered by the county sheriff is said to have stimulated the hunt for Powers, who sets himself up to be a steamfitter and is apt to mention that trade in applying for work.

The other principal in the rumput, Durward Imah, retained an attorney and afterward decided to enter a plea of guilty. Magistrate H. W. About six of last year's team will be available the coming season, including Holway, the clever southpaw; Arky; the light but plucky catcher, and Granni and Hatch, infield mainstays. Granni was called upon to do some of the twirling, although he is generally considered one of the best shortfield men in Vermont prep. schools to-day. The schedule is practically completed and includes games with most of the high schools in the northern part of Vermont.

Mrs. Frank H. Baldwin of Main street went this forenoon to Rutland, being called by the death of her husband's father, W. H. Baldwin. Mr. Baldwin was called to Rutland Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Briggs resided in Montpelier since 1872 and for 25 years she was a member of Bethany church choir and in late years she continued to retain a lively interest in musical work in and about Montpelier. Mrs. Briggs was a past regent of Marquis de Lafayette chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, and for many years was treasurer of the ladies' auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. She leaves, besides her husband, two sisters, Mrs. C. H. Shepley of Orlando, Fla., and Mrs. C. H. Norton of Somerville, Mass., and six brothers, A. R. Whitney, H. L. Whitney, Harry E. Adjutant-General's Position.

In discussing the military situation in Vermont with which it is not pleased, being of the mind that somebody is "running wild," the Burlington Free Press makes one statement which, out of justice, should be corrected. It says: "In time of actual service for the nation the adjutant-general may receive $500 a month or $6,000 a year, and other officers handsome sums under new conditions." It might be easy to infer from such a statement that General Tillotson, who is Vermont's adjutant-general, is interested in the proposed new military legislation at Montpelier because by so doing he will, under certain conditions, increase his own salary.

Nothing could be further from the truth and such an inference would be unjust to a man who has labored conscientiously for the National Guard of the state. General Tillotson's position, if the guard were called into federal service, would be no different from what it is to-day. His salary would still come from the state. He himself would not be a part of the federal force. Adjutant-general of the states are not taken into the federal service along with the guard regiments. The only way the general could become a part of the federal force would be by resigning his present position, following which he would have to secure a commission with the federal force.

This fact, of course, disposes of the contention that he would or could get himself on to the federal payroll at $500 a month. The Free Press, of course, did not intend wrongly on this matter, but that is just what it has done, and by so doing may have created a false impression about the motives of a man who is guilty of no other offense than urging the passage of a measure which he considers is for the best interests of the state's military forces of which, next to the governor, he is the commanding officer.—St. Albans Messenger.
