Warns Women Against Cutting Corns and Says They Lift Right Out

Because style decrees that women crowd and buckle up their tender toes in high heel footwear, they suffer from corns, then they cut and trim at these painful pests, which merely makes the corn grow hard.

A few drops of a drug called freezeone applied directly upon a sore corn gives quick relief, and soon the entire corn, root and all, lifts out without pain.

This drug is gummy, but it dries in a moment and simply shrivels up the corn without inflaming or even irritating the surrounding tissue or skin.

IN FIVE MINUTES NO SICK STOMACH, INDIGESTION, GAS

"Pape's Diapepsin" Is the Quickest and Surest Stomach Remedy

You don't know what upset your stomach—which portion of the food did the damage—do you? Well, don't bother. If your stomach is in a revolt; if sick, gassy and upset, and what you just ate has fermented and turned sour; head dizzy and aches, belch gasses and acids and create undigested food; breath foul, tongue coated—just take a little Pape's Diapepsin to neutralize acidity, and in five minutes you wonder what became of the indigestion and distress.

Millions of men and women to-day know that it is needless to have dyspepsia. A little Diapepsin occasionally keeps the stomach sweetened, and they eat their favorite foods without fear.

If your stomach doesn't take care of your liberal limit without rebellion; if your food is a damage instead of a help, remember the quickest, surest, most harmless antacid is Pape's Diapepsin, which costs only fifty cents for a large case at drug stores. It's truly wonderful—stops food souring and sets things straight, so gently and easily that it is really astonishing. Your stomach will digest your meals if you keep acids neutralized.—Adv.

A Revival Of Romance

By SADIE OLCOTT

Miss Josephine Warren, a prominent society girl in an eastern city, being tired of the winter social gayeties, tried for something different. In the first place, she had had half a dozen proposals, not one of them having in it anything like real love.

She came from men who wished to marry for some interested motive. One wanted her because she would bring her husband some means, another because she would give him a better social position and still others because they wished to marry and she was considered one of the prizes of the season.

Miss Warren's father owned, among other things, a ranch in the far west, which had fallen to him through a foreclosed mortgage. One morning during the early spring Josephine heard him say that his ranch, which he called his western elephant, would ruin him if he did not go out and look after it.

"Do go, papa," she said, "and take me with you."

His having his daughter's company decided him, and within a few weeks father and daughter were in a western ranch house and Miss Warren instead of receiving the attentions of young men in silk hats and spats was surrounded by cowboys with sombreros and spurs.

One night Josephine was awakened by a serenade under her window. A man, accompanied by a guitar, was singing with a voice smooth as a running brook. Moreover, his whole heart seemed to come out with his voice, and his song was one of passionate love.

Josephine could not help comparing it with the lovemaking she had listened to from the gilded men of the eastern social world.

Rising from her bed, she went to the window. The moon was at the full and shone directly upon the face of the serenader. He was in cowboy apparel except for the hat, which lay on the ground beside him. Whether it was the moonlight or that his face was really more refined than the average cowboy or the effect of the music, he certainly appeared to Josephine as a superior being.

He sang but one song, which seemed altogether too short to the listener. Then he went away, leaving Josephine in a sort of ecstasy she had never felt before. Oh, that she might be wooed in such fashion by one of her own station!
